Marin Burglary Chase Ends With Spectacular Collision

CHASE CAR — Novato Police Sgt. Gene Clayton and California Highway Patrolman J. L. Smith look over the wreckage of the car in which two San Francisco youths crashed into an oncoming vehicle after leading Novato police on a 100-mile-per-hour chase from near Hamilton Air Force Base. The car spun, then flipped in the air before it struck the other. (Independent-Journal photo)

Three Hurt, Fugitive Auto Contains Loot

Two San Francisco men, suspects in a Novato gas station burglary, led police early today on a 100-mile-per-hour chase which ended when their car somersaulted in the air and crashed into an oncoming car just south of San Rafael.

Three persons were injured, including an Oregon man and his 83-year-old mother who were in the other vehicle, and the driver of the escape car.

In satisfactory condition at San Rafael General Hospital today was Mrs. Mary Murphy, 83, of Newport, Ore., who suffered a cut tongue and a bruised right leg. Her son, Otto N. Williams, 60, received stitches for a cut on his chin, but was not kept at the hospital.

Also listed as satisfactory was John Edward Padilla, 21, of 2770 San Jose Avenue, San Francisco, who suffered severe bruises and scrapes of the head. He was under guard by sheriff's deputies.

Booked at Marin County Jail was Juan Jose Reimoneng, 19, of 26 Athens Street, San Francisco.

Padilla and Reimoneng were both charged with burglary, drunkenness in and about an automobile and evading arrest. The California Highway Patrol said an additional charge, reckless driving leading to an injury accident, would be lodged against Padilla today.

Police credited Mrs. Florence L. Seamons of 1140 Elm Drive, Novato, with alerting them to the burglary. They said she saw two men taking tires from Smith's Flying A Service, 7351 Redwood Highway at about 1 a.m. She walked four blocks to the corner of Second Street and Grant Avenue, where she spotted a patrol car driven by officer Louis R. Robinette and told him what she had seen.

Robinette radioed for other units to proceed to the station. Officer A. W. Schroeder was dispatched to Highway 101, in case the suspects attempted to flee.

Schroeder said he saw a green and white 1955 Chevrolet going south at 45 miles per hour. Since it was similar to the description given by Mrs. Seamons, Schroeder pulled behind it and switched on his red light and siren.

The car continued at the same speed, he said, its occupants apparently unaware he was trying to stop them, until they reached St. Vincent's Hill, when the auto speeded up to an estimated 95-100 miles per hour.

"After that, they stayed at the same speed all the way," Schroeder said.

Alerted by the county communications center, sheriff deputies joined in the chase. All

State Will Consider Route Idea

One of the routes that the state will consider in planning an east-west connection between Highway 101 and West Marin is a ridge route over White's Hill, according to a letter from the State Division of Highways to Ernest N. Kettenhofen of San Anselmo.

Kettenhofen said he got the letter from B. C. Bachtold, assistant district engineer for the Division of Highways. Bachtold wrote: "We will consider the location you recommend in our planning studies for State Route 17."

Kettenhofen's proposal is a road along the ridge west of Terra Linda over inexpensive grazing land to White's Hill and San Geronimo, then northwest to Pt. Reyes. He contends that such a route would least disrupt developed areas.

Kettenhofen also wrote to First Congressional District Rep. Don H. Clausen (R-Crescent City), pointing out that an access highway to West Marin should get federal aid because the new Pt. Reyes National Seashore will bring millions of out-of-county visitors to Marin.

Muir Woods Man Killed On Shoreline

Fatal Journey For Forgotten Laundry Item

A 28-year-old carpenter from Muir Woods was killed early today when his small car grazed another on Shoreline Highway just north of Northern Avenue and crashed into a tree.

Jules David Klain of Sunset Way became the 25th traffic fatality in Marin County this year. Last year at this time the grim total stood at 18.

Klain clipped a passing car with his 1957 Volkswagen and slammed into a tree at 3:10 a.m., the California Highway Patrol reported.

Klain, who possibly suffered a broken neck, was pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital.

The CHP reported that Klain's car collided with a car driven by Michael Richard Dickinson, 18, an Oakland City College students, and then veered into the tree.

Dickinson told investigating officers that Klain's car came around a curve straight toward him on the wrong side of the road.

Then, according to Dickenson, both cars swerved to the right, but Klain's car brushed the left side of his car and careened into the tree.

After the collision, "I hit the brakes, skidded to a stop, turned around and saw the Volkswagen hit the tree," Dickinson said.

Coroner Frank J. Keaton said Klain had been returning home from a trip to a launderette in Tamalpais Valley to pick up a bedsheet that had been left behind earlier.

Jules and his wife, Crystal, had been to the launderette earlier. When they got home at 2 a.m. and discovered they had forgotten the bedsheet, Klain went back to get it, Keaton said.

The California Highway Patrol reported that the car was registered to Crystal Malar.

Other survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Joseph Klain of Oceanside, N.J.

An autopsy was to be performed today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

WATCH IT, ROAD DUE TO MOVE OVER AGAIN

Beginning Tuesday, the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near Hamilton Air Force Base will be closed and traffic will be routed onto the new northbound lanes, the State Division of Highways announced today.

The detour will continue in effect for two months of road work. Northbound traffic will continue to use the temporary lanes on the east side of the highway.

Today's announcement was in keeping with a promise made by J. O. Grassberger, executive assistant for the division in the San Francisco office following Thursday's long traffic tie-up on Highway 101 at Ignacio. Grassberger said any future traffic changes would be announced in advance.

In Friday's Independent-Journal the story on the traffic tie-up incorrectly said that three lanes of traffic were funneled into one lane. Only two lanes, in operation along the route, were funneled into one.

Defense Puts Stress On Corbett Death Time

By ROSS DAVIS

Defense arguments in Marin Superior Court were closed at 4 p.m. yesterday with attorneys charging the prosecution left at least a reasonable doubt that Robert Lee Jones and John Lee King murdered Donald G. Corbett Jr.

Defense attorneys leaned heavily on a pathologist's estimate that death occurred on March 28—a full day later than the time alleged by Dist. Atty Bruce B. Bales.

Bales ended arguments with his rebuttal at 4:30 p.m., stressing that the pathologist — Dr. John H. Manwaring of San Rafael — declared his estimate could well have extended the extra day.

"Only God and the killers" know exactly when the slaying occurred, Bales added.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson recessed the jury until 9:30 a.m. Monday when instructions will be given prior to start of deliberation.

The defense attack on a March 27 (Good Friday) death time was spearheaded by Thomas P. Boyd, representing Jones, who said Dr. Manwaring testified not once but four times that his best estimate was that Corbett died in his Sausalito apartment about 48 hours prior to the 5 p.m. autopsy on March 30.

Peter Allen Smith, attorney for King, supplemented the contention by quoting Frank Keaton, Marin County coroner, as "testifyling Dr. Manwaring told him the death was most likely from 36 to 48 hours.

The time element was important because the prosecution based its entire case on an evening slaying March 27, a period for which the defendants offered no alibis on their whereabouts.

Boyd said the reasonable doubt areas included whether Jones and King were really together on March 25, when they are accused of holding up Harbor Liquor Store in Alto, and were again together on March 27 during the alleged killing. He said another area of confusion was about the "mysterious" person who allegedly answered Corbett's phone March 27.

Two witnesses testified a strange man's voice answered and said Corbett was away.

Boyd also belittled the likelihood that Sylvester Schladweiler, operator of the liquor store, could have been positive in his courtroom identification of Jones and King as the robbers when he actually had only "15 seconds" to see the gunmen during the holdup.

Boyd also asked the jury not to find his client, Jones, "guilty by association" He said, "What King did doesn't damn Jones."

Smith declared the most that could be said of the state's case

U.S. Deficit Below Budget, Johnson Says

Tells Newsmen Of Testing British Bomb

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson announced today the third cut in red ink spending for the fiscal year ended June 30—a reduction of 500 million dollars.

The 8.3 billion dollar deficit was 3.6 billion dollars below the original 1964 fiscal budget estimate made in January 1963.

And it was 1.7 billion dollars below Johnson's estimate in January this year and 500 million dollars below the most recent estimate last May.

Lower than expected spending and rising tax receipts both contributed to the cut in the budget deficit.

Expenditures amounted to 97.7 billion dollars.

This was a reduction of more than one billion dollars from the January 1963 estimate, a decrease of 700 million dollars from the revised January 1964 budget and a decrease of 600 million dollars from the re-estimate in May.

Receipts totaled 89.4 billion dollars, up 2.5 billion dollars from the original estimate in January 1963 and up one billion dollars from the January 1964 estimate. Receipts were up only slightly from the re-estimate in May.

President Johnson also said today the United States and Britain have jointly tested a British-made nuclear device underground in Nevada.

Johnson said the device, described as having a low yield, was detonated Friday at the atomic energy test site.

He emphasized that the test, conducted under an Anglo-American agreement to cooperate in using atomic energy for defense, "was carried out within the framework of the limited nuclear test ban treaty of August 1963."

COMBINED AP AND UPI

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Sen. Barry Goldwater, relaxing at his hilltop home, announced today he has moved formally to withdraw his bid for renomination to the Senate now that he has won the Republican presidential nomination.

Goldwater's press secretary, Edward K. Nellor, released copies of a letter Goldwater dispatched from San Francisco yesterday to Arizona's Democratic secretary of state, Wesley Bolin.

Bolin already has said that the ballots are not printed and that there will be no problem keeping Goldwater's name off of them.

Goldwater's withdrawal leaves only three-term Gov. Paul Fannin, his longtime friend, in the Republican primary race.

The conservative senator flew from San Francisco last night to a triumphant homecoming in his native city. About 3,000 persons cheered the state's first presidential nominee.

Goldwater left in San Francisco a boiling GOP feud over a remark he uttered in accepting the nomination Thursday night —a remark he underscored yesterday in these words: "Extremism is no sin if you are engaged in the defense of freedom."

Before the Republican National Convention's windup session, Goldwater declared: "I would remind you that extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you also that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

The remark brought a swift, sharp retort from an old campaign foe. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller — the first caller to congratulate Goldwater when he was nominated Wednesday night—termed it "danger-

Marin Amateur Radio Fan Picks Up Goldwater On Air

His critics have accused Sen. Barry Goldwater of having old-fashioned political views, but the Republican presidential nominee is as modern as a moon rocket in his political campaigning techniques.

Goldwater has introduced the short-wave radio to the political wars, and Stuart H. Macdonald of 81 Alder Avenue, San Anselmo, can prove how far-roving, if not comprehensive, this method is.

Wednesday evening at about 6 p.m., while delegates at the Cow Palace convention were in the raucous process of nominating him, the Arizona senator hooked up the short-wave equipment which he had brought with him to San Francisco and started talking to other amateur operators who were transmitting at that time.

One of these was Macdonald, who connected his receiver to a tape recorder when he heard Goldwater's voice. "He talked for about ten minutes," Macdonald recalls, "to people from the Midwest and a few from California. He said how happy he was to talk with us, and he seemed like a pleasant man to talk to. He finally said that the fellows in the other room (in the senator's suite in the Mark Hopkins Hotel) were whistling for him and he had to go to some meetings."

"I picked him up again at 8 p.m., but I didn't try to talk with him in order to give other people a chance. He told us that when he returned to Arizona, he would send us cards, confirming his conversations with us."

Macdonald, an employee of the Standard Oil Company in San Francisco who has lived in San Anselmo for 14 years, has been a "ham" operator since 1933, but does not recall ever speaking to a public figure before.

Officer Kills Man In Duel After Kidnap

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — A California Highway Patrol officer killed a kidnap-robbery suspect today after the suspect had missed the officer at pointblank range.

Police Lt. Walter Bieter said Ralph Doshak, 19, a serviceman AWOL from Ft. Ord since Monday, was shot twice through the chest by CHP Officer William Bloxom, 35.

Doshak had fired at least two shots at Bloxom before his .22 caliber pistol jammed and exploded.

Doshak's two companions, Daniel Bomar, 21, of King City and Jack Crowder Jr., 20, a serviceman AWOL from Ft. Ord since July 6, are held on suspicion of kidnap and robbery.

The three suspects met Joseph Armstrong, 21, and Alvah Summers and Kaj Christensen, each 20, sailors on liberty from the USS Midway, at King City and asked the sailors for a ride to Bakersfield.

Then the suspects pulled a gun and a knife, threatened the sailors and took their wallets.

The sailors escaped in Bakersfield and flagged down police.

Court Continues Rights Test Case

ATLANTA (UPI)—A three-judge federal court panel has put over until Monday the first test of the new civil rights law brought by three Negroes who were refused service at Lester Maddox's segregated restaurant and chased away with a pistol.

The panel also has taken under advisement another suit arising from the public accommodations section of the new law—an 11 million dollar suit brought by an Atlanta motel owner who claims that the act will damage his business.

Ignacio Collision Injures Woman

Geneva Benson, 30, of San Francisco suffered a bruised forehead in a two-car collision on Highway 101 in Ignacio at 12:35 a.m. today.

Miss Benson was a passenger in a car driven by James E. Doyle, 47, of San Francisco, Doyle, 47, of San Francisco which collided with a car driven by William A. Amick Jr., 50, of Vallejo, the California Highway Patrol reported. She was examined at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

PURSE GRAB HOODLUM RETURNS?

A 61-year-old San Rafael woman was the victim last night of a purse-snatching attack similar to those which victimized a number of Marin County women a year ago.

Police said Verga A. Bufford of 177 D Street was thrown to the sidewalk at the corner of D Street and San Rafael Avenue. Her assailant then grabbed her purse, which contained $10 and two bank books, and ran from the scene.

She was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for bruises of both knees.

It was the first case reported in over a year, but closely followed the pattern of the 1962 and '63 attacks. A wave of such thefts was reported in several Marin communities during that period.

Quick Action Seen On Military Pay Hike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prompt Senate approval of fatter envelopes for nearly two million persons in the nation's armed forces appeared likely today.

If the House, as expected, agrees to details of the pending Senate bill, the pay boosts could become effective either in August or September.

The annual cost would be 207 million dollars.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Poland Abandons Laos Parley

LONDON (UPI)—Communist Poland has quietly shelved a compromise plan for a truce arrangement in embattled Laos, diplomatic sources said today.

The Poles found themselves caught between conflicting policies of the Soviet Union and Communist China, the sources said.

Poland, a member of the three-power International Control Commission (ICC) for Laos with India and Canada, suggested a compromise last month.

It proposed a meeting in a neutral city to be attended by the Soviet Union and Great Britain as the co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, plus the three ICC members and the three factions which make up the moribund coalition government in Laos.

The plan omitted Red China and the United States in an apparent attempt to facilitate a get-together. The United States agreed in principle. Red China sharply opposed the plan.

The Russians, who at first appeared agreeable, began to drag their feet when Peking vetoed the idea and insisted on nothing short of a full-dress, 14-nation ministerial conference.

'Discrimination In Reverse' Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall has suggested the Justice Department may take legal action against civil rights groups which seek to force businesses to hire Negroes.

Marshall, who heads the department's civil rights division, also said he thought the government has the power to act against "discrimination in reverse" and would do so.

In remarks to a trade association made public yesterday, Marshall added that fair employment provision of the civil rights bill "does not permit preferential treatment on the grounds of race." He added that the department's role under this section probably will be clarified when the employment commission is appointed next year.

Nuclear Watchdogs In Space

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—One of two new nuclear detection satellites policed space today and its twin was scheduled to join the cosmic watch tomorrow.

The two nuclear sentries were rocketed into preliminary orbits early yesterday along with a four and one-half pound research moonlet that hitchhiked a ride on the Atlas-Agena rocket.

About 19 hours after launch, the Air Force Satellite Control Center at Sunnyvale, Calif., triggered a small rocket aboard the first of the 493-pound Watchdog satellites to successfully kick it into its final near-circular orbit 65,500 miles above earth.

Scientists planned to try a similar complicated maneuver tomorrow afternoon with the second satellite when it loops back from its first orbit to exactly the right spot for the orbital switch.

If all goes as planned, the two satellites will end up about 130 degrees apart—nearly opposite each other—on the same orbital track. They will circle the globe about once every four days. The first satellite's orbit was inclined 37 degrees to the equator.

Equal Time Invoked

REDDING (UPI) — Goldwater forces have apparently won the first "equal time" encounter of the presidential campaign.

A satirical, anti-Goldwater folk song called "Barry's Boys" achieved such popularity on a local radio station that supporters of the Republican presidential nominee demanded—and received—equal time for an album of anti-liberal songs. The album that will be given equal time with "Barry's Boys" is a group of parodies called "Folksongs to Bug Liberals By," performed by the Goldwater Boys of Nashville, Tenn.

Turks Oust Greeks

ISTANBUL (UPI)—Seventy more Greek nationals have been expelled from Turkey, informed sources said yesterday. Since March 700 Greeks have been expelled, and it was learned that another 500 face expulsion soon. Further mass expulsions were threatened if any Turk living in Greece was harmed.

PLAN TELEVISION CAMPAIGN

Republican vice presidential candate Rep. William Miller of New York, left, and presidential nominee Sen. Barry Goldwater, center, confer with Dean Burch, who has succeeded Miller as chairman of the Republican National Committee. In contrast to Miller, who handled the job part-time at no salary, Burch will serve full time for $30,000 a year. A 36-year-old Arizona attorney was hand-picked by Goldwater for post. The three reportedly have tentatively decided that Goldwater will depend heavily on nationwide television speeches to reach the voters, while Miller will stump the country in person. (AP Wirephoto)

Nobel Prize To King?

OSLO, Norway (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been proposed for the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, the Norwegian religious magazine "Vaar Kirke" Our Church says. A group of Swedish legislators reportedly proposed King for the prize, the magazine said. The winner is chosen by the Norwegian Parliament.

French Gang War

MARSEILLES, France (UPI) — Two men were shot to death from a speeding car in Marseilles today, raising to four dead and three wounded the toll in a month-long gang war here. Eyewitnesses said the two men were shot as they were standing at a street corner. One of the dead men was found with a knife in his hand.

Actress Recovers

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Joan Crawford was expected to be released today from Cedars of Lebanon Hospital where she underwent treatment for a respiratory ailment for the second period in five weeks. Her studio, 20th Century-Fox, said the star was due to return to work next Tuesday after being fitted for a new wardrobe. The actress lost 12 pounds during her illness.

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Chung Hee Park's government said today a secret Communist youth organization had inspired the riots and demonstrations by students this spring. Dr. Sam, Girl Friend May Wed In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dr. Sam Sheppard and his fiancee today took out a marrrage license.

A corps of newsmen greeted the pair when they came to the office of Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett in the county building.

Sheppard's fiancee — Ariane Tebbenjohanns — whisked him here last night in a big yellow rented limousine.

As they went through the proceedings to get the marriage license, Sheppard had his arm around her shoulder. He appeared to be annoyed with the newsmen and told her:

"I don't know why I thought things would change."

Mrs. Tebbenjohanns had come to know Sheppard after starting correspondence with him after he was sent to prison. When he got out Thursday she came to Columbus, Ohio, to meet him.

They did not indicate immediately what their wedding plans were, but earlier they said they hoped to get married sometime today. Sheppard is due to return to prison next week. He got out on a habeas corpus writ issued by a federal judge after serving nearly 10 years for the slaying.

Less than six hours after the couple started for Chicago the Ohio attorney general's office asked for Sheppard's arrest. A hearing on that motion is scheduled for Wednesday. It seemed that Sheppard and his bride could honeymoon at least until then.

Sheppard said he worked 200 hours in prison to earn the money for the $10 license fee.

Baptism In Surf

LONG BEACH (UPI)—The largest surf of the summer here yesterday did not prevent the baptism of more than 300 persons in an immersion ceremony by Jehovah's Witnesses. Waves knocked many persons, attending a district convention of the group, off their feet as they waited in the water to be immersed by six male ministers. Seven life guards and a rescue boat stood by.

Irish Park For JFK

DUBLIN (UPI) — Four hundred acres of sloping green land will be taken over formally by the Irish minister for lands next Wednesday as a memorial park for the late President John F. Kennedy. Irish organizations in the United States pledged $100,000 as a start to financing the memorial, which is in County Wexford, near the Kennedy ancestral home at Dunganstown.

2 Stolen Bikes Are Recovered

Thanks to three other boys and the San Rafael police, two San Rafael youths got their stolen bicycles back Thursday before they even reported them missing.

At 4:30 p.m., three boys told Patrolman Henry W. Ingwersen they had seen two others take bikes from near the San Rafael High School swimming pool. They knew the bikes belonged to someone else, the informants said.

Ingwersen found the miscreants—both from San Francisco—riding the stolen cycles toward Highway 101 on Francisco Boulevard. He took them to the county juvenile hall.

About 5 p.m., James Ragghianti of 1360 Grand Avenue and Paul Ramponi of 85 Rose Street emerged from swimming in the high school pool to discover their bicycles had vanished. They went to police headquarters to report the theft — and there were the bikes waiting for them.

Woman's Body Found

RICHMOND (UPI) — The body of an unidentified woman, about 30, was found Thursday floating off the 26th Street breakwater. A deputy coroner estimated the body had been immersed two to three weeks.

ous, irresponsible and frightening."

Charles H. Percy, the GOP candidate for governor of Illinois, called for an explanation from the nominee.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., generally considered "Mr. Republican" in New England, even hedged when asked whether he would support Goldwater.

Voting officials in New England reported that many Republicans switched to democratic affiliations following the Goldwater victory.

And the New York Times said today former President Dwight Eisenhower let Senator Goldwater know "in no uncertain terms" that he would support the Republican ticket only if the presidential nominee makes an "acceptable" public explanation of his extremism statement.

The Times said that Eisenhower feels the statement conjures up a philosophy that the end justifies the means and that vigilantes and nightriders are acceptable if their purpose is the "defense of liberty" or the "pursuit of justice."

The Times said that when Goldwater paid a "courtesy call" on Eisenhower at his San Francisco hotel suite yesterday the former President did not express himself in precisely these words but his meaning was clear.

Dean Burch, swiftly approved by the GOP National Committee as Goldwater's choice to take over its reins, said the senator had told Eisenhower he was "rather extremist" when as a general he launched the Allied invasion of Europe in 1944.

Snapping back at Rockefeller, Goldwater said several American presidents — George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt—took what he considers extreme steps "when defending our freedoms."

"I would like the governor, for my benefit and for the benefit of the party and the people of America, to put down in writing his definition of extremism," Goldwater said.

Goldwater told a reporter "extremism in politics is either fascism on one side or communism on the other."

That definition did not mesh with the context of his acceptance address.

When a reporter asked him about it in Phoenix, Goldwater replied, "You read the speech and if you can't understand it you don't deserve to be a reporter."

Still other top Republicans, such as Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Senate minority leader Everett M. Dirksen, also had questions regarding the senator's position on extremism.

Mrs. Smith, first woman in either major party ever nominated for the presidency, indirectly opposed Goldwater following an address before the Commonwealth Club yesterday.

Asked for her views on extremism, she answered: "I don't like extremists, I call myself a moderate."

"I feel that the American people cannot be helped by anyone on the extreme right or the extreme left."

Dirksen, speaking on a radio interview on his return to Chicago, said that he thought Goldwater's statement needed "clarification."

In England, Woodrow Wyatt, member of Parliament for the opposition Labor Party, said Goldwater "could well be the West's Mao Tse-Tung," referring to Red China's rocket-rattling chairman.

The Independent Times of London said Goldwater's declaration that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice" summed up "the curious blend of naivety, ruthlessness and misapplied idealism that has now been adopted as the philosophy of the American Republican party."

Tiburon's Temporary Aide Given Yet Another Hat

Warren Schmid, Tiburon's temporary city administrator, added a new title to his list this week.

Schmid, in the process of changing jobs, was officially appointed executive director of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments in Berkeley Thursday night.

He is also executive director of the Institute of Local Self-Government which has offices in the same building. He has worked for some time with the present director Wilber E. Smith.

Schmid was selected as city administrator June 15 and works for the new city on an hourly part-time basis. Councilmen plan to discuss selection of a permanent city administrator Monday night.

"I assume he will honor his commitment to us until Aug. 15" said Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge. The mayor stressed that the commitment was verbal only.

Schmid could not be reached in Berkeley for comment, but a spokesman for ABAG said the new position would not interfere with his duties at Tiburon.

Still another job

The spokesman said Schmid will leave his new position in Washington D.C. August 7, but Schmid will not officially begin at ABAG until Aug. 15.

available units of the San Rafael Police Department also sped to assist.

At the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge turnoff, police said, the car suddenly spun around, shot across the center barrier, somersaulted in the air and crashed into the Williams vehicle.

Padilla, who was thrown from the car, was found about 30 feet away in a ditch. Reimoneng ran from the scene, but was caught by deputies and passers-by in a nearby field.

Schroeder said Reimoneng was highly intoxicated when he was taken into custody. At the hospital, Padilla admitted he had been drinking heavily earlier in the evening.

The eight tires were found in the trunk of the wrecked Chevrolet and were returned to the service station.

Novato police praised personnel of the communications center, the other officers who aided in the chase—and Mrs. Seamons.

Body In Bay Believed Bridge Jumper

The body of an Oakland woman, who apparently jumped from the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge July 9, was found floating in the Richmond Harbor yesterday.

The Contra Costa County Coroner's office identified her as Margaret Masako Takaesu, 49, whose purse and identification papers were found in an abandoned car on the Marin County side of the bridge July 9.

Mrs. Takaesu had been visiting her brother, Harold H. Itokaza, at 923 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda, and had borrowed his car to drive back to Oakland.

Mrs. Takaesu was the second suicide victim from the bridge this year, and the fourth in the bridge's history.

was than King "was in possession of stolen goods." He added that the alleged fact that King did register under the name of Corbett in a Hawaii hotel following the murder is the best evidence that King not only didn't participate in the slaying, but was unaware of it.

"Totally unrealistic," he called any other interpretation. "It is quite possible that Robert Jones is involved, but not my client.

Bales commented that if the defense in closing arguments "implied one of the two of these men (defendants) was not involved, it's hogwash," They were "cohorts" throughout the events of armed robbery and murder, he said.

Marin Women

Scouting—A Family Tradition

Mrs. James D. Adams of San Rafael joined the Girl Scouts in 1939 as a member of the troop committee of Ross' newly formed Troop 1. In doing so she began a family tradition that is going strong after 25 years and three generations.

Mrs. Adams worked with Troop 1, of which her oldest daughter Katy soon became a member, for four years. In 1943 her husband, then a lieutenant commander in the Navy, was called to Washington, D.C. Kay Adams worked in Scouting there until he was sent overseas. She and their five children moved to her family's home in Winnetka, Ill., where she was training chairman on the Girl Scout board.

AFTER THE WAR, the family returned to Marin County, where they've lived ever since. Kay's continued activity in Scouting led in 1949 to a term as president of the board of the Girl Scouts Marin County Council.

IN 1956, SHE was selected to go to the Edith Macy Training School in Pleasantville, N.Y., for a 12-day international gathering. Here she met other adult Scouts from all over the world. She came home breathless: "Well, I did some talking, too. And it was such an exciting experience! I still count many of the women I met there among my closest friends — friends I would never have made without the Girl Scouts."

Upon her return, she became the Marin Council's Senior advisory chairman, a position she held until 1960. Now she is a member-at-large on the board of the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council and International Hostess, entertaining visiting Girl Scouts and Guides from all over the world.

MRS. JAMES D. ADAMS of San Rafael, a Girl Scout for 25 years, displays her Japanese souvenirs sent by her daughter, Mrs. Thorne Butler. Mrs. Butler and her daughter, Katy Anne are both active in Scouting in Japan. Katy Anne is performing a Japanese tea ceremony for her family. The doll that Mrs. Adams is holding is a Japanese Girl Scout. (Independent-Journal photo)

THE ADAMS FAMILY tradition of Scouting extends to Jim Adams, who was president of Marin's Boy Scout Council and is still on its board, and down through their children. Douglass and the Rev. Robert Adams were both Boy Scouts. The Adams' daughters, Mrs. Hebert Mills of Berkeley, Mrs. Gary Tucker of San Rafael and Mrs. Thorne Butler of Japan, were all Girl Scouts. The Adams have 16 grandchildren, three of whom are already in Scouting. The others aren't old enough yet.

HER DAUGHTER, Katy Adams Butler, is active in international Scouting, too. Katy's husband Thorne, a pathologist, was sent to Japan in 1960 by the Air Force. Katy joined TOFS (Troops on Foreign Soil), a branch of the Girl Scouts of the USA which provides Scouting for the families of American servicemen abroad. In 1963, she was a staff member at the Asian Conference of Girl Scouts, a Far Eastern version of Round-Up.

IN 1963 KATY was made International Commissioner for the Far East branch of TOFS. She is also assistant troop leader of a junior troop, since her daughter Katy Anne, an eager third-generation Scout, just was graduated from Brownie to Junior.

Picnic Time In San Geronimo Valley

IT WILL BE a family day for members and guests of the San Geronimo Valley Country Club tomorrow when they gather for a picnic during the afternoon at the club site, centering in the picnic area between the 16th green and 17th tee. . . . A hole-in-one contest appropriately will start the proceedings at noon, followed by picnic time, and a softball contest for the younger set.

AFTER SIX YEARS in Marin Dr. and Mrs. D. J. McGonigle of Greenbrae and their children, Mary, Kathy, Dee, Mike and Anne, will leave July 31 to live in Spokane, Wash., where Dr. McGonigle will practice medicine. The family in two cars will drive to Montana, where Dr. and Mrs. McGonigle formerly lived, and leave the children until they find a home in Spokane. Moving to their former Greenbrae house will be the Bill Powells and their three children from San Francisco.

WHEN MARIN Pi Phis and their families had a picnic on Sunday at the Perry Halls' home at Drake's Beach, the sun refused to shine and Mrs. Eugene Robinson of San Anselmo, a 50 year member of the group, found herself the sole ocean swimmer of the 70 guests.

IN MILL VALLEY for two months are Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Franklin of Morristown, N.J., and their three children, Christina, Stephen and John Seymour. Mrs. Franklin is the daughter of the Kent O. Seymours of Mill Valley, for whom this is the first time they have seen their newest grandchild, John Seymour, born May 31. The Franklins are staying in the Mill Valley home of the William Flemings, who are at Lake Tahoe. Mrs. Seymour will entertain for her daughter at the first Northgate Luncheon Wednesday at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Guests will be Mesdames E. M. Shelton, Wallace Scott, Christian Blom and Fred Galbreath.

THE 32 GREAT-GRANDCHILDREN of Mrs. H. E. Miller of Corte Madera will attend a picnic tomorrow at Samuel Taylor Park. The family, 58 children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren are getting together for the first time all in one place. Mrs. Miller, 77 years of age and the wife of Sgt. E. Thomas.

SUSAN ANN RICE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton K. Rice of San Rafael, acted as a hostess at the Sir Francis Drake Hotel during the GOP convention.

DR. AND MRS. J. Alfred Rider have as their house guests this week Dr. Rider's brother, Dale Rider, and his wife and daughter, Martha from Dalton, Ill.

MR. AND MRS. Leo Schwab of San Rafael will leave on Monday for a four weeks trip to Switzerland, where they will visit his relatives. While abroad they will tour Denmark and Ireland. Highlights of their trip will include the Exposition in Lausanne, Lucarno and the Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen.

MR. AND MRS. Wint F. Saint will give a dinner party tonight for several Sausalito couples. They are Messrs. and Mesdames George Chapman, Earl G. Thompson and V. H. Petrie. Mrs. Saint reports that the most fun they have had recently was the swimming party last Sunday at the home of the president of the St. Francis Dog Training Club, Mrs. Claire Lippert of Boulder Creek. The Saints little Papillon dog, Rajah, a champion utility dog, won a prize. Highlight of the afternoon was a completely unofficial but hilarious contest for the 33 members' dogs. Prizes were offered in a long list of categories, such as dog with the longest eyelashes, longest ears, longest tail, curliest curls, fanciest hat, best dressed male and best dressed female. Rajah won first prize for the best dressed male dog parading around the pool in a French sailor suit made for him by Mrs. Saint.

MRS. S. C. STAPP is planning a party, but hasn't decided details, honoring Mrs. George Reed of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who will arrive Sunday. She is driving up from Whittier, Calif., with her sister and brother-in-law. She and Mrs. Stapp were longtime friends when they both lived in Cleveland, Ohio.

ROMAN SNUB GIVEN THE 'CASUALS'

ROME (UPI) — Teen-agers in their slacks, shorts and "casuals" were given the Roman snub in the last of the eternal city's fall-winter high fasion showings.

Eleonora Garnet's collection marked the end of the Roman half of the Italian high fashion showings for international buyers and press.

The scene now shifts to Florence and six days of fashion shows in the Pitti Palace.

GARNETT is a designer who designs for grown-up women. She says that there is no point in slanting high fashion to the teen-agers, since they don't need it in the first place and can't afford it in the second.

The result of this fashion philosophy is a flatteringly elegant collection.

Garnett's suits have the longer jackets that have emerged as one of the fashion dictates of the Roman collections.

HEMLINES fell slightly below the knee and the figure was gently moulded.

Perfume Not For Saving

Perfume's not for saving . . . it's for wearing every day, not just on those special "dress-up" occasions. Of course, you wouldn't wear the same perfume to the supermarket that you wear to a party. That's why you shouldn't limit yourself to just one fragrance. So how about adding to your perfume collection right now.

WHAT KIND of scent to buy? Well, it depends on when you're going to wear it. The fresh, delicate fragrances are best for daytime wear. And the "headier" more sophisticated fragrances are beautiful at night. If you really want to splurge . . . choose a couple of different perfumes to match your daytime moods . . . and one or two little bottles of the classic imported fragrances . . . for evening.

When you start out on your shopping spree . . . don't try on too many perfumes at one time. Just test a few by putting a drop on the inside of your wrist. Fragrances are different on your skin than they are in the bottle. That's why you should always "try them on" . . . rather than just whiff them in the bottle.

Perfume, as you know is a very powerful persuader. Just a little goes a long way. So don't overdo it. Apply a few drops to the temples, base of throat, inside the wrists.

If you have trouble opening a new bottle of perfume, peel off the wrapper around the neck of the bottle, cut the cords, and gently twist the stopper. If that doesn't work—tap gently with another glass bottle.

Pamper your perfume since it will be a part of you. Be careful about exposing open bottles to strong light. It can change the quality of the fragrance. Glass stoppers are grooved to fit the bottle. Be sure you twist the stopper in firmly to prevent evaporation. Colognes, dusting powder, and scented soaps are delights to use, but they should be in the same scent as the perfume you're wearing. Matching not mixing makes the most of your perfume.

The Giant Zipper

Paris, which likes to be obstinate, has embraced the giant zipper just as American designers here are settling down happily with the invisible zipper that tucks unobtrusively into seams and darts. Along with closing up coats, the rugged steel teeth of the French zippers keep pants, skirts and culottes from coming to a parting of the ways.

Summertime Means More Fabric Care

Summer, "when the living is easy," is actually the time when more care than ever is required for washables. With an increased emphasis on outdoor living and varied activities, clothing seems to pick up more stains and receive harder wear during summer months.

Stains resulting from catsup, mustard, berries, and grass, are difficult to remove once they've become "set" in the fabric. Such stains should be rinsed immediately. There are many stains and conditions which require special treatment and improper handling can make the situation worse. Such difficult stains could be cared for by a fabric care expert.

Particularly during the summer, clothing should be laundered frequently and soon after wearing to avoid fabric damage or staining. This also holds true for wash and wear garments. Hand washing at low temperatures is usually not enough to remove body oils, soils and perspiration from minimum care articles. Thorough laundering is required or these garments may become gray or discolored.

An added precaution given for summer care of clothes is to avoid prolonged exposure to the sun, which may fade and gradually weaken some fabrics.

Draw-String Dress Requires Caution When Button-Holing

By EUNICE FARMER

Help! I have an emergency. I made a drawstring dress that has two buttonholes in the front for the belt to come through the casing. After completing it, I found it is too long-waisted. It looks beautiful hanging on a hanger — but on me, hopeless. Mrs. A.M.

Dear Mrs. A.M.:

For the benefit of all of you who will have this type of pattern, be sure to check the placing of these buttonholes before you make them. Try your dress on, tie a belt very tightly around the waist, push up the amount of ease, or blouson you would like, and mark the correct place for the buttonholes.

For you, Mrs. A.M., I can only suggest that you make a tuck in your bodice so that the seam will be exactly on the top edge of the buttonhole. When your casing is made and the drawstring inserted, I'm sure it won't be noticeable, also, because of the blouson styling of this type of dress, I don't think it will be too bulky at the waistline. Good luck!

Is 100 per cent purse Irish linen ever made in other than 36 inch widths? Mrs. D. S.

Dear Mrs. D.S.:

Irish linen made for the home sewer is always 36 inches to my knowledge. Pure linen used for tablecloths is usually 50 inches wide. Also, I have seen linen drapery fabric that is 50 inches wide. Many times you can purchase fabric that has been left over from a manufacturer. This width will vary also, in this case, wider fabric is more economical in cutting many garments.

One last word on linen for the home sewer: If you intend washing your garment instead of having it cleaned, especially white, when you would be using hot water, be sure to pre-shrink your linen first. Place it in hot water, dry and then press.

Tailor Trix Winner: "To avoid bulk on shoulders, particularly when working with heavy coatings and suitings, incorporate back and front facings at the shoulder lines, pinning pattern pieces together through the seamlines. Add a 5/8 inch seam allowance at the center back where the new joining will be.

"Cut fronts and facings in one piece to get rid of a bulky seam on a coat or jacket front (if it doesn't have lapels). Just remember to be extra careful that the center front is on the exact straight of goods or grainline."

Mrs. Darrell Sibley, Webster Park, Spring Valley, Ill., is this week's winner of a tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Whenever I have a blouse or dress with a "V" neckline, I have trouble making the interfacing and facing lay flat at the point of the "V." I either have a pucker, or else the seam tears into a hole. Miss B. R.

Dear Miss B. R.

When you machine stitch to the point of the "V" take one stitch across the "V" and then stitch back up and finish neckline. When you have finished, shorten the machine stitch, and reinforce the "V" by beginning ½ inch from the "V," take your stitch straight across the point, and then stitch ½ inch further on the previous stitching line. You may now clip to the last stitch with confidence. It will make the facing lay flat and also, by reinforcing, will not pull out at the point.

Ah, Those Linings

Fur coats for kids are a little pretentious, even for those whose Dads own most of the town. Ah, but fur linings, that's another thing. Next to their comfort blankets, wee ones like the soft feel of fur pelts best of all. And since small pieces of inexpensive skins may be utilized inside, Dad likes it because it is comparatively cheap. Real fur in white lamb or kit fox can be had for less than $100 and fake fur of a dozen varieties for half of that.

Sheepskin Race Wolfs Up The Family Finances

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Parents whose son or daughter has won a scholarship can heave a sigh that they will get some financial help in putting their offspring into the sheepskin race.

But they will be disappointed if they think the scholarship alone erases financial fidgets over college.

Even with scholarship help, parents almost always must contribtue a major share of the cost of the bachelor's degree.

This reminder comes from James L. Yeager, president of Tuition Plan of New Hampshire, Inc., which finances tuition and fees on the installment plan at any approved school or college.

Valley Forge Ready For Another Youth Gathering

VALLEY FORGE, PA. — Nothing was left undone in the way of preparations for the 1964 Jamboree of the American Boy Scouts.

A week before these young Americans were due to converge here from all parts of the nation, this historic place was a beehive of preparatory activities.

Army-style tents were springing up at designated areas according to grand plan.

An Army field hospital was being set up to care for the injuries and illnesses inevitable in such a huge gathering of human beings.

Field kitchens, tent-dining halls, recreation areas, water supply and distributing facilities were being prepared. Even field toilet facilities were under construction.

All was in readiness for the care and feeding of the cream of American boys.

But it was a study in contrast.

ON THE NIGHT OF December 19, 1777, the cream of another generation of young Americans arrived here, faltering over the frozen ridge, staggering from fatigue.

The only preparation for the arrival of Gen. George Washington's men was the hasty military survey one day previously to designate areas for bivouac and for defense. Gen. Washington himself had drawn specifications for approximately 900 log huts his young Americans would have to build for themselves for protection against the elements that bitter winter. But not till after they arrived.

Washington's men arrived in disorder, retreating from military disaster. They could no longer be accurately described as an Army. In the snowy weather, many with legs naked, feet bare and all half starved, they required more than a week to move 15 miles to Valley Forge.

Only 11,000 arrived at Valley Forge and 3,000 of those were physically unfit for duty.

IT WAS UNQUESTIONABLY the darkest day of the American Revolution.

But it was also here at this hallowed spot that Washington and his rag-tag troops became an army again. By Christmas, most but not all were under shelter. Washington and his generals combed the countryside for food and clothing for the freezing, starving troops.

Not until the middle of January were all adequately housed.

In the months that followed, the Prussian drillmaster, Gen. Von Steuben, welded them into an army—perhaps really for the first time.

By Spring they were trained and equipped to begin operations. By June they were able to administer a stinging defeat to the British at Monmouth and from there to go on to victory.

ON THESE SACRED acres a determined Washington and his faithful young Americans lifted themselves from the depths of defeat, acquiring the training, the equipment and the moral courage and strength to win the ultimate victory.

Let us hope that the extensive preparations for the Boy Scouts don't make them so comfortable that they miss the opportunity that is so abundant here to draw inspiration to face our nation's problems successfully — whatever those problems may be in their lifetimes.

CONCORD, MASS.—Here was fired the shot heard round the world that day in 1775. Every American grammar school youngster learns about the meeting of the British Redcoats and the colonial Minutemen on the Concord bridge.

Each year thousands of Americans now visit this historic site.

And they find it has a contemporary significance they were not aware of before their visit.

The little souvenir and refreshment stand at the foot of the bridge still sells full-sized Hershey bars for a nickel—probably the only place in the nation not charging 10 or 15 cents.

And we suspect that the tight-fisted Yankees who fell here in the first skirmish of the Revolution—lying now in their graves nearby—take some satisfaction in this.

MONTREAL, QUEBEC—If you journey to this French Canadian province by auto via New England, you see the American Revolution in a broader perspective than ever before.

At Lexington and Concord in Massachusetts, you come face to face with the ghosts of the heroic Minutemen; plain citizens who were fed up with the high-handed actions of the Royal British government and—untrained, undisciplined, unequipped and unsupplied—stood up to the professionals of the King's army and fought it out on the battlefield.

In Boston—if you are genius enough to find your way around Boston's tangled mess of short, narrow streets at odd angles—you can visit Paul Revere's house, the Old North Church were the light was shown in the steeple signalling the approach of the British soldiers, and the site of the Boston tea party that preceded the Revolution.

Scattered everywhere in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont are battlefields, statues, monuments, plaques and the like which reinforce the impressions you already have from grammar school history class, that those revolutionaries were a brave, courageous and heroic lot.

THEN YOU CROSS into the Province of Quebec.

It is bilingual with French predominating, and you are reminded that much of what is Canada and U.S.A. today was once held and colonized by the French.

And you recall that the American-British colonists assisted the British Monarch's royal army in driving the French from this continent.

Washington himself was among the colonists who got his first military experience fighting in the English King's uniform against the French and their Indian allies.

And you ask yourself, "Was it not in this contest that the colonists first realized that it was possible to drive one more foreign power out of the area?"

AS YOU WANDER the by-ways of Quebec and neighboring Ontario Province you come across plaques and monuments honoring and revering "loyalists" born in one of the 13 rebel colonies.

These men remained loyal to the British in the Revolution. They donned the King's uniform and fought loyally to put down the revolution.

After the revolution they moved to "loyal" colonies in Canada to start life anew. Many succeeded eminently. Their memories are now honored and revered.

IT IS POSSIBLE for an American to visit the shrines of the Confederacy in the South and develop considerable respect for Gen. Lee and his "rebel" forces. They were sincere, dedicated men giving their all for a cause they believed in.

It is possible, too, for an American to visit the "loyalist" shrines scattered over Quebec and Ontario and to develop considerable respect for this lesser known (in the United States) group who likewise risked their lives for a cause they, too, thought just.

TOWERING O'ER WRECKS OF TIME

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

ONE TRIP TOO MANY FOR OLD JALOPY

The family car just seemed to disintegrate one winter's night in Decatur, Illinois.

As the family was driving home through heavy snow drifts, the motor overheated and the battery ran down.

They reached a service station and recharged the battery. But the clamp slipped off the water hose and out poured the anti-freeze.

Just as they reached home, the car had run out of gas. But that wasn't the end. One of the tires went flat. So after getting some fuel, the harassed couple headed back to the filling station. After having the tire fixed, all seemed to be under control. But on the way home, the clamp on the water hose went again and a loud snap announced that the fan belt had broken.

There are days when everything seems to be falling apart, although seldom in such a consistent fashion as this dilapidated auto. Patience, good humor and a clear view of your heavenly goal are needed to pull you through.

Never fail to help others through their rough days!

"Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need." (Hebrews 4:16)

Fill me with the firmness I need, O Jesus, when things go wrong.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Fire Scene Not Cheap Hostelry

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I wish to comment and also offer a bit of correction upon the article in the July 13 Independent-Journal, re: The fire at the city owned property at 1404 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael in which my name is mentioned as a former owner.

I am not qualified to criticize the article upon its historical background when the house was a San Rafael show place, but I do very much object to the statement at the end — "a cheap rooming house." During our many years of ownership the house was not a rooming house—it consisted of several individual partments occupied by not rich, but respectable people. Most of them elderly or retired. Many of whom have resided there happily for 20 to 30 years.

I have received several protests by these former tenants who object strenuously to the reference "cheap." I would suggest that your paper correct the immaturity of the writer of the article in regard to self-supporting, clean elderly people living on a modest income being referred to as "cheap." It also is most unfair in implying that the former owner maintained a "cheap" establishment. Please be assured that although the rent was low, the accommodations were well kept and that neither the owner nor the tenants were or are now of a cheap caliber.

His Sizeup Of GOP Convention

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to point the free thinking people of Marin County toward the future. The recent convention in San Francisco has been proved to me that the John Birch Society has increased its influence into controlling positions in the Republican Party. This influence has forced me to leave the Republican Party and the party of my parents. California Republicans have voted to support Senator Goldwater, and this has been seconded by the convention as a whole.

The tactics used by many Californians in this campaign have frieghtened me. Terrorism, threats, intimidations and slander have been used to force the conservative wing into power. With this swing of power, elements of racism and anarchy have been given the aura of respectability.

The future I look to is to be found in the liberal wing of the Democratic Party. It is possible that this election will open to everyone the truth of what is in reality a four party coalition government which is as unstable as that of France, and that can only be held together by a dictator.

All thinking Americans should band together to make a realistic division of American Politics along the true lines of liberal and conservative. In spite of all the claims to the opposite, the issues are what should be done, and not how. The hows are confirmed in our Constitution. The only thing that our Constitution does not tell us is what we are to do in the face of the great political crises of our time.

Let us not be afraid of the future. Let us rather be afraid that the structures of the past which have served us well now limit us to false choices and unreal divisions of philosophy. With only one thing do I agree in Goldwater's statements. I agree that we need a real choice along meaningful conservative and liberal lines.

This Year's GOP Campaign To Be Unlike Those Of Previous Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Republican Party under conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater now begins a presidential campaign that is unique in the 20th century and will be remembered for generations.

THE FOUR-DAY convention that made Goldwater the party's candidate against the Democrats' President Lyndon B. Johnson was dull because his selection was a foregone conclusion. But the implications are profound.

This 1964 campaign will be vastly different from the kind the Republicans have waged for decades. Previous ones hardly did more than urge restraint on the expansion of federal power and programs.

But Goldwater wants to return to some aspects of the past. In his acceptance speech Thursday night he said "we must and we shall return to the proven ways—not only because they are old but because they are true."

FOR EXAMPLE: Although Democrats and Republicans agreed in the Employment Act of 1946 that the government has a responsibility for the general welfare, Goldwater has said it must withdraw from social welfare programs.

He did not necessarily budge from that position Thursday night when he said, "we must assure a society here which, while never abandoning the needy or forsaking the helpless, nurtures incentives and opportunities for the creative and the productive."

AND, AS HE has said before, he would diminish both the role and the power of the federal government. He said:

"We Republicans define government's role, where needed, at many levels, preferably the one closets to the people involved: Our towns and cities, then our counties and states, and only then the national government.

"That is the ladder of liberty built by decentralized power. On it also we must have balance between branches of government on every level."

NEVER ONCE in his speech did he say a word about what he thinks should be done on civil rights.

It is hard to believe this will not be one of the roughest campaigns in this century—perhaps the toughest.

Less than two weeks ago Goldwater said one of the main issues of the campaign would be the "scandal hanging over the White House."

Two nights ago, discussing Johnson's role in civil rights, Goldwater called him a faker and a phony.

THURSDAY NIGHT he said "our people have been given bread and circuses, spectacles and even scandals." And he talked of "corruption in our highest offices."

At this moment it is impossible to know how much appeal Goldwater will have to the masses of voters, or even to liberal Republicans, although it seems clear he will need all the Republican support he can get.

If he loses, particularly if he loses badly, Republican power in this country will probably be shattered for years. If he wins, the country will have to reverse its course and take a sharp turn to the right.

THEN A WHOLE new evaluation of the government's role at home and its foreign policies would begin.

In the past, at least back to 1940, the two parties have looked pretty much like twins, except for semantic hair-splitting on issues that looked more synthetic than real.

Thus for years voters have not been given a clear choice between liberal and highly conservative parties.

They'll get that choice this year.

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Barry Will Accept Offer For Briefings

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

SAN FRANCISCO — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater is accepting those intelligence briefings offered by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

When they were originally made available to Goldwater some months ago, he declined. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, then his leading rival for GOP standard bearer, accepted and had a series of classified briefings.

Now that Goldwater is his party's chosen candidate for the White House, he has decided to receive these important secret briefings on foreign and defense developments.

THE WHITE HOUSE is being informed of this, and an announcement will shortly be forthcoming of the assignment of a senior Central Intelligence Agency official to brief Goldwater during the election campaign.

Advisers stressed that a presidential candidate "can't have too much information about what is transpiring, especially if he is running against an incumbent president." As a graphic case in point they cited what happened in the 1962 congressional election.

In that contest, in which the Democrats won seats in both the Senate and House, the Republicans were caught by surprise several weeks before the balloting by the war-threatening Cuban missile crisis—which had definite impact on the voting.

KITCHEL AND HESS vigorously warned against a repetition of this.

Advisers also recalled the effective use the late President Kennedy made in the 1960 campaign of what he learned from the briefings arranged for him by President Eisenhower. This intelligence was of particular value to Kennedy in his historic televised debates with Vice President Nixon.

This factor particularly carried much weight with Goldwater in persuading him to change his mind about accepting the confidential briefings.

A TIME-BOMB is tucked away in the new GOP platform that is certain to explode with a loud bang during the campaign.

This unnoticed political dynamite is the plank titled "Trusting Ourselves and Our Friends," as follows:

"Secrecy in foreign policy must be at a minimum, public understanding at a maximum. Our own citizens, rather than those of other nations, should be accorded primary trust. Consultation with our allies should take precedence over direct negotiations with Communist powers. The bypassing of our allies has contributed greatly to the shattering of free world unity and to the loss of free world continuity in opposing Communism."

Written into the platform at the personal request of Goldwater, the plank will be used by him as a mandate to demand that President Johnson make public the series of secret letters he has exchanged with Premier Khrushchev and other Communist leaders.

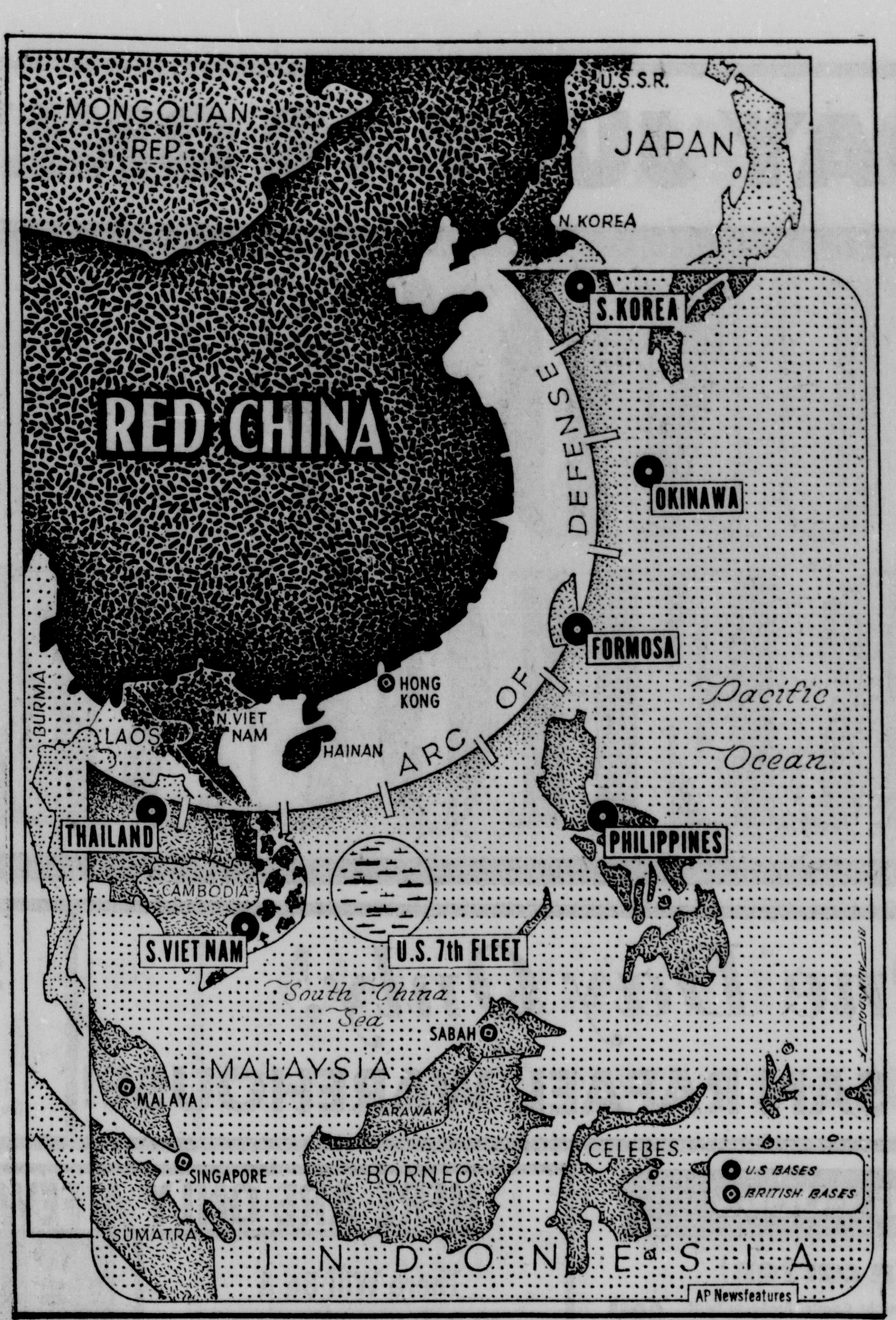
From sources deemed authoritative by Goldwater, he is convinced there are at least 16 such letters, two dealing with a disarmament proposal still undisclosed in the U.S.

The Country Parson

"Some of our problems don't need much done for them except to be aired well—so they can evaporate."

10 YEARS AGO

The Marin County Federation of Commuter Clubs was $2,000 in the hole on payments for its fight against Pacific Greyhound Lines' proposal to raise commuter fares.



Goldwater A Publicist's Dream

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Not every politician is foresighted enough to be born in a log cabin. The next best thing, apparently, is to be the grandson of an immigrant peddler who once or twice went broke but never gave up.

Barry Goldwater started that way and now look at him. At once Goldwater qualifies not only as millionaire merchant but also as jet pilot, author, gadgeteer, general, jazz saxophonist, photographer, outdoorsman, radio ham, Senator, and Republican candidate for President of the United States.

Where other White House contenders traditionally are photographed looking ridiculous in the headress of Indian chiefs, Goldwater no doubt will be pictured performing the ritual dance of Hopi and Navajo tribes, and very likely doing it well.

The man overwhelmingly picked by the GOP National Convention as the party's 1964 standard bearer is handsome and sun-tanned. On looks, he could easily pass for a professional golfer, though his game lately has suffered from infrequent practice.

Barry Goldwater emerges clearly as a man of many parts, and some of those parts have earned him conflicting acclaim as either the white knight of salvation, the voice of a ring-wing conspiracy, or merely a shallow thinker with easy answers to insoluble problems.

What he calls himself is a right-wing conservative. He thinks that way and he votes that way. He also talks that way, and despite the fact neither friend nor foe reacts mildly to Goldwater's political stands, just about everybody who knows him calls him one of the world's nicer guys.

If he is not much of a reader or thinker, as his detractors contend, that is not hard to understand. He works hard at his numerous jobs and in his spare time lives the life of a hobbyist's dream.

That is to say he did until Wednesday night. Between now and Nov. 3 he will be giving President Lyndon B. Johnson most of his undivided attention. For a starter he already has called Johnson a phony and a political faker.

Yet on Tuesday, while the delegates were getting around to doing what everybody knew from the start they would do, Goldwater was installing an amateur transmitter in his Nob Hill hotel suite and exchanging chit chat with other hams over the world.

As Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois was at pains to advise the convention, in the nominating speech that touched off uproarious acclaim for Goldwater, Barry was the first of three children born to a Jewish merchant whose father came to the United States from Europe seeking his fortune in the California Gold Rush.

The family, after several false starts finally settled in Arizona. The general store they managed to buy in La Paz eventually developed into a retail empire and Arizona landmark.

Barry as a boy learned to box and became a top athlete at Phoenix Union High School. He became a radio operator at age 13 and his K7UGA signature is known to hundreds of hams around the world.

At hitting the books Barry never was much. He flunked a couple of courses in high school, spent one year in college, and decided the University of Arizona wasn't for him.

At age 20 he went to work in the family store. He soon developed a flair as a salesman. Last night he said he hoped his pitch to the country would go over better than Johnson's.

The man who now wants to be president helped, as recently as Harry Truman's regime, to develop a fast-moving clothing item comprising men's underwear decorated with red outsize ants. He sent a pair to Truman along with a note advising the President to "get used to having ants in your pants."

Barry had a way with the girls and in particular with Peggy Johnson, a beauty from Muncie, Ind., then getting the romantic treatment from G. Mennen Williams.

Williams' soft soap couldn't match Goldwater's soft sell, and at the wedding in 1934 Barry was the groom while "Soapy" Williams came as a guest.

The Goldwaters had four children, who now have four of their own. They are handsome, photograph well, and look like the All-American family.

They built and maintain a beautiful hill-top home outside Phoenix where the U. S. flag is raised and lowered automatically at sunrise and dusk and a VHF radio is kept tuned to Phoenix airport control.

Goldwater's expert photographs for a time were regular features of Southwestern magazines. He has written for magazines and has published books on his political beliefs.

In general, these add up to the proposition that less government is better than more, and that the United States ought to stand stiffer in its dealings with communist nations. These views have made him the darling of conservative voters and a principal villain in the eyes of the liberal bloc.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER
Heads GOP effort

He held those views when elected to the Senate in 1952, and, although he has changed his mind on specifics, he hasn't backed up an inch on general principles.

A year ago all the "experts" said Goldwater would never get a shot at the presidency. Between mouthfuls of crow some of these "experts" now insist he hasn't a chance to win the election.

On one thing you can bet. If Johnson is to win in November he will have to do it on issues. He can't make people think Goldwater is not a likeable guy.

U.S. Armed Force Stretches Farther

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press Writer

The long arc of U.S. military bases around the eastern sea perimeter of Red China is now being lengthened to curve through South Vietnam and Thailand.

This arc begins in Korea and stretches through Okinawa, Japan, Formosa and the Philippines to the air base of Udon in Thailand.

It embraces the newest jet base in South Vietnam at Danang, 350 miles north of Siagon. By jet, this is less than 30 minutes from the Chinese border across North Vietnam.

The Danang base ties in with the Air Force bases at Ton Son Nhut Nhatrang and Bien Hoa and the Udon base in Thailand just across the Mekong River southeast of Vientiane in Loas.

The powerful Seventh Fleet roams the South China Sea off Vietnam and southern China. It is in itself a floating airfield from which jets are capable of striking from almost any point along China's coast.

On Okinawa alone is a Strategic Air Command bomber base and an understrength Marine Division.

There are two army divisions and a number of jet bases in Korea.

The Chinese Nationalists operate several jet bases on Formosa which are used by U.S. planes.

Further, as a backup staging base, there is Clark Field in the Philippines near Manila.

Additionally, the British operate four military bases in the Far East — the only European power to do so.

The British have Navy and air facilities at Singapore, and air field in Sabah, another Royal Air Force facility near Kuala Lampur in Malaya and some army and air units at Hong Kong.

The U.S. bases in Southeast Asia are guarded by a long range radar station atop the 2,000 foot Monkey Mountain near Danang. This scans the skies over North Vietnam and the seaward approaches for the presence of Chinese or North Vietnamese aircraft.

It is from the Danang base that Air Force F100 jets reportedly have left to make strafing and bombing runs over Communist positions in Laos.

The base at Udon apparently is used mostly for piston engine, U.S. made T28 fighter bombers. One report said there were 10 such aircraft at Udon — five with Laotian markings and five unmarked.

It was at Udon that the United States began a buildup in 1962 when it appeared that the Communists might overrun Laos.

Forecasters Overshoot State Growth

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—California had an estimated population of 18,234,000 on July 1, a gain of 564,000, or 3.2 per cent, during the past year.

However, the population was about 35,000 below the figure that had been estimated by department of finance population experts a year ago.

The chief reason for the population falling short of the estimate was an increase of 29,000 in the number of Californians in the military service. In addition, California followed the nationwide trend of decreases in the birth rate, with births about 9,000 less than had been estimated.

The department of finance estimated the population a year from now would be 18,815,000, of which 18,492,000 would be civilians. It said there had been a net build-up of about 26,000 in the estimated number of military personnel stations in California since mid-1960.

By July 1, 1966, the department has projected a population figure of 19,389,000.

A breakdown in the population figures showed the state is becoming younger. In the zero to four years of age group the largest single segment in the population, there are 1,894,000 persons. This compares to a total of 1,552,000 who are 65 years and over.

Next highest to the zero-to-four, is the five-to-nine bracket, with 1,875,000 persons. The third highest is the 10-to-14 years category, with a total of 1,712,000.

This shows that about 30 per cent of the state's total population is 14 years of age or younger, as compared to only about 8 per cent who are over age 65.

The department said the projected pattern of migration is conservative.

Brezhnev Remodeled Old Figurehead Post

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Leonid I. Brezhnev served four years as Soviet president, changing the job from a largely ceremonial one to an active part of the government.

After succeeding the aging Marshal Kliment Y. Voroshilov as titular Soviet chief of state on May 7, 1960, the previously little known Brezhnev traveled abroad extensively, made major Kremlin policy speeches, and took on a number of key party tasks for Premier Nikita Khruschev.

His vigorous activity as the normally ornamental chairman of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet — or President — added seeming weight to widespread reports that the burly Brezhnev was Khrushchev's heir apparent.

Born into a Ukrainian steel worker's family Dec. 19, 1906, in Dneprodzerzhinsk, Brezhnev joined the Communist Youth League at 17, became a metallugrical engineer, and managed to rise rapidly through Ukranian Communist Party ranks during the great Stalinist purges of the 1930s.

He met Khrushchev at that time, and their political paths have never since been far apart.

Brezhnev gained the rank of major general during World War II in various important political posts with the army.

As he rose in postwar civilian life, Brezhnev was given, among other jobs, the tough one of launching Khrushchev's controversial virgin lands farm program.

In 1957 he became a full member of the ruling Presidium.

He handled primarily domestic assignments until his appointment as president four years ago when he began traveling and speaking out on foreign as well as internal affairs.

Although at times described as a colorless bureaucrat, Brezhnev has impressed American officials who have met him.

Words Fly Over 'Extremism'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Webster's International Dictionary defines extremism as "a quality or state of being extreme, specifically radicalism."

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona wants to know New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's definition of that word.

In his acceptance of the Republican presidential nomination Thursday night, Goldwater brought convention delegates to their feet when he said: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. Moderation in pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Rockefeller, who only hours earlier had congratulated Goldwater on his impressive victory in the Cow Palace, was the first Republican leader to react unfavorably to the Senator's statement. He called it "dangerous, irresponsible and frightening."

"Any sanction of lawlessness, of the vigilantes, of the unruly mob can only be deplored," Rockefeller said. "The extremism of the Communists, of the Ku Klux Klan and of the John Birch Society—like that of most terrorists—has always been claimed by such groups to be in defense of liberty."

Goldwater then asked Rockefeller, who had fought him in the primaries, "to put in writing what his definition of extremism is."

"Would the Governor fight for his life?" Goldwater asked. "That would be an extreme action. Is it extreme action for our boys to give their lives in Vietnam?"

The Goldwater-Rockefeller schism happened only a day after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Goldwater's final adversary, called for party unity.

Whether the split would widen and deepen was something only time would tell.

Around The World, Around The Clock

Washington — The State Department deplored the action of a Soviet boat which fired three shots across the bow of an American grain ship in the Black Sea and then sent a search party aboard. The incident followed a disagreement involving unloading of the cargo by stevedores at the Red port of Novorossisk.

Cape Kennedy—Scientists fired three satellites into orbit with a single rocket. Purpose: To watch for any secret Soviet nuclear testing in space.

Saigon—Viet Cong guerrillas killed a U.S. Army medic in an ambush attack on a Vietnamese convoy in the Mekong Delta.

New York—A near-riot took place when a policeman killed a young Negro during a scuffle which followed an apartment superintendent's splashing of a group of Negroes with a water hose. The police officer said the youth had charged at him with a knife.

Miller Offers Many Assets To GOP Election Strategy

By EDWARD W. O'BRIEN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON— Congressman William E. Miller, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is now the vice presidential candidate on the ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Once the presidential nomination was locked up, Goldwater forces got down to serious business of appraising possible running mates for the Senator.

Their consensus was in favor of Miller, for having these apparent political assets:

YOUTH—He is 50 years old and looks a little younger. Goldwater is 55.

GEOGRAPHY—He is Eastern but not too much so. He lives in a small town near Niagara Falls, N.Y., in the westernmost corner of the state.

SAVVY—As National Committee chairman, he has impressed party leaders and troops around the country with his political skill and hard-driving aggressiveness. They know him and like him as a relentless worker and fighter.

ORIENTATION—He is a conservative but has avoided any such conspicuous label.

RELIGION—As a Catholic, he might attract to the Goldwater ticket many of the votes the Republicans lost in 1960 by the presence of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

After the first ballot convention win by Goldwater, it was highly unlikely that he would be forced to use the vice president nomination as bait to win the presidential nomination.

After what happened at the convention, the Senator was able to make a completely free choice. His preference was for the six-term Congressman.

An unmentioned asset from Goldwater's personal standpoint is that Miller, as National Committee chairman from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's home state, has maintained an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the Arizonian through the bitter fighting of recent months.

Bobby Baker Case Won't Quickly Fade From Capitol Hill Memory

By DON BACON
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The ending of the official investigation phase of the Bobby Baker case did not mean the high-flying former Senate employee will soon be forgotten.

The one-time page boy, and later secretary to the Senate majority, has left a lasting imprint on Capitol Hill. Robbert G. (Bobby) Baker's noisy departure and the subsequent public airing of his questionable business and personal activities has brought about a quiet revolution in congress.

The change is mainly one of attitude among members and their employees. The belief that an elected official or any public employee can divorce his personal activities from his public responsibilities no longer prevails. Instead there is a growing awareness that the two are inseparable.

This new feeling is best reflected in the ever-increasing number of Senators and House members who have endorsed a proposal to require public disclosure of their income sources and assets.

When the Baker scandal broke last fall, only a handful were in favor of the disclosure bill sponsored by Sens. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), Clifford P. Case, (R-N.J.), and Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), among others. In recent months, the bill has picked up scores of supporters, including nearly 40 members who have voluntarily disclosed their outside sources of income.

Significantly, the Senate committee on rules and administration, which investigated the Baker affair, has just recommended "the adoption of new rules requiring some form of public disclosure of outside financial interest by the members, the officers and the employees of the Senate."

Unanimous endorsement by the nine-member panel gives official backing to the disclosure proposal and strongly enhances its chances of reaching the senate floor either this year or next. The House, while not bound by any Senate action, would be under enormous pressure to follow with its own disclosure rule.

The burgeoning support for disclosure is even more striking when it is remembered that only five years ago Sen. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) became the first member of either house to make a public accounting of his finances. At that time, the Senator confided later, he feared he would be ostracized by his colleagues.

Although the Baker case was not the first scandal to hit capitol hill and undoubtedly won't be the last, it was to many members an eye opener. For the first time, they were able to see how a real operator, backed by Senate power and prestige, could amass a fortune in a short time. They were reminded that congress, in this era of the 100 billion dollar federal budget, has overpowering influence on private business and the general economy.

Today in congress there is more serious talk among members about "conflict of interest," "ethics" and "reform" than at any previous time in memory

BOBBY BAKER
Campaign Target?

Described by the Senate investigators as "an opportunist," Baker was just a single individual caught on the shady side of the ethical street. But most members share at least some of his guilt, for they are ultimately responsible for the rules of conduct—or lack of such rules—on the Hill.

Operators like Bobby Baker do not abound in Congress or on congressional staffs, but certainly there may be other "opportunists" among the 535 members and nearly 6,000 professional and clerical workers. The present concern is not that unethical conduct is so widespread, but that Congress's tattered prestige cannot stand even one more scandal.

Forgotten Cost Is Discovered In Civic Center

The second unit of the Marin County Civic Center won't cost $9,740,000 after all. It will cost $10,497,700, according to County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell.

Left out of the architect's estimate presented to the board of supervisors Tuesday were the architect's fees, which will be 10 per cent of the building costs.

The Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation has submitted a bill for $378,850 for the payment of the pre-preliminary work which has been done so far.

The bulk of the rest would be paid at the time the construction goes to bid, which could not be earlier than December, 1965.

Mitchell, in a letter to the board, has asked that $94,712.50 be held up from the architect's payment at this time, to be paid when preliminary plans for the building are completed. The contract allows holding up this money, he said.

The county still faces the question of financing the building, which will have space for courts, county clerk, recorder, district attorney, health and expansion of departments in the present building.

Quarrel Lands Spouse In Jail

Alton Arthur Morgan, 38, of 10 Tarrant Court, Santa Venetia, was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace Thursday after he allegedly threatened to kill his wife.

His wife, Georgina, filed a citizen's arrest with the sheriff's office and Morgan was booked in the county jail under $110 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Mrs. Morgan said he caused a disturbance at home and told her to get out or he would kill her.

No Quorum, No Meet

The meeting of the Larkspur-Corte Madera Joint Recreation Commission was called off Thursday because of lack of a quorum. The commission will meet at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School.

Lucas Valley Homeowners Want Master Plan Delay

Lucas Valley Home Owners Assn. will ask the Marin County Planning Commission to delay consideration of the Lucas Valley master plan Monday, president Stanly Dorst said today.

The request will continue an already extended stalemate between the organization and builder Joseph L. Eichler, who wishes to place apartments and single family homes where town houses are shown on the master plan.

Home owners have complained that this would put too great a load on already limited recerational facilities at the planned community.

Eichler has offered concession to owners verbally since the association meeting last Monday, but not in written form and with not enough time for members to vote on them, said Dorst.

REPUBLICANS!

Congratulations! This could be a very good year for Orthodox Republicans, perhaps the best since George Washington. Despite many handicaps, we are convinced even George Washington could be elected in 1964, particularly when it is observed the Democrats do not appear to be seeking a candidate other than a candidate for vice president, and as Alexander Pope remarked; "Vice is a monster of so frightful a mein as to be hated, needs but to be seen".

Today is Saturday, July 18, the 200th day of 1964 with 166 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase; the morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Mars and Venus

On this day in history:

In A.D. 64, the City of Rome burned.

In 1914, the U.S. Army created an aviation section within the Signal Corps.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence River into an ocean link.

In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was unanimously nominated for a third term by the Democratic convention meeting in Chicago.

A thought for the day: Greek philosopher Plato said: "Of all the animals, the boy is the most unmanageable."

Don't Rush After First Trick When There Is Repeat Finesse

Don't be in a hurry to take a trick the first time when declarer has a repeatable finesse. In fact, make it a rule to refuse the first such trick without even thinking about it.

Opening lead — ♣ 3

An excellent illustration is furnished by Fred Karpin in his latest paperback, "Winning Play in Contract Bridge." When West opens the three of clubs and declarer plays the queen from dummy, East must play a low club without the slightest sign of thought.

If East does so, South will try for a diamond trick by taking the king of diamonds and leading a diamond toward dummy. West discards a heart, and South sees that the diamonds are hopeless.

Declarer can now count only eight tricks: two spades, three hearts, two diamonds, and one club. The best chance for a ninth trick is in clubs, as sooner or later declarer must lead a club toward dummy.

STRATEGY PAYS OFF

Here is where East's strategy pays off, which is just as well since the subtitle and main subject of Karpin's book is Strategy at Trick One. There is a fine chance that South will play the king of clubs from dummy on the assumption that West has the ace of clubs.

If so, declarer goes down. East captures the king of clubs with his ace. The defenders then have an easy time producing five tricks — and in any case South has only eight tricks.

South would make his contract easily if East took the first trick with the ace of clubs. South would then have no choice in clubs except to finesse with dummy's ten of clubs in his search for a ninth trick. This finesse would work.

East should recognize the position at the first trick as one in which declarer can play the clubs twice without being sure of how to play from dummy. To put it another way, declarer has some sort of repeatable finesse in clubs — which means that East should follow the rule of refusing the first trick without thinking about it.

QUESTION

Partner opens with one no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ Q 10 7
♥ J 10 3
♦ Q 10 9 8
♣ A 8 4

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three no trump. With your nine points you know that the combined count is 25 to 27, and you have three tens to help if you are a point shy of the 26 points usually needed for game.

Nichols Thought Golf Was Easy, But Then...

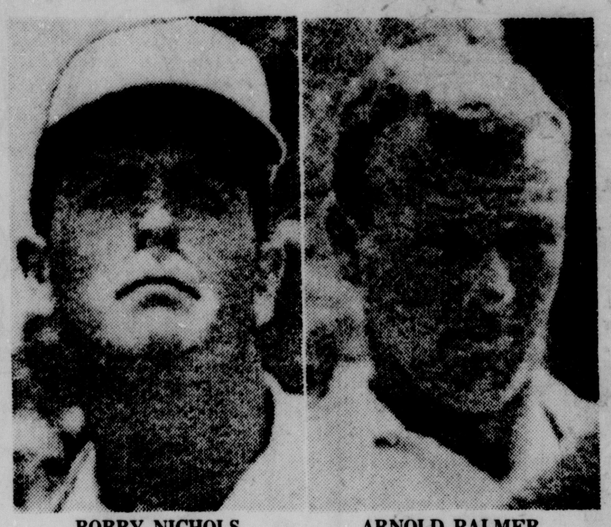
By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"I got to thinking this game wasn't hard," said Bobby Nichols.

When you're playing golf, thinking like that is like tap-dancing on a land mine.

However, the resultant explosion of bogeys—three in a row—wasn't fatal, and baby - faced Bobby pulled himself together to hold the lead after two rounds of the PGA championship at the Columbus Country Club.

But Nichols could be excused for looking over his shoulder in the third round today. Right behind him can be heard the tramp, tramp, tramp of Arnold Palmer's Army, punctuated from time to time by the pistol-like crack of U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi's iron shots.



BOBBY NICHOLS

ARNOLD PALMER

Nichols, who was putting more and enjoying his $5 putter less, scratched back from the bogey string and got a one-over-par 71 yesterday holding the lead at 135. The bargain basement blade had aided him to a PGA and course record 64 on opening day.

Palmer had his second straight 68 for 136. Arnie chipped into the cup on the 10th hole for the first eagle three of the tournament—and promptly fell apart.

But an assist from a foot soldier in the army, who stopped an errant approach shot on the 15th hole, helped Palmer save second place.

Venturi hurled some beautiful iron shots through the sweltering afternoon for a 65, and a tie for third at 137 with Bo Wininger.

"I knocked the flags right out of the holes," Venturi said. "And it was the same story as at the Open—I got the putt down on the first hole, and I was off.

"I was about 30 feet from the cup on the first, and as soon as I hit the putt, I thought: 'Whoops it's going 10 feet past.' But it hit the middle of the cup and jumped in.

Nichols said he was not disenchanted with his new putter.

"I was just too relaxed and confident," he said. "It came so easy Friday that I thought I would go right on from there. I got six straight pars and then I went to sleep.

"I three - putted seven, and messed up eight—I missed the green and chipped badly—and

SANFORD MAY BE ABLE TO RETURN THIS YEAR

An operation to restore full blood circulation to San Francisco pitcher Jack Sanford's throwing arm was termed successful yesterday with hopes he'll be back in action this campaign.

The surgery corrected a five-inch blood vessel blockage in Sanford's right arm. The big hurler went into the operating room at 10 a.m. yesterday and came out at 6 p.m. Surgery was performed by vascular surgeon Dr. Frank H. Leeds.

Team physician Dr. E. C. Sailer, who observed the operation, said it was a success and added, "it was amazing he could pitch at all."

The circulatory impairment, blamed on an injury during Sanford's military service in 1955, became acute on June 25. The 1962 World Series hero had blanked Los Angeles for five innings when his right hand became cold and numb.

He left the game and missed his next starting assignment. On July 4, he again could go only five frames before numbness forced him out of action. When the same thing happened on July 9, Sanford was sent home for a complete examination.

Sanford, who posted a 24-7 record in 1962, was 5-7 for this campaign with a 3.30 earned-run average.

Those Thorough Yanks Already Have N.L. Contenders Scouted

Jack Hanley

Those thorough Yankees already have their scouts trailing the Giants, Phillies, Reds and the rest of the National League's 1964 pennant contenders.

Mayo Smith picked up the Giants in Milwaukee. Simultaneously, Johnny Neun picked up the Phillies in Pittsburgh. Bill Skiff, meanwhile, picked up the Dodgers in St. Louis. That blanket coverage left only the Reds without attention. But Smith will take care of that this weekend.

"I think I'll run down to Cincinnati and say hello to my good friend Fred Hutchinson," said Smith as he left the Giants when they concluded their road trip in Milwaukee. "I'll be seeing you."

Smith knows as much about the Reds as Hutchinson does. He preceded Hutch as Cincinnati manager before joining the Yankees as their ace National League scout.

During his three-game stay in Milwaukee, Smith didn't take one paper note. He never does. He always come equipped with a score card but he never sullies it with notes. However, he misses nothing.

HE DIDN'T have to be told that Jim Ray Hart was hitting .275 just before the All-Star break and had boosted that average to an even .300 going into the final game with the Braves at Milwaukee. Smith knew that the Giant third base rookie had a .436 average for the road trip (17-for-39, including 11 RBIs).

Such information could readily be obtained by Ralph Houk in a local telephone call from Yankee headquarters to the Elias News Bureau that compiles official statistics for both major leagues. Furthermore, such information would be of little value to Yankee pitchers, primarily interested in how to get Hart out provided the Giants and Yankees do tangle again in the 1964 World Series.

THUS, SMITH paid particular attention to Hart every time the rookie came to bat. You could see the scout making a mental note of the way Denny Lemaster worked on Hart for a called strikeout in the second game of the Brave series. The southpaw first jammed the rookie, next worked the outside corner, wasted the third pitch high and hard, and then got the rookie looking.

That is the start of the Yankee book on Hart. Before the season enters the September stretch, Smith will have a complete dossier on the rookie's batting habits. And, of course, he will similarly have helpful reports for Yankee pitchers on how Jay Alou and Hal Lanier should be pitched.

THE YANKEES already have detailed reports on Giant veterans, particularly Willie McCovey. In his 1962 report on the Giants, Smith urgently recommended a right side defensive shift on Stretch. And everyone who saw the seventh game of the 1962 World Series in Candlestick park knows how Bobby Richardson was in perfect position—closer to first base than second — for McCovey's line drive that would have scored Matty Alou and Willie Mays with the winning runs had it gone through.

Houston's Colt 45's shoot down the San Francisco Giants just as if they didn't know they were big birds near the top of the National League standings.

In fact, if they weren't down to Houston in the 1964 series to date, the Giants might be ahead of league leading Philadelphia.

Whipping San Francisco 5-2 in Candlestick Park last night, the Colts took a 5-4 lead in games for the year. That combined with the scant 6-5 advantage held by the Giants over the New York Mets leaves San Francisco just 10-10 on the year against the clubs in ninth and tenth places.

Back in 1962 when the Giants won the pennant and were 61-21 in their home park, which club held an edge over them in Candlestick Park? Why, the Colts, of course. Manager Harry Craft's club that season, its first in major league baseball, was 5-4 over the Giants in their home park.

In an effort to even the count this campaign, Manager Alvin Dark of the Giants sent left-hander Billy O'Dell 3-1 against Ken Johnson 7-5. The two clubs conclude this series with a doubleheader tomorrow.

Asked the secret of his club's success as Giant killers, Craft answered, "We've been fortunate to get good, consistent pitching against them. As long as you do that and get a few runs, you can win."

Bob Bruce notched his tenth triumph of the year last night and his second over the Giants this year although needing relief help from reliable Hal Woodeshick in the eighth.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, Dave Roberts walked and after Eddie Kasko fouled out, Jerry Grote singled Roberts to second.

Bruce came to bat, obviously to bunt for a sacrifice. He topped the ball to Herbel who dropped it. First baseman Orlando Cepeda picked it up and threw past second baseman Hal Lanier covering first.

When the dual-error play ended, Roberts had scored from second and there were runners on second and third. Billy Pierce came on to pitch and Al Spangler knocked in the fourth Houston run with a fly to left field. Spangler also drove in No. 5 with a single in the ninth.

Still the Giants threatened in the eighth even though the first two batters went down. Then Tom Haller walked.?

Left-handed hitting Duke Snider batted for Lanier and Bruce served two balls. Out came the right-hander and in went southpaw Woodeshick. Out came Snider and in went right-handed hitting Harvey Kuenn who promptly singled. Willie Mays, out of the starting lineup to rest an ailing back, was safe on an error loading the bases.

The rally died when Cap Peterson flied out in a pinch hitting role.

PERRY SENDS NELLIE FOX A NEW BAT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Pitcher Gaylord Perry of the San Francisco Giants is following the orders of National League President Warren Giles in getting a new bat for Houston's Nellie Fox.

Giles ordered Perry to purchase the bat after Perry lost his temper and broke the bat of Fox, whose hit drove in the winning run against the Giants last Sunday.

Frank Ryan of the Hillerich and Bradsby Co., manufacturer of the Louisville Slugger Bat, said a personalized bat is being made for Fox and the bill goes to the Giants. Ryan said he received the order yesterday from the Giants.

Bill Russell Good For 10 More Years?

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell said yesterday he will play two or three seasons more at the most for the Boston Celtics, the seven-time National Basketball Association champions.

He brushed off talk of possible retirement during last spring's playoffs as the words of a man sleepless from pressure, weary from playing and pained by aching knees.

"Of course, if everything goes haywire for me, then maybe I'll play nine or 10 years," Russell added with a wink.

The big center said he is launching a career in automotive sales "so I can grow old gracefully. I want to have some other interests so I won't be attempting to play that 'one more year' after I've lost the touch."

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

Rare Error Aids Phillies

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It didn't take Don Pavletich too long to make a mark for himself.

Less than an inning, in fact. The mark, however, was a red face resulting from a rare and costly error that helped first-place Philadelphia edge Cincinnati 5-4 last night and move one game ahead of San Francisco in the National League race.

Pavletich played with Cincinnati last season but was assigned to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League this year. Thanks to an injury to John Edwards, the Reds' regular catcher, Pavletich battled his way back to the majors.

He made his first appearance last night, walking as a pinch hitter for starting catcher Hal Smith in the seventh inning. Then came his 1964 catching debut in the eighth.

Pinch hitter Danny Cater opened the inning with a single. With Costen Shockley at bat, Pavletich tossed the ball back to pitcher Bill Henry. The ball, however, went astray, landing behind the reliever. Before anyone could recover it, Cater raced to second.

SQUEEZE BUNT

Shockley grounded out, sending Cater to third from where he scored on Clay Dalrymple's squeeze bunt.

The run seemed somewhat harmless at the time, as it gave the Phillies a 5-3 lead. But Vada Pinson homered for the Reds' final run in the eighth.

Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch credited Cater with alert base running on the play, but Reds' Manager Fred Hutchinson undoubtedly had another way of saying it.

The Giants also had some error trouble in losing to Houston 5-2. Los Angeles nipped Chicago 3-2 and St. Louis trimmed New York 9-8 in other National League games. Rain washed out a doubleheader between Pittsburgh and Milwaukee.

Pavletich wasn't the only Red to commit a costly error. A wild throw by Steve Boros helped the Phillies load the bases in the seventh inning before Tony Taylor singled in a run that broke a 2-2 tie. Then, Johnny Callison popped to Leo Cardenas, and Bobby Wine scampered home as catcher Smith let Cardenas' throw get past him.

Callison hit a two-run homer and Steve Boros did the same for Cincinnati.

TORRID STREAK

Ron Fairly continued his torrid hitting streak with his fourth homer in three games and a single, leading the Dodgers over the .500 mark for the first time since opening day. Fairly's homer in the sixth was the winning run.

Don Drysdale recorded his 12th victory against eight defeats, allowing six hits, including Billy Cowan's first-inning home run.

The Cardinals and the Mets engaged in a see-saw slugfest that St. Louis won with a two-run rally in the eighth. Lou Brock's third hit, a triple, drove in one run while Dick Groat's single, his third hit, brought in Brock. The Mets rallied for a run in the ninth, but Bob Gibson came on and retired Bob Taylor for the final out.

St. Louis' Bill White and Charlie Smith of the Mets each clouted two-run homers.

Semi-Pro Baseball Starts 2nd Round

Three Games On Sunday Schedule

Three games spread out through the county will launch the second half of play in the Marin County Semi-Pro Baseball League tomorrow.

The San Anselmo Merchants, winners of their last two games, will play against DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage at San Anselmo's Memorial Park; league-leading Billings-Hutchison will oppose last place Novak Builders on the Novato High School diamond, and the Mill Valley Merchants will host the Tiburon Sox at Project 17 field. All three games will start at 1:30 p.m.

The San Anselmo-Fairfax game will break a third place tie in the league, both teams with 2-3 records. Expected to get the starting berths on the mound in this game are Steve Miller of San Anselmo and Laddie Richardson of the Fairfax nine. The last time these two clubs met, the garagemen were on the long end of a 10-4 score.

Billings-Hutchison walloped the Novato entry in the Marin League 17-1 the first time the two teams met. Either Paul Chaffee or Nino Geminiani will get the starting role for B-H, opposing probably John Dolinsek of Novato.

Keith Fraser has been given the starting nod for the Mill Valley Merchants in their game with Tiburon. Starting for the Sox will be Skip Rush, strikeout king of the league. These two teams didn't meet in the first half of the loop and will make up that game at the conclusion of the regular schedule.

KEN VENTURI HAS HOT 65

then I three-putted nine.

"You get a little jerky when you get to three-putting a few."

Palmer came to the 10th one under par, and was in the rough to the left of the green on his second shot on the par five 526-yard hole. His chip hit the back of the cup, jumped a foot in the air, and came down in the cup.

"I kind of went to pieces after that," Palmer said.

At the par four 15th, 474 yards long, Palmer's drive was in the rough. He hit his second only about 100 yards and under a tree. His third was hit on the green and headed for the high grass behind, but a specator stopped it. Palmer chipped up from there and one-putted for a bogey five.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, straining to make a good show before the home folks, had a 73 for 140, five shots off the lead, and suffered the greatest embarrassment that can befall a golfer. He missed a sand trap shot.

Nicklaus, the longest driver in the history of golf, banged a tee shot about 320 yards on the 15th. His five iron second caught the right trap.

He swung and moved the ball about five feet, still in the trap. His next just barely got out. He finished with a six.

Nice Start! Raider Ace Hurt Already

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders opened training for the 1964 American Football League season here today with one top player already sidelined with injuries.

Cotton Davidson, who shared quarterbacking duties with Tom Flores for the Raiders last year, suffered a pulled muscle in the right leg while working out on his own yesterday. He'll be sidelined four or five days.

Coach Al Davis welcomed 17 rookies and Raider newcomers to camp today for two days of special instruction. Twenty-four Raider veterans will report Monday as training begins in earnest.

Davis said he would hold two workouts each day. The players also will attend squad meetings in between workouts and nightly skull sessions.

Fog Saves Eagle From First Loss

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—A pea soup fog settled down over Rhode Island Sound and put an end to racing yesterday afternoon in the Observation Trials for America's Cup defense candidates.

The New York Yacht Club Selection Committee called the races off when the four yachts involved had sailed about half of the 24-mile Gold Cup course.

The committee later announced Friday's pairings will carry on to today and there will be no races in the observation trials after today under any circumstances.

Abandonment of the races probably saved American Eagle from her first defeat of the year. She was four minutes behind Constellation when the fog closed down and blotted the two 12-meter yachts from view.

Nefertiti led Columbia by six boat lengths on the second leg of the course when that race was called off.

Old Fashion Uppercut Decides Video Fight

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The uppercut, a punch rarely used these days, apparently has earned clever Johnny Bizzarro of Erie, Pa., a shot at the lightweight title.

The 25-year-old, Italian-born Pennsylvanian shook Frankie Narvaez with a right uppercut in the third round and floored him in the ninth with another in gaining a unanimous decision in 10 rounds over the 12-5 favored lightweight contender from New York last night.

This reversed a split decision loss to Narvaez in the same Madison Square Garden ring six weeks ago and ended the squat New Yorker's 2½ year unbeaten streak at 15.

Erie promoter Don Elbaum said he had offered a $40,000 guarantee to lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz for a title defense against Bizzarro and that Bill Daly, Ortiz' adviser, had accepted. Ortiz said the price and opponent was okay with him.

A 'SUCKER'

Bizzarro profited from his disputed loss to Narvaez in June.

"I thought I won that fight," he said. "Anyway I learned he was a sucker for a right uppercut and I proved it this time. I was waiting for him to shoot his left in the ninth and when he did I let him have it."

The three officials had Bizzarro ahead by these scores: referee Johnny LoBianco, 7-3; judge Frank Forbes, 7-2-1 and judge Tony Castellano, 5-4-1. The Associated Press had Bizzarro in front, 6-4.

Ruling On Pill Due

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Millions of Catholic couples are anxiously awaiting a promised re-statement of their church's position on birth control.

Pope Paul VI disclosed recently that the Vatican has been giving "wide and profound study" to the "extremely grave problem" of regulating family size.

He said the conclusions reached in the study will be announced "soon."

The Pope did not say that the church is preparing to change its stand. But neither did he rule out the possibility of important modifications.

Informed Catholic circles consider it highly improbable that the church will alter its long-standing opposition to the use of contraceptive devices. On the contrary, the forthcoming pronouncement is expected to re-affirm the Catholic view that it is immoral to engage in sex relations "in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power to generate life."

But there is at least a chance, informants say, that the Vatican will spell out certain conditions under which Catholics may use the new hormone pills which affect ovulation.

The moral acceptability of these pills as a means of family planning has been the subject of sharp controversy among Catholic theologians in recent months.

Some noted Catholic scholars, such as Louis Janssens, professor of moral theology at the Catholic University of Louvain, Belgium, have urged the church to approve use of the pills to suppress ovulation, and therefore prevent conception. They contend that there is no moral difference between this method of birth control and the long-approved rhythm method, in which a couple tries to restrict sex relations to those portions of the menstrual cycle in which a woman is naturally infertile.

Other Catholic scholars — including leading U. S. authorities on moral theology—have lodged strenuous objections to use of hormone pills for the deliberate purpose of producing temporary sterility.

However, most of these scholars say that a woman may take the pills for therapeutic purposes—such as correcting irregularity in the menstrual cycle. In that case, they say, the prevention of conception is a legitimate "secondary effect" or by-product of medical treatment.

There seems to be a fairly widespread consensus among Catholic theologians that there would be no moral objection to a hormone pill which did not suppress ovulation entirely but merely stabilized the date of ovulation, so that the rhythm method could be used with complete confidence.

All of the birth control pills now on the market work by suppressing ovulation entirely. But Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium said recently that scientists have told him that a pill which simply regularizes ovulation sufficiently to make the rhythm method reliable "will be available very soon."

The thing to watch for in the forthcoming Vatican statement is whether it leaves the door open for Catholics to use such a pill.

If so, it will be the best news in a long time for the Catholic couples who now find it extremely difficult to live with their church's teaching on birth control.

Bishop Asks End Of Ecclesiastic Colonialism

Episcopal Prelate Brings Record Of Success To Overseas Dioceses

By STEPHENS BROENING

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Right Rev. Stephen F. Bayne is a 20th Century cleric concerned with the ending of what he calls "ecclesiastical colonialism."

Bishop Bayne is soon to become overseas director of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

When he succeeds Bishop John Bentley in November he will be responsible for the church's 16 overseas dioceses and the 1,600 clerical and lay workers in them.

Some say he is being considered as a successor to Right Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger as presiding bishop of America's 3.5 million Episcopalians.

Whatever his job, Bishop Bayne has a reputation for getting thing done.

Interviewed while here on a speaking engagement, he was asked:

"When you were bishop of the Olympia, Wash., diocese the congregation there doubled in 12 years, didn't it?"

"Tripled," he corrects, "but it would have happened without me."

At the 1958 Lambeth conference of Episcopal bishops he was the architect of a report endorsing contraception as a liberating force in family planning.

Soon after the conference he was made executive officer of the Anglican Communion, the loose federation of the 18 autonomous Episcopal churches.

"The future of the church," Bishop Bayne says, "is tied up with the ecumenical movement.

"A single Christian church?" he muses. "Could there ever be one? Not foreseeably. What we can look forward to is the bringing together of the diverse elements.

"There are already signs of it. The Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians and the rest have started consultations. Out of them may come some unities.

"The United States, of course, is the toughest nut to crack ecumencially. We like our free market religion, a church for every price class.

"But this fragmentation can not continue. The massive social problems, like the racial question and the inner city dilemma, cannot be handled with a series of religious clubhouses. There has to be some common planning."

Bishop Bayne, a trim, bespectacled 56, had his beginnings in New York—"I was brought up as a devout kid."

Educated at Amherst, he worked for a year on Wall Street before deciding to enter the seminary. "I was ordained in the teeth of the depression," he says.

After a six-year stint in St. Louis, Mo., Bayne served as wartime chaplain at Columbia University.

In 1947 he took over the Olympia diocese.

Benefit For Church Organ

Hugo Rinaldo, violinist, bariton Byron Jones and pianist-composer Richard Cumming will present the second annual organ fund benefit recital at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Rinaldi and Jones are leaders in Marin music affairs. Cumming, who studied at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, is here from New York City as musical director for the Marin Shakespeare Festival, for which he has composed an original score for "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Director of music for San Rafael City Schools, Rinaldi is conductor of the San Rafael Chamber Orchestra and Marin Youth Symphony. He plays violin with San Francisco orchestras as time permits.

Jones is director of vocal music for San Rafael City Schools, instructor in music appreciation and voice at the College of Marin and director of music for the church.

He has been soloist with the San Francisco Symphony, San Francisco Bach Choir and Lamp Lighters and with the Winifred Baker Chorale—most recently singing the lead in its production of "The Death of the Bishop of Brindisi."

Cumming studied piano with Herbert Jaffe in San Francisco and the famed Czech pianist Rudolf Firkusny, for whom he wrote the "Scherzo for Piano," which he will play in Sunday's recital.

He will also join Rinaldi in playing sonatas by Handel and Grieg.

Jones will sing works by Scarlatti, Durante, Mozart, Ravel, Donaudy and a song with music he wrote to words of the poem "Mood San Marcos" by San Rafael poet Margaret Albanese.

His accompanist at the piano will be Margery Bagshaw.

Sons Of Freedom Tame Terror Acts

By FRED COLEMAN

AGASSIZ, B. C. (AP)—"No more nude parades," said Big Fanny, the 230-pound grandmother who used to lead her radical religious sect through protest marches in the raw.

The mass destruction of property has stopped too.

After a turbulent 60-year history of fighting government authority with nude parades, burnings and bombings, the Sons of Freedom sect now appears to be living up to its original pacifist ideals.

Florence Storgoff, 56, better known across Canada as Big Fanny, the Freedomite spokesman, believes her religious sect is the victim of a miscarriage of justice which must be corrected.

The main sore spot is one of the most unusual prisons in the world. The fireproof, concrete compound was built here in 1962 to house 100 members of the sect sentenced to terms of up to 10 years for terrorist acts, mostly arson.

Behind the prison lies a long history of friction between a democratic state seeking to protect the rights of all its citizens and a radical religious sect which believes it must resist all government authority.

Big Fanny and the 550 other members of her sect are camped here outside the prison, 75 miles southeast of Vancouver. They live in 142 tarpaper shacks which local authorities see as an eyesore against the background of the lush green Fraser Valley ringed by snow-capped Rocky Mountain peaks.

Many of the men wear beards. Some of the women wear babushkas, peasant blouses and ankle-length skirts. They converse in Russian, cook borscht, chew sunflowerseeds and find part-time work picking fruit.

But mostly they just wait, hoping to embarrass the British Columbia government into releasing their brethren.

Their story began in czarist Russia with their parent sect, the Dukhobors, in 1895.

The Dukhobors, a pacifist offshoot of the Russian Orthodox Church, refused military service.

Czar Nicholas II turned his Cossack troops on the Dukhobors to force conscription. The sect responded by collecting rifles in a pile and burning them. Fire since has been a favored form of Dukhobor protest.

Leo Tolstoy, the author, contacted Quaker groups in London and together they helped the Dukhobors migrate to Canada.

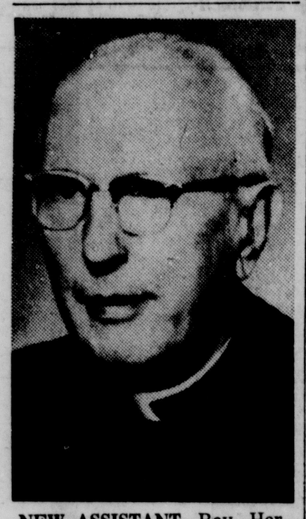
The trouble centers on the Sons of Freedom, the minority radical wing of the sect which broke with the Orthodox Dukhobors 40 years ago and settled in the Kootenay Valley, 40 miles east of Vancouver.

Since then, by some accounts, the Freedomites have been charged with 800 acts of violence.

They often stripped and paraded nude to demonstrate equality before God, and demand equal rights. They claimed the government had taken everything else and it might as well take their clothes.

Friction mushroomed over the years culminating in the spree of terrorism which led to arrests, trials and the Agassiz prison in 1962.

With the exception of an ill-fated hunger strike last year, there have been no further demonstrations.



NEW ASSISTANT—Rev. Herman C. Grunau, former chief librarian and history instructor at Valparaiso University, Indiana, will be installed assistant pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church, Mill Valley, at 11 a.m. next Sunday. In addition to his university work, he has served as pastor of several churches.

Big Spending By Churches Irks Prelate

NEW YORK (UPI) — A famous church here is spending $850,000 to give its front entrance what the architect calls "a Fifth Avenue look."

Another well-known church in the same city is investing $350,000 in new stone carvings to "enrich" its already-lavish gothic facade. A third church is laying out $125,000 to "improve" its pipe organ.

New York churches have no monopoly on this kind of thing. Similar examples could be cited from almost any community in America.

To Dr. Clyde H. Reid, professor of practical theology at Union Theological Seminary here, the idea of churches spending so much money on themselves is scandalous.

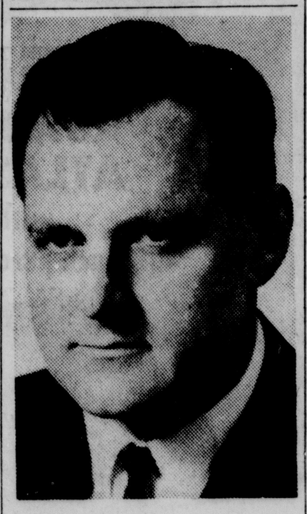
Dr. Reid has let go in the Christian Century Magazine with a blast of rightous anger at what he calls "profligate and irresponsible expenditures by churches for self-centered, even foolish purposes."

He says he appreciates aesthic beauty as well as the next fellow, and would be delighted for churches to have the finest architecture, art and music—if they had unlimited resources.

But in actual fact, church funds are limited, and every dollar spent on bricks is one less dollar available for the church's mission to lost and suffering human beings.

"To spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on statues, stones, carpets and organs is . . . a sin against hungering humanity," says Dr. Reid. "It is alien to . . . the spirit of Christ, who was concerned not with the paraphernalia of religion but with true faith."

Dr. Reid recalls that Jesus said very plainly: "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth . . . for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."



RE-ELECTED — Lawrence Goldberg was recently re-elected president of Congregation Rodef Sholom. Others re-elected were Harold Harris, vice president; Lewis Aaron, treasurer, and Mrs. Chester Patnoe, secretary. Newly elected to the board of directors were Henry Biggers and Melvin Warenback.

Anti-Darwin Law Stands In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn., (UPI)—Tennessee's anti-evolution law never has been challenged in the courts since the classic "Monkey Trial" 39 years ago this month.

The legislature steadfastly refuses to repeal the law; teachers and state officials tacitly ignore it.

Passed March 21, 1925, it provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any teacher in any of the universities, teachers colleges, normal schools or public schools of the state which are supported in the whole or in part by the public school funds of the state to teach any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as told in the Bible, and to teach instead that man decended from a lower form of animal."

The law was written by Rep. John Washington Butler shortly after a speech by William Jennings Bryan at Nashville on "Is the Bible True?" was printed and distributed to members of the legislature.

Bryan was prosecution attorney when John T. Scopes, a high school instructor, went on trial at Dayton, Tenn., July 10, 1925, on a charge of violating the new law by teaching Darwin's theory of evolution to his students. The trial, instigated as a test case, developed into a war of words and wits between Bryan and chief defense attorney Clarence Darrow.

Scopes was convicted and fined $100.

Lutherans' Firm Stand On Rights

PITTSBURGH — The Lutheran Church in America closed its second biennial convention here with a strong endorsement of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and a sweeping indictment of racial discrimination.

The LCA urged "all citizens to join in compliance with the Civil Rights Act in letter and in spirit" and called upon its 3.2 million members to "take the lead in their communities to encourage obedience to this legislation."

The act, signed into law by President Johnson on July 2, the day the LCA opened its eight-day meetings, was hailed as "a historic advance in the long struggle to secure rights to which we, as Christians, believe all citizens are entitled."

Minutes before passage of the civil rights resolution, the 700 delegates adopted a statement on race relations that had been considered for nearly eight hours over four business sessions of the convention.

Subject of most debate was the controversial issue of civil disobedience as a justifiable means of combating racial injustice when all other alternatives have failed.

As finally approved, the statement stressed that "if and when the means of legal recourse have been exhausted or are demonstrably inadequate, Christians may then choose to serve the cause of racial justice by disobeying a law that clearly involves the violation of their obligations as Christians."

In so doing, however, church members were cautioned that they must be willing to accept the penalty for their actions, to limit and direct their protest against a specific grievance or injustice, and to carry out their protest in a non-violent, responsible manner.

The Preview Showing So Many People Have Been Awaiting!

GLENWOOD FOREST UNIT 2

The great success story in homes last Spring was the enormous reception given the first collection of homes in Glenwood Forest. These 73 homes, sheltered in a natural cul-de-sac of rolling tree-covered hills, were gone within 3 months. To those who came too late, we promised a similar limited collection of homes nearby. Now we are keeping this promise. Magnificent 3 and 4 bedroom homes with 2 and 3 baths, spacious living room and enormous family room, beautifully situated among green hills thick with trees. Only 5 minutes from downtown San Rafael. Of course, if you weren't looking for a home at that time, and were unaware there was a Glenwood Forest, you're in for a rare treat! You won't find another community of homes like this for a long, long while — and we can't make any more promises.

THE MEADOWS

WHY? . . . because the Oakview Club—your own private Club is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There are exercise rooms, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . two sunken championship tennis courts with a seating capacity for 500 spectators . . . two large swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies. AND luncheon is served daily.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, two baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or wall-to-wall carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING. THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED. Rents start at $150 per month and include family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are now open for YOUR inspection. Come out and compare.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael, take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS. 479-1600.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Parental Stress Can Increase Tendency For Child To Stutter

VAN DELLEN

Learning to talk is not easy and youngsters are not equally prepared to develop this skill. "Children between 2 and 5 tend to repeat sounds, syllables, whole words, and phrases in connected speech," according to Dr. Donald Counihan. He says that at some stage of development, many who eventually achieve normal speech display the fluency interruptions characteristic of the stutterers. A minority continue to talk in this way and eventually exhibit the blocks, hesitancies, and mannerisms typical of this condition.

WE DO NOT KNOW why this happens except that the youngster is disturbed by some physical or emotional trauma during these trying years. The parents may have set their standards too high and become overly concerned when the tot has more than the usual difficulty learning to talk properly.

The youngster becomes frustrated, setting the scene for a speech defect. These same parents realize that learning to walk involves many falls; but learning to talk is not viewed with equal understanding.

A PSYCHIC CAUSE is suspected when the stuttering occurs under stress or with excitement. The boy or girl loses confidence on becoming aware of the speech difficulty. This added hazard is more likely to follow when the parents place a penalty or focus undue attention on imperfect speech. The youngster now is on the way to becoming a stutterer. At first there is a block in saying the same sounds, words, and phrases.

The problem should be recognized as early as possible and the environment changed. Best results are obtained before the child develops a defeatist image of himself as a stutterer. The parents must avoid the situations that precipitate episodes of stuttering. Allow the child ample time to speak and avoid showing embarrassment about the tot's speech behavior. Professional counseling may be needed.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

MEANING OF BLEEDING

M.J. writes: Is rectal bleeding a sign of stomach cancer?

REPLY

No. It may be due to hemorrhoids, anal fissures or ulcers, polyps, diverticula, or cancer of the lower bowel. Bleeding from a stomach cancer usually leads to black stools, because the blood darkens when mixed with stomach acids. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on rectal bleeding.

BOWLING

Mrs. R. writes: My daughter is two months pregnant. She bowls once a week for three hours. Won't this harm the baby?

REPLY

No. Bowling is good exercise up to the sixth month of pregnancy.

BARIUM X-RAYS

M.D. writes: Do barium X-rays reveal chronic appendicitis?

REPLY

Not as a rule. They are more helpful in determining whether the appendix is normal and in finding the cause of abdominal distress.

HERNIA FROM CRYING

Mr. D.B. writes: I was told that if a mother lets a boy baby cry for a long time, he will get a rupture. Is this true?

REPLY

The added strain could lead to hernia if the child has an inherent weakness in the groin.

NOT UNUSUAL

J.G. writes: Can you die with your eyes open?

REPLY

Yes, and this is common.

Today's Health Hint — Good vision is necessary for safety at home and on the street.

We Doubt If They Were Wooden Actors

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — There was a guillotine set up in the Nevada Prison yard and some of the convicts were guards.

It wasn't a revolution in penal philosophy. The prison was being used for location filming of Jean Genet's play, "Deathwatch."

About 100 inmates participated as extras. Most portrayed inmates of a French prison in the 1930s, but a few played the parts of guards.

Novato Artist Cheers Dying Girl's Last Days

A Novato artist's role in giving a dying teenager her last wish came to light last night after a mercy flight failed to arrive in San Francisco in time to save the girl's life.

Linda Yockim, 17, of Mountain View died in the air over Nevada, aboard a private plane which was flying her from Billings, Mo., for an emergency operation at the University of California Medical Center. She had been vacationing in Billings with her uncle and aunt, when stricken.

Word came in a radio message from the pilot at 8 p.m. It ended plans for speeding the girl from Oakland Airport across the Bay Bridge in an ambulance, with a California Highway Patrol escort.

And the announcement also brought out the story of a pretty young girl who wanted to have her portrait painted before she died.

Last weekend, from her bed, Linda told her mother, Mrs. Laverne Yockim, she was sorry she would never have a portrait of herself.

Determining to fulfill this wish, Mrs. Yockim called Frances Shoaf of Mill Valley, a good friend.

Miss Shoaf agreed to do what she could, and began calling artists in the Bay Area in hopes of finding one who would do the painting from photographs—and for nothing.

Eight artists turned her down. Then she called Nevin Kempthorne of Novato and she agreed. She tackled the job quickly and had the painting finished in a few hours. After framing it, Miss Shoaf got the portrait aboard an airline flight for Missouri.

That was last Sunday. Five days later, with her wish fulfilled Linda was dead.

Swarms of Boy Scouts Test Skills At National Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) — Thousands of Boy Scouts tested their physical skills on the Skill-o-Rama course today as they settled down to life on this historic site, landscaped with 32,000 tents for the sixth national jamboree.

The scouts climbed rope ladders, ran through a rubber tire obstacle course and otherwise flexed their muscles as they entered the second day of their one-week stand where Washington's tattered army camped through the fierce winter of 1777-78.

The 52,000 scouts also were set to take part in American Heritage Day, which called for simultaneous ceremonies at general headquarters and all troop sections. The program featured a rededication to the scouting oath in the evening, heritage troop campfires were to be lite at each site.

Assistant U. S. Postmaster Richard Murphy was scheduled to dedicate the post office erected here for the jamboree.

The day's events will include a performance by the Mattatuck Drum Band of Waterbury, Conn., the nation's oldest. Founded in 1767, the band will play on drums, some of which date back 150 years, and fifes.

Members of the unit dress in replicas of uniforms worn by colonial soldiers of Connecticut. They will play Revolutionary War tunes.

Floods In Russia

LONDON (UPI) — Rising flood waters in Russia's far east Amur Valley have forced evacuation of humans and animals, according to a Moscow radio report monitored here yesterday. Ships, aircraft and special military units have been mobilized to give aid, the report said. The flood was described as unprecedented.

Art, Garden Fair Buys Second Lot From Objector

The Marin Art and Garden Center has purchased the second of two lots from Nicholas Ivancovich, who has complained about noise, dirt and disturbance at the annual art and garden fair.

The Ivancovich property, on Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross, was surrounded by fair property.

James Goodale, executive vice president of the center, said the land was purchased as an investment and will be used for rental purposes.

Tax stamps indicated $48,000 as the price paid for the second lot.

Attorney General's Opinion Sought On Bay Fill Freeze

The executive committee of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments will seek an opinion from the state attorney general's office on the legality of a three-year moratorium on bay filling projects.

The association has submitted a joint powers agreement to its member cities and counties which calls for delay in further filling of tidelands until completion of a current study sponsored by ABAG and the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

San Rafael Mayor John F. McInnis, a member of ABAG's executive committee, suggested at committee meeting in Petaluma Thursday that a regal ruling be asked. He said city governments have the only precedent for moratoriums, these only for one-year moratoriums in zoning matters.

Other members of the executive committee said they would be interested in the moratorium proposal if it is ruled legal.

The executive committee voted to write Gov. Edmund G. Brown urging action on another crossing from San Francisco to the East Bay. McInnis said studies of all alternate routes are complete and a decision on the route and start of construction is long past due.

McInnis said the group believes a second Golden Gate crossing requires more study before a decision can be made there.

The ABAG committee urged all its member governments to protest the federal San Joaquin reclamation project that would dump wastes in San Pablo Bay.

Funeral Burglar Suspect's Plea Delayed Week

Burglary suspect John Theodore Cynko, 45, of San Francisco, held without bail in Marin County Jail, is to appear in Marin County Municipal Court next Thursday to enter plea on the charge he entered a Belvedere home while the family was attending a funeral.

Cynko was arrested July 9 in the home of Thomas P. Phelan on Bella Vista Avenue while the family was attending services for their daughter, Sharon 17.

Cynko was to plead yesterday, but the case was continued one week.

IT'S STRIKE UP the band as Fred C. Rose of Marinwood conducts his Oakland Municipal Band in one of the organization's popular weekly summer concerts at Lakeside Park in Oakland. The appearances attract as many as 2,000 music-lovers. Rose is also music director at the San Rafael Military Academy, and has behind him a colorful career in music with the armed services. The Bandmaster From Marinwood

In Service And As Civilian, Fred Rose Has Waved Baton

By JAMES WILLWERTH

Presto!

Enter Fred C. Rose, 48, at "moderato" pace which, sooner than you can wave a baton, becomes "allegro vivace." His conversation rings with "staccato," and the marching music of John Phillip Sousa fills the room.

He enjoys a "legatissimo" existence with his wife, Gloria, at 505 Pinewood Drive, Marinwood, but only for the last two years. Until then he marched and played for the "forte" of diplomatic circles at Washington, D.C

AND BEFORE that, he island hopped the Pacific Ocean during World War II, playing for the "Mosquito Network"—a wartime radio system with beams bouncing among island-stationed soldiers' radios.

Rose is in his second year as music director at San Rafael Military Academy. Since the summer of 1962, he has conducted the Oakland Municipal Band at Lakeside Park in Oakland.

Every Sunday at 2:30 p.m., some 2,000 East Bay residents gather to hear marches, semi-classical pieces, and the music of Broadway shows. Rose leads 20 concerts each summer, from mid-June to mid-October, plus July Fourth and Labor Day holiday specials.

A NATIVE of San Francisco, he returned to the Bay Area in 1961 from Washington, D.C., where he was assistant leader of the United States Army Band and Chorus, based at Fort Meyer in Virginia.

During summers, his band played concerts at Water Gate Barge, a floating platform tied to the foot of Lincoln Memorial steps. Some 2,000 people would gather on the steps of the memorial to hear those Sunday concerts, he recalls.

With "no rest for the wicked," he remembers, the band would also join the President's special Third Army Infantry Group for parades at Fort Meyer or the Washington Monument Parade Grounds.

WINTER-TIME, the Army band played for State Department official visits. Former President Eisenhower, the King of Jordan, and France's inscrutable President Charles deGaulle were among many who dined or danced to the music.

Rose is a personal friend of Richard M. Nixon, and during the last California gubernatorial campaign, he conducted for the politician's Oakland visit.

Joining the Navy in 1933 as a flutist (he plays all woodwind instruments), he was later sent during World War II to the South Pacific as Adm. William F. Halsey's bandmaster. On one island, his group played two concerts a day, seven days a week, entertaining some 90,000 soldiers at different locations.

IN 1961, HE marched and played for the inauguration of the late President John F. Kennedy. At official functions, he also composed music for a 15-piece strolling string group that walked among tables, combining music with diplomacy.

His most embarrassing moment in the capitol occurred when the Japanese defense minister came to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

"The Japanese national anthem was to be played," he recalls, "and it was the dead of sub-zero winter. We had to wait 30 minutes for the diplomat.

"IN THAT time, the valves of our instruments had frozen. That was hard to explain to the high command."

Rose's colorful service career ended at 20-year retirement age in 1961. He returned to San Francisco, landed the Oakland conductorship and also soon realized a boyhood dream—to teach at the San Rafael Military Academy.

His present civilian career, however, is no less colorful than was his military service. From 3:30 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, KCBS radio cuts into the concert—with split second timing, well-rehearsed—for broadcasts up and down the Pacific Coast.

AND IF things get too hectic, the musician takes his troubles to a $5,500 concert organ sitting in the middle of his living room.

He works it over—"con belleza."

Greeting Cards In 3 Dimensions

Products Of Marin Firm Are Finding Ready Market

By DON KEOWN

Two imaginative Marin brothers have added a third dimension to greeting cards.

Cube Card Corp., launched last Jan. 1 by Bill and Don McKee after a year of preliminary spadework, is an already-flourishing business operation.

From headquarters at 130 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael, 56 card designs have been originated, covering Christmas, birthdays, anniversaries, births, get-well and all the usual occasions.

With preparations for the 1964 Christmas season well under way, a total of more than 400,000 colorful cube cards have been printed.

AND THE McKee brothers have developed some 1,000 accounts—quality shops that cater to customers who are looking for something different — for their cards which are mailed flat like conventional cards, but which can then be folded into gaily colored cubes with greeting messages printed around the sides.

Don McFee, a Kentfield resident who has been a Marinite for seven years, creates and designs the cards.

Bill McKee, who moved to Terra Linda some six months ago, heads sales and other business aspects of the operation.

"IT IS," Bill McKee says, "an ideal arrangement for us, taking advantage of my brother's artistic talents and my own business experience."

Don McKee is an art director of a San Francisco studio with extensive training and experience in art design work.

Bill McKee was in sales work with a business forms concern before he left that firm to devote full time to the Cube Cards Corp. operation. He also has had several years experience with a food broker in the Midwest, plus college schooling in business and finance.

Both brothers are married and each has two children. Don's wife, Connie, is one of the firm's three employees in addition to the brothers.

BILL McKEE says it all started this way:

"We were thinking about going into business together, and we wanted something that would use Don's creative talents and my own business background. We had several ideas which we kicked around. It was Don who actually came up with the cube card idea and began creating them.

"We were a year in preparation before our first shipment of cards, produced last December, was ready to be sent to the 24 independent card dealer representatives we had lined up on Jan. 1, 1964. They succeeded in placing them in quality stores.

"THEN IN January we participated in a stationary show in Los Angeles, and the result was overwhelming approval. This was our first real confirmation that we had something. Off that showing alone, we picked up some 100 new accounts."

This was followed by shows in San Francisco and New York. In both cities cube cards scored again and won increased outlets.

"It supported our gamble on our belief that people were looking for something new and different in greeting cards," Bill McKee says.

HE DESCRIBES his brother as "a very creative person—a flash, and he has an idea. He had never done greeting cards before, but they have proven

THE NEWEST things in greeting cards are "Cube Cards." And they come from Marin, a product of Don and Bill McKee's Cube Card Corp. of San Rafael. The Christmas selection is seen here, folded into their final three-dimensional shape. The McKees developed the special racks for the display of their merchandise in the quality stores where they are sold.

A HIGH LEVEL conference of Cube Card Corp. executives is under way on the deck of the Kentfield home of the Don McKees. The result is bound to be some ideas for clever new greeting cards to be produced and distributed by the fast-growing young San Rafael firm. Don McKee, left, is the creative member of the firm, designing the cards. His brother, Bill, handles the business operations. And Don's wife, Connie, works in the Cube Card Corp. headquarters on Woodland Avenue in San Rafael.

an ideal outlet for his creative talents."

The greeting card themes are humorous in a whimsical vein.

One that folds into an owl's head reads: "Happy birthday . . . to you know whoooo."

A rag doll says: "You're a doll . . . Thanks."

AN UNHAPPY little rodent scolds: "You're a dirty rat for not writing."

A rooster says: "Congratulations! You've got something to crow about!"

Sixteen of the designs are for Christmas cards, including Santas, snowmen, angels, snow-topped churches and carolers.

This fall, the McKees plan to

When the plans were made for PARK VIEW TERRACE Apartment homes, we knew people would want to live here. The location was ideal, nestled in the hillside overlooking Corte Madera Park. Close to the freeway and transportation but far enough to be quiet. Warmed by valley heat and cooled by Bay breeze.

Onto this location we put the best construction possible and then made sure that the finishing touches like all wool carpets, drapes, electric kitchens were first grade not lowest bid.

Then we designed a leisure area for all of the things we liked to do—swimming pool, sauna bath, putting green, badminton court, social room and even a horseshoe pitch. And then we told people about it.

Cube Cards By Marin Brothers Create A Stir

add some Easter and Valentine cube cards to their line.

A recent special job consisted of cube cards extolling the merits of the Grand Old Party for the just-completed Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

BILL McKEE says the firm will do the same for the Democratic National Convention, to be held next month in Atlantic City, "if they want us to."

The greeting cards sell for 35 cents apiece.

Two San Francisco firms do the actual manufacturing, since the printing and the boxing are separate processes. But distribution is handled straight from the San Rafael office and warehouse.

It is a busy place. "We're not yet a year old, and already we're bursting at the seams for space," McKee says.

THE McKEE brothers enterprise was recently the subject of an illustrated article in "Greeting Magazine," a trade publication for the stationary industry.

Said that journal:

"The McKee brothers feel the potential is unlimited. The energy and enthusiasm are there, and acceptance seems proven by sales and repeat orders. At the present, they are a very 'happy' corporation, thanks to the imaginative, card-buying public."

THIS endorsement from within the industry of their unique cube card concept is heartening to the McKee brothers.

Even more so is the manner in which their outlets and their sales have been growing. Three dimensional greeting cards, the brothers are confident, are here to stay.

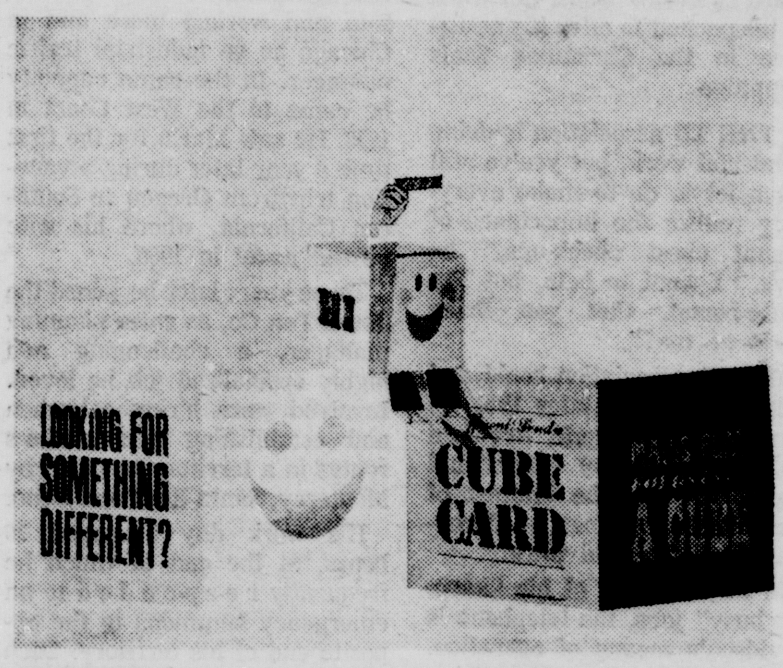
"HAPPY ANNIVERSARY to a pair of incurable romantics" reads the message on this cube card after it is folded into shape. It is one of 56 card designs now being offered by Cube Card Corp. with more on the way. All the usual greeting card occasions will be covered.

AT LEFT, showing you the Cube Card Corp.'s Christmas assortment of greeting cards, is Mrs. Don McKee, wife of one of the founders of the new San Rafael firm and herself active in the business. In front of her are some of the cards, flat for mailing. She holds one of the cards that has been folded into its cube form to become a Santa Claus. So far, Cube Card Corp. has produced 16 different designs for the 1964 Christmas season. There are another 40 designs by Don McKee covering the other traditional greeting card occasions.



THE APPEAL of their colorful Cube Card Corp. products, Bill and Don McKee believe, lies with those who are seeking something fresh and different in the way of greeting cards. A whimsical touch of humor lends further attraction. "Hi . . . Happy Birthday!" says this happy little fellow as he tips his hat.

Emphysema: Incurable Crippler—

Story Of One Of Its Ten Million Victims

Twenty years ago, "emphysema" was a virtually unheard-of medical term.

Today this chronic respiratory disease cripples an estimated 10 million Americans.

Harold Arvidson, 66-year-old Kentfield resident, is one of its victims.

CHIEF SYMPTOM of emphysema (em-fih-SEE-mah) is shortness of breath—the symptom common to all chronic respiratory diseases. Unfortunately, it is a symptom frequently shrugged off as an unwelcome reminder of advancing years or as an accepted consequence of too many cigarets.

Emphysemous lungs are constantly inflated (emphysema means "inflate"). Complete deflation is impossible because the tissue elasticity, which normally helps push out used air, has been destroyed.

Instead of being exhaled, carbon dioxide-laden air is trapped in abnormally enlarged, flabby-walled air spaces. Thus the lung's capacity for vital fresh air is diminished increasingly as the disease progresses.

NO SINGLE, primary cause of emphysema is known. Largest contributors are believed to be cigaret smoking and chronic respiratory infections. Other likely factors are air pollution and tissue-scarring lung infections such as tuberculosis.

More men than women have emphysema and it occurs most frequently (but by no means exclusively) in persons over 40.

Once thought to be an aging or degenerative condition, emphysema is shown by latest research by the National Tuberculosis Assn. to be of two distinct types: Chronic pulmonary emphysema and senile or atrophic emphysema.

BETWEEN 1950 and 1958, incidence skyrocketed 300 per cent in California, for some reason the hardest-hit state. In 1960 the disease totally disabled 25,000 Californians and partially disabled 670,000 more.

Emphysema can be halted — provided treatment starts before damage is too great and if the suspected triggering agents, such as infections and cigaret smoke, are removed.

But there is no cure for emphysema. The lung tissue is irreversibly altered.

THIS IS the hard fact Hal Arvidson faces. And he faces it squarely.

Sure, he is short of breath—so short that he must move slowly and plan his physical activities with great care. Also, he must never be without his nebulizer, the special atomizer which medicates the lungs in a cloud-fine mist to help clear airways. This he uses a dozen times a day.

But he maintains his apartment at 946 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard with weekly assistance in the heavy work from a high school boy, and he does his own cooking, which he declares is far superior to what he ate for many years while traveling.

MORE important, Arvidson seems to have learned two secrets of contentment under an adverse condition—accepting his condition and subjugating it by concentrating on helping others. Through will and ingenuity, he keeps busy in volunteer work.

It was in the spirit of helpfulness that he consented to join the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.'s efforts to alert Marinites to the symptoms of chronic respiratory diseases by telling his story.

The Marin TB association first heard of Arvidson last fall when he telephoned to offer his assistance in the Christmas Seals campaign.

"THE TB association is doing wonderful work, but you've still got a lot to do to make everybody realize the importance of annual chest check-ups," he says. "I want to help, but I'm house-bound. Can you bring work to me?"

The TB association could and did—and learned later that, in completing the work, Arvidson had used it as an educational tool to capture the interest of his schoolboy helper in Christmas Seals-financed work.

In the majority of his "keeping busy" jobs, the telephone is Arvidson's means of operation. Through it he does advertising and publicity for the Tiny Tots photo studio of San Anselmo, operated by his friends of 10 years, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ellermans.

IT IS thanks to the Ellermans that he does not now live entirely alone. Last fall they gave him Dah Ling, the 18-month-old sealpoint Siamese cat that "bosses" his household.

At the time of this interview, Arvidson was telephoning in the interest of the City of Hope and, perhaps at the instigation of his feline boss, for the Marin Humane Society.

On the personal side, Arvidson's background, briefly, is this:

HE ATTENDED high school and college in his native Minnesota and worked there and in Chicago as an industrial traffic manager. In the same capacity he came to the West Coast in 1923. He saw Marin for the first time a year later during a vacation trip from Oregon to Southern California, where his wife passed away in 1950.

Three years later he joined the Jewel Tea Co. as sales planning manager, a challenging and highly specialized job he loved. Involved were hiring salesmen and establishing new sales routes in a territory bounded by Monterey, Santa Rosa and Reno.

His work day averaged 10 hours, at the end of which he frequently responded to an emergency summons to the opposite end of his territory. Such "above-and-beyond" calls usually were directed to Arvidson because he had no family responsibilities.

ALTHOUGH HE had a generous expense account, Arvidson frequently forgot to eat or ate "on the fly." He smoked heavily and, like many solitary traveling men, eased his loneliness in cocktail lounges.

Arvidson's excellent salary was supplemented with both medical and hospital insurance. But he was too busy to use either. Too busy, in fact, to be anything but impatient over work slow-ups caused by chronic sinusitis.

His cough he attributed to "too

many cigarets," the damaging effects of which were then not yet so well known. His sinus difficulties and his all-weather travel schedule were blamed for his frequent respiratory infections.

IN SHORT, Hal Arvidson's health history contains two elements that occur again and again in emphysema and tuberculosis cases. Fundamentally, they are overwork and underattention to such basic health demands as sufficient food and rest.

In January of 1959 a particularly miserable cold confined him to his home, a Terra Linda motel. A magazine article explaining the importance of regular chest examinations caught his attention and moved him to action. His own chest was hurting too much to be ignored.

Opening the Marin telephone book to the classified section marked physicians and surgeons, he ran his index finger down the columns until he came to the word "chest."

"YOU WON'T believe it," he declares. "It was the biggest piece of sheer luck I ever had. The doctor I chose by chance was Marin's official chest physician and an authority on tuberculosis."

The doctor agreed to see Arvidson the next day in Ross General Hospital.

"I was near collapse and the doctor saw it immediately," Arvidson remembers. "He had me get a chest x-ray and read it without waiting for it to dry. 'Oh, oh!' he said. 'What you need is bed-rest. When can you come in?'

"I said day after tomorrow. I took care of a few business ends, put my car in storage and—boom!—to bed. Boy, did it feel good! That was Jan. 30 and I stayed in Ross Hospital Terrace until the following May 29."

UNEXPECTEDLY, even though Arvidson's chest x-ray showed lung damage caused by tuberculosis, numerous laboratory tests of sputum specimens were consistently negative. Despite his underweight, rundown condition at the time of hospitalization, the almost unbelievable conclusion seemed to be that he had recovered from active tuberculosis.

He was given tuberculosis-controlling drugs, but was moved to a private room from the suite he at first shared with two other men. Arvidson calls it the "presidential suite" because of the view.

"The food and treatment were wonderful. I can't speak too highly of the Terrace," he says.

DURING THAT summer he convalesced, and in the fall he resumed work. He maintained the old, fast pace for just three months.

"I found I just didn't have the old zip," he says simply, "so that winter I took a medical retirement from Jewel Tea Co. I was 62."

He remained under the care of the chest specialist, who diagnosed the cause of his pace-slowing shortness of breath as emphysema.

During his first year of retirement Arvidson underwent nose surgery to correct a bone structure defect caused by an improperly healed fracture suffered more than 40 years earlier. Also during that year he was rushed to San Rafael General for emergency treatment when a lung collapsed.

"I didn't do anything to cause it. It just collapsed. There was no pain, but I could scarcely breathe at all," he recalls.

LAST SUMMER when site development began for the nearby Northgate Shopping Center, dust filtering into his home compounded Arvidson's breathing difficulties.

He moved to his present second-floor apartment at Kentfield Corners.

Its many advantages, he says, include plenty of fresh air, nearness to markets ("Sometimes the boy does the marketing; sometimes I do."), and its proximity to Ross Terrace and his doctor.

The stairs he can manage, he says, by taking plenty of time.

"EVIDENTLY my doctor thinks my emphysema is arrested," Arvidson says. "I used to see him every month; now I see him every two months. But he always tells me, 'Harold, if you feel wheezy, come any time.' That means a great deal, you can bet."

He admits, though, that his physician can be pretty hard and uncompromising about one thing—the cigaret habit.

Like other chest physicians, among his first instructions to patients with respiratory diseases is: "Quit smoking—and that's an order."

GIVING UP cigarets hasn't been easy for Arvidson. If he had his life to live over, he wouldn't start.

Not smoking is only one of the changes he would make.

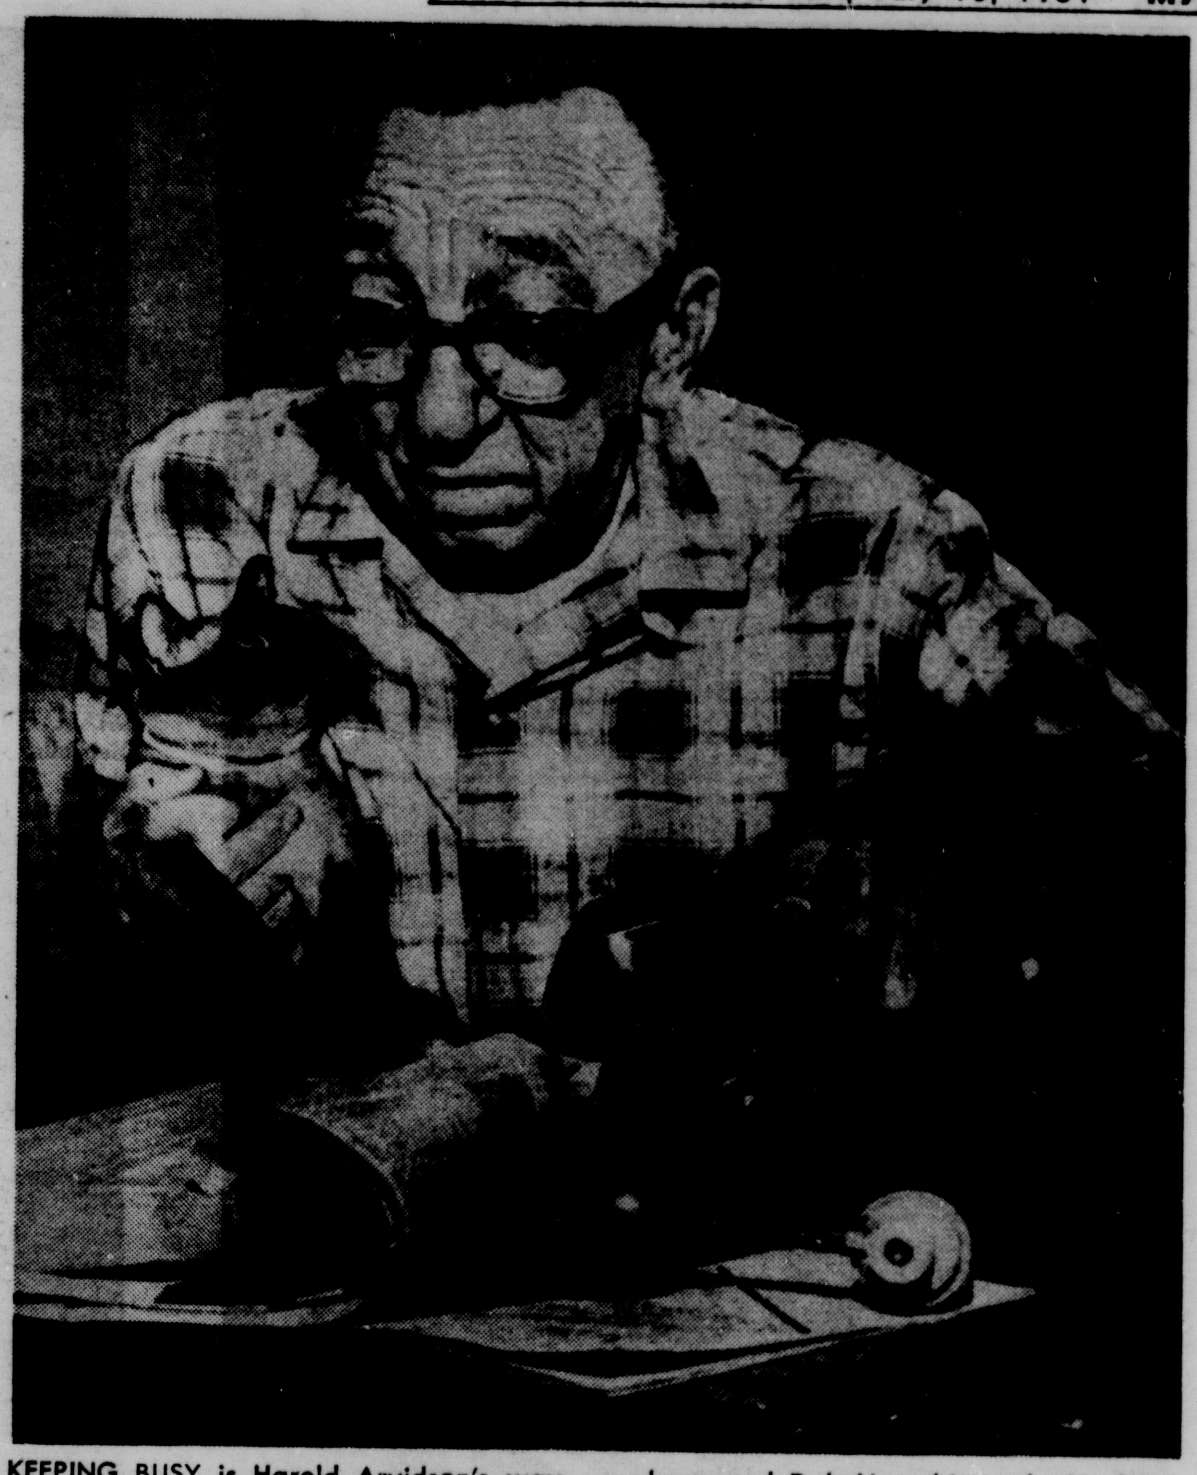
"You can bet I would take the time to take care of my health and, believe me, I would pay attention to the warning symptoms the people at the TB association are talking about," he declares.

Next-best to having that lamentably illusive second chance, Arvidson believes, is the chance to help others avoid his mistakes.

SPEAKING WITH the depth of conviction only personal experience can lend, he says: "I believe everyone, of all ages, should see a doctor at least twice a year. And everybody should get a chest check-up, either by x-ray or tuberculin test, every single year of their lives."

"In my opinion, we should have a law requiring annual chest examinations," Harold Arvidson declares.

Almost audible, though unspoken, was the sequel thought: "I wish there had been such a law to safeguard me."



KEEPING BUSY is Harold Arvidson's way of trying to ignore his emphysema, the incurable respiratory disease that shortens his breaths and confines him largely to his Kentfield apartment. Aided by the telephone and Dah Ling, his sealpoint Siamese cat, he contributes his time and energy to public-benefiting efforts such as the Christmas Seals and City of Hope campaigns.

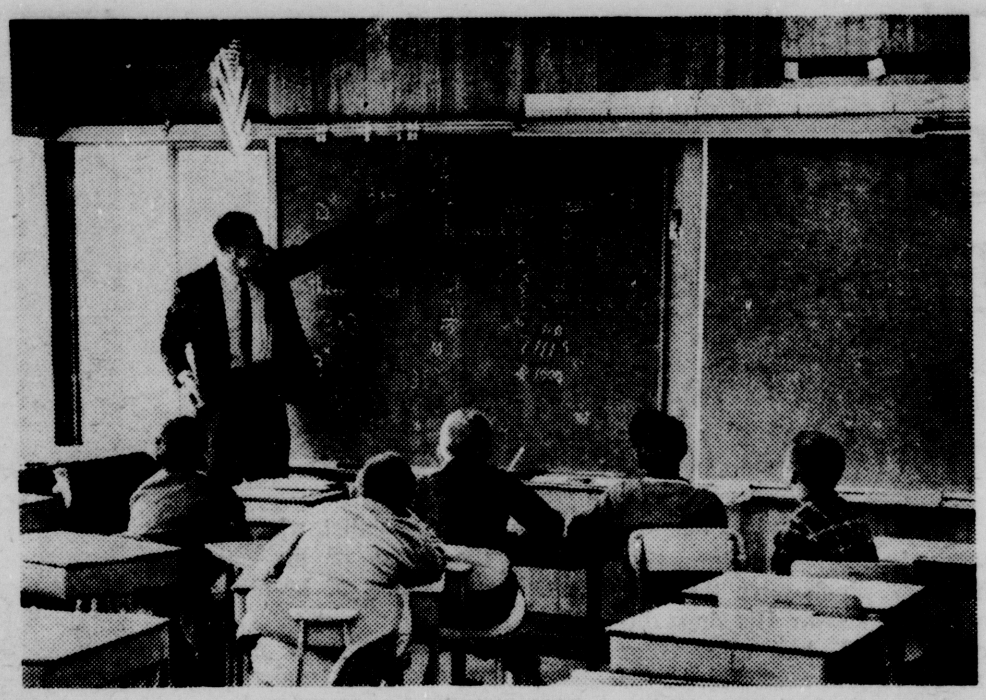
BUILDING AN electric motor is fun, but did you ever try to do it without first reading the instructions? Reed Union School District summer session teachers used projects like this to increase their pupils' interest in school-work, and to show them the importance of such basic skills as reading and arithmetic.

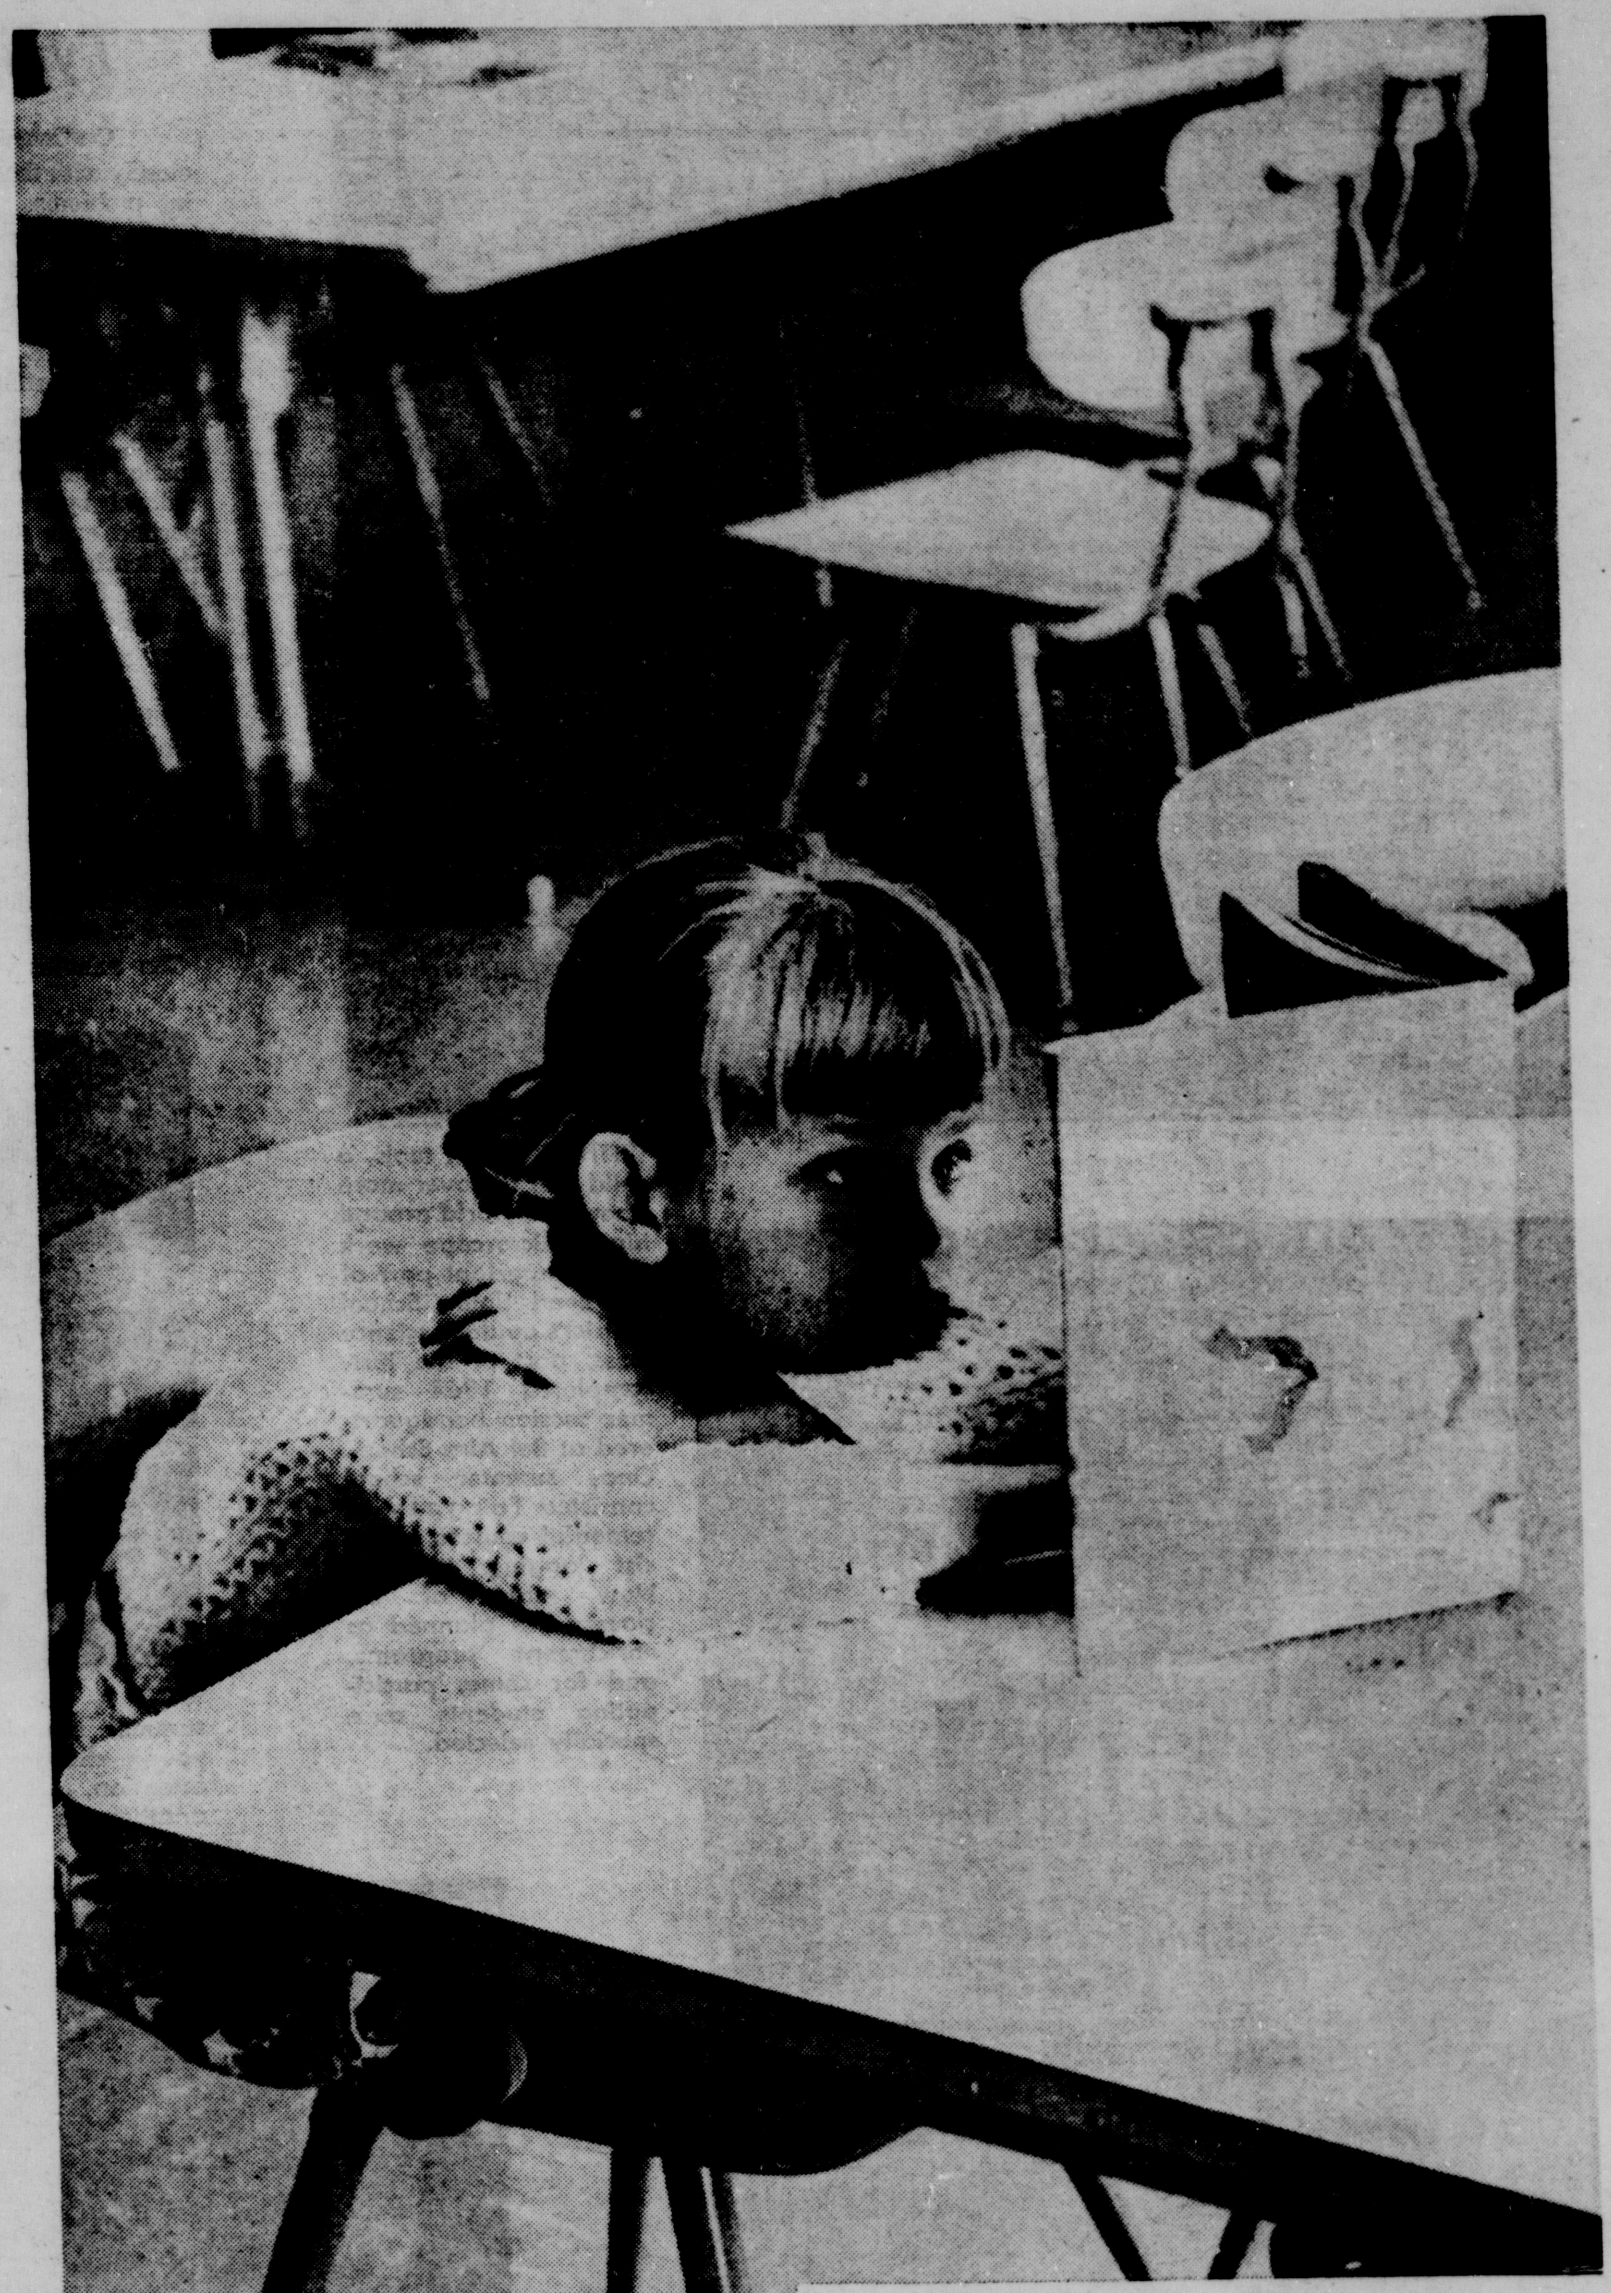


SMALL GROUP INSTRUCTION is the keynote of the Reed Union School District's summer session. Three teachers work as a team, instructing about 30 children and arranging the pupils to suit their needs and interests. Here teacher Jim Duvall works with an arithmetic group. At the same time another teacher may have a reading group, while a third instructor is preparing a science demonstration. Later, the whole group may meet in one room for a film or lecture.

COMBINING ARTS and crafts with their geography lesson, these summer school students at Bel Aire make paper mache globes under the supervision of teacher Betty Symmes. Mrs. Symmes has first, second and third graders in her class, and permits each child to approach the basic lesson material on his or her own level.

HOW DID THE egg get in the bottle? Teacher Mike Delegeane encourages his "Exploring the World of Science" students at Bel Aire School to figure things out for themselves. The demonstration shows the effect of differences in air pressures, and will be applied later to space travel conditions. (Photos by Bill Steele)

How Summer Schools Have Changed



DEVELOPMENT of a love of reading is one of the major objectives of Reed Union High School District summer session teachers. It matters not whether the pupil is advanced or remedial. Consequently, free time in the library is provided for all the summer classes. Totally engrossed in her book is Elizabeth Stong. (Photo by Bill Steele)

'Enrichment' Has Become A Key Word

"Summer school" used to be dirty words to most kids.

It was, quite frankly, the place where you went if you "flunked" a course.

But nowadays, something new has been added. Nearly 10,000 children and young people enrolled in 1964 summer sessions throughout Marin County, and by no means were all of them taking remedial courses.

MANY ENROLLED in "enrichment" programs, studying material in science, literature, math and creative arts that goes beyond the regular school curriculum. Some specially selected students are attending or attended highly advanced "accelerated" courses.

A large number chose recreation programs that offer everything from vigorous sports to chess and guided reading programs.

Even the remedial courses have been livened up to a pace that one teacher calls "slow enrichment."

A PRIME example of what a modern summer school can be is provided by the Reed Union School District summer session at Bel Aire School, located near the north end of the Tiburon Peninsula, that came to a successful close yesterday.

Although organized on a low budget — the entire program costs the district only $5,000 with another $7,000 coming from state and county sources — Reed's four-week summer session offered a full range of courses at all levels.

Enrichment courses included language arts, a survey of the world of science and two courses in outdoor science, one of which included a week-long camping trip.

A SPECIAL class for gifted students combined children from grades one through three—with some of them doing sixth grade level work.

Remedial classes were also set up on a "non-graded" basis. For instance, fourth and fifth grades were together, as were sixth and seventh. Within each class, children were frequently broken up into even smaller groups, so that a teacher could work more closely with those who had similar problems.

Teachers worked on a team basis, with teacher-pupil ratios as low as 10 to one.

TO MAKE remedial work more interesting, teachers set their charges on a study of outer space, with reading and arithmetic practice coming as a natural by-product. More important even than the practice, the teachers feel, was the building of the pupil's interest and enthusiasm for school work.

To an untrained observer the Bel Aire campus was more reminiscent this summer of a university than an elementary school. In one room you might have seen three students working with a teacher, in another a dozen grouped around a science experiment, while in still another 50 were watching a movie.

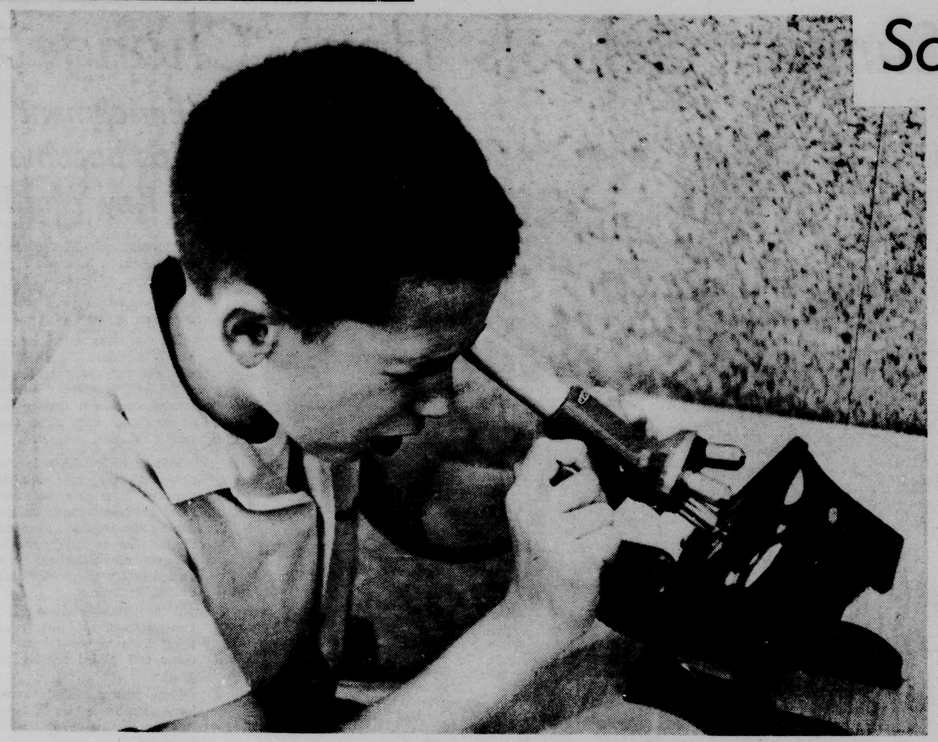
Ten minutes later the whole pattern would change.

FLEXIBILITY was the keynote of the schedule set up by summer session Principal Robert D. Gowan. There were no "periods" when classes had to change, so teachers were free to work as long as their students' interest lasted — or to move immediately when it lagged.

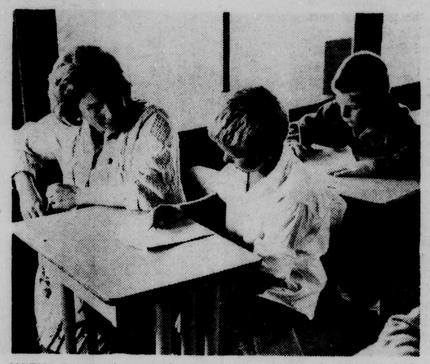
Teachers often traded classes, or took over two groups at recess time, leaving one teacher free to plan a lesson or set up a demonstration.

As the Reed summer session rolled into its closing days, teachers reported nothing but enthusiasm among themselves, and a noteworthy shortage of behavior problems among their students.

QUITE THE contrary, in fact. For some children, at least, the summer session was probably all too short.



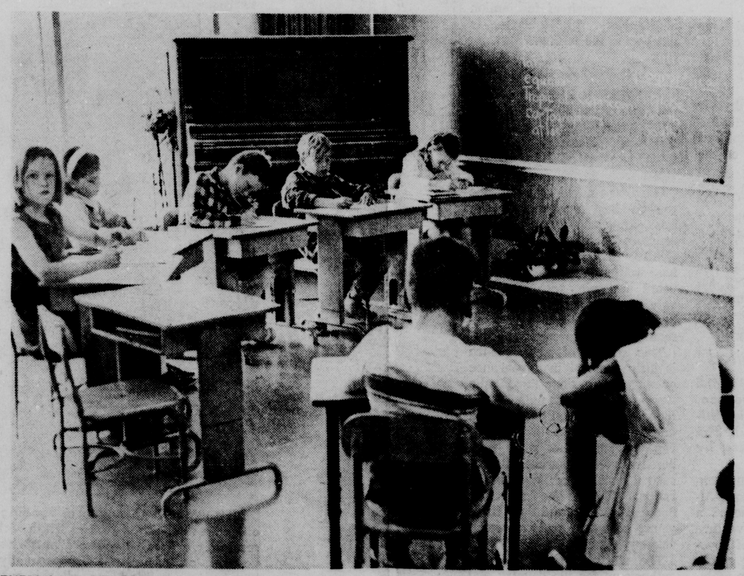
WITH THE right tools, a child can discover more about the world around him. Microscope work is an important part of the Reed Union School District's outdoor science class, part of the just-completed 1964 summer session headquartered at Bel Aire School. Once summer school consisted largely of remedial courses to assist lagging students. Now many of the classes are planned as enrichment programs, and for some, participating students are specially selected.



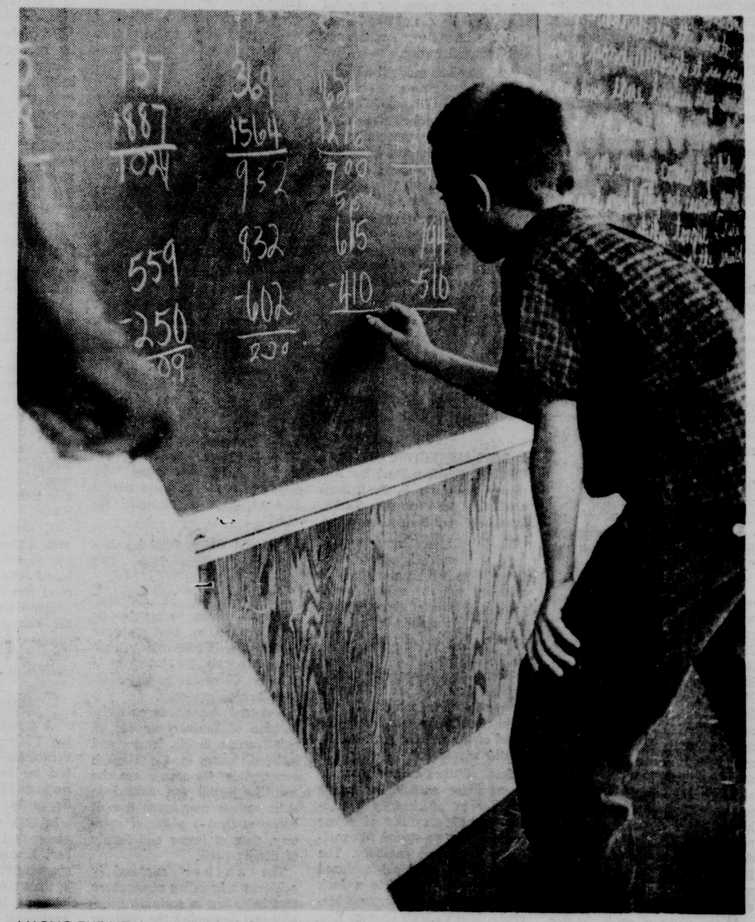
WITH A pupil-to-teacher ratio as low as 10 to one, summer school classes permit instructors to give their young charges the advantage of plenty of individual attention. Mrs. Ruth Reilly works with one student, while another teacher is supervising the remainder of the class.

A SIMPLE demonstration making use of corks and strings permits Reed District summer session teacher Mike Delegeane to illustrate how centrifugal force and gravity act on an orbiting satellite. The scene is the "Exploring the World of Science" class offering a survey for science-minded youngsters of both the established and new scientific principles. Reed also offered two outdoor science courses as part of its 1964 summer curriculum.

MAKING THEIR OWN soil is the project undertaken by these energetic young members of the "Natural Science of Marin County" summer session course at the Reed District's Bel Aire School. They are breaking up rocks to which they will add humus and other organic matter collected on field trips into the hills behind the school. The class is an enrichment course for fourth and fifth graders.



THERE'S NOTHING "square" about this Reed Union School District summer school class. The circular arrangement of the desks serves two very beneficial purposes. It encourages group discussion among the students. And it puts the teacher an equal distance from each child when he or she presides from the center. (Photos by Bill Steele)



AMONG THE NEW courses which have made their appearance upon the school curriculum, many of the old favorites can still be found. The old-fashioned arithmetic lesson, for instance, is still all-important, especially at the primary level. And problems are still solved at the blackboard even as they were in the time of these youngsters' parents and grandparents.

Some Special Treats For Men Who Enjoy Outdoor Life

By DON KEOWN

Three books this week for the men, two of them with special appeal for the outdoorsmen, the third aimed at followers of a spectator sport.

And any one or all of them would make excellent gifts, to be purchased now and put away for Christmas, if the interests of the head of your household are bent in the proper direction.

THE CHEECHAKAES by Wayne Short, Random House, 244 pages, $4.95.

A WORLD OF FISHING by Joe Brooks, Van Nostrand, 375 pages, $9.75.

EVERY DIAMOND DOESN'T SPARKLE by Fresco Thompson and Cy Rice, David McKay Co., 238 pages, $4.50.

WAYNE SHORT'S "Cheechakaes" has been receiving considerable attention and promotion, and is worthy of the interest it has attracted.

It is the true tale of the Short family who shortly after World War II, plagued by ill fortune in the States, decided to leave civilization behind them and start life anew in the still frontier surroundings of a lonely Alaskan island. There they learn to live off the land and from the sea, and to cope with dangers that range from wild bears to savage blizzards. Isolation, they discover, can be both a friend and a foe.

Author Short is one of those natural-born storytellers, and he keeps his narration moving at a lively pace, retaining all the excitement of an adventurous existence while picturing the beauty and awesomeness of the remote, unspoiled setting. The unique character of the Alaskan who spurns comfort for challenge is also expertly presented.

There's a lot of fishing, hunting and trapping to enthrall the sportsman, and some philosophizing on Short's part to give the book added depth. As for the title, "cheechakaes" is Indian for "greenhorns." Which the Shorts are no longer.

JOE BROOKS has become a familiar face with American sportsmen as a result of his appearances as a fishing expert on the American Broadcasting Co. television series "Wide World of Sports." Before that, his name was well-known for his articles in outdoor magazines and because of his work on various sports fishing research projects.

A genuine authority in his field and a world traveler as well, Brooks has put together a fascinating collection of accounts of his fishing experiences in 14 different countries in his "A World of Fishing."

You begin with white marlin off the Bahamas, then match wits and skill with the prime game fish of British Honduras, Panama, Mexico, Argentina, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Africa, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Ireland, England, Scotland, Iceland, Newfoundland and Bermuda. Sometimes you are battling the behemoths of the sea, sometimes wily lake fish, sometimes sleek denizens of the streams. And while providing full details of just how he made his catches, Brooks does not neglect the local color and anecdotes that give his professionally-illustrated book added interest well beyond the ranks of hard-core fishing fanatics.

At the close of each chapter, he offers up-to-date information on how to get to the country he has just covered, where to stay and where to fish when you get there, the proper tackle to use, probable costs, etc.

Thus the book becomes both a practical guide for the traveling fisherman plus enjoyable armchair reading for the sportsman who cannot so readily seek out the tarpon, the tiger fish, the tuna or the grayling in their home waters.

"EVERY Diamond Doesn't Sparkle" is standard baseball fare—the recollections and opinions of a knowledgeable baseball veteran, in this instance Los Angeles Dodger executive Fresco Thompson, polished and put down on paper by a professional writer, in this case Cy Rice.

Thompson has been a player, manager and scout as well as a front office man. He has a better ear than most for a good story. And he has strong beliefs on some of the more controversial baseball topics.

And Rice has made it all very readable.

Thus "Every Diamond Doesn't Sparkle" is better than most baseball books, especially for the Dodger fans, and there are a few such non-conformists even here deep in Giant territory. A good many of the opinions are definitely colored by his own status as a member of baseball's "establishment," but fans will find this journey behind the scenes of major league ball an interesting itinerary.

RICHARD Cardinal Cushing of the Roman Catholic Church's Boston Diocese has written the foreword for Peter Howard's new book, "Design for Dedication," on Moral Re-Armament. Published by Henry Regnery Co., it is Howard's 13th book. Royalties from all Howard books and plays are turned over to Moral Re-Armament.

MARINITE Alan Watts has another book scheduled for publication this fall. His "Beyond Theology: The Art of Godsmanship" will be published in November by Pantheon Books of New York. The publisher describes it as "a lively and irreverent book" that attacks "official Christian theology." And author Watts is termed "one of the most original thinkers in the country. . . ."

LOS ANGELES DODGER "front office" executive Fresco Thompson, as sketched here by Willard Mullin, is the co-author, with writer Cy Rice, of the new baseball book, "Every Diamond Doesn't Sparkle," reviewed on this page.

For Music Lovers

AN AMATEUR AT THE KEYBOARD by Peter Yates, Pantheon Books, 287 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

Not for the amateur in the sense of novice is this book by one of America's outstanding writers and lecturers on music, who was graduated from Princeton before it had a music department.

It is for the amateur in the sense of "lover" of music, and a knowledgeable one at that, for this is an erudite book which may profitably be used by music teachers.

A plea for the reading of music as literature for pure enjoyment, not necessarily to be performed with any degree of skill, is perhaps Yates' most important message.

"Music will not survive in the concert hall if we do not keep it living in our homes," he says. This, he feels, is the responsibility of the amateur and the answer for the highly trained musician, who for one reason or another no longer performs publicly.

The author discusses organ, piano, harpsichord and clavichord and the essential elements in their construction and performance on them.

He deals with their literature by recommending what is indispensable and by giving a brief history of the music of each century from the 16th to the present, including analysis of its forms and style of performing. He also traces the evolution of scales, melody, rhythm, harmony, key and tuning.

His discussion of temperament, tuning, rhythm and embellishment, both in the body of the book and two appendixes, is an eye-opener on why we lose much in modern performance of early music. He maintains that study of tuning alone could clear up confusions in harmonic theory.

Yates insists that the amateur should return to the earlier emphasis on improvisation first; sight reading, second; and memorizing, third.

He challenges much that is accepted, such as that faithfulness to score is paramount and that touch can be varied on the piano.

Of special interest to those who suffer from stagefright is his chapter entitled "Release," based on a method he has taken from Zen Buddhism techniques.

Other topics of interest are the arts of programming, accompanying and criticism, and what an amateur can do in the musical life of his community.

Colony That Failed

A SOUTHWESTERN UTOPIA by Thomas A. Robertson, Ward Ritchie Press (distributed by Lane Book Co.), 265 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In 1885, a visionary young engineer and promoter named Albert Kimsey Owen launched a cooperative colonization venture in the unlikely location of Topolobampo, in Sinaloa state on the west coast of the Mexican mainland.

Owen had tremendous ideas for Topolobampo.

There was a deep water channel which could take ocean-going vessels. He proposed to develop it as the principal port of Mexico, and to tie it by rail with the United States. He succeeded in interesting President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico and various highly placed figures in the United States. This helped sell the stock for the series of companies he organized to construct the railroad (that was never built).

To colonize the area, he set up the "Credit Foncier of Sinaloa," a Utopian but authoritarian cooperative colony. It attracted, along with others, a coterie of idealistic intellectuals reminiscent of Brook Farm. The colony was doomed from its inception. It lacked water, money, and know-how — among other things.

Thomas A. Robertson, who grew up there, has attempted to tell the story of Topolobampo in "A Southwestern Utopia," subtitled, "An American Colony in Mexico."

There is much of fascination in the story. But Robertson is unequal to the telling.

Countess' Story

THE EARTH RESTS LIGHTLY by Aline Griffith (the Countess of Quintanilla), Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 213 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Often named one of the world's best dressed women, this American-born Spanish countess who began life as Aline Griffith of Pearl River, N.Y., has written the story of her years in Spain, with emphasis on the restoration of her husband's ancestral estate in a remote area of the country.

This section of Estremadura is little changed in appearance or way of life since the Middle Ages and the old palacio she found in the family proved a great challenge to this American woman, who with total perseverance researched its ancestral history and began restoration. Today, she and her Spanish husband and their three young sons use it as a warm country home.

The story is vital with her enthusiasm for the country and peasants whom she has come to know well in this little-known region, and is written with taste and intelligence.

Sleuths & Suspense

BEST DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE YEAR edited by Anthony Boucher, E. P. Dutton and Co., 284 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That "old pro" among mystery writers and editors, Anthony Boucher, has assembled another superb collection of published crime short stories for Dutton's annual "Best Detective Stories of the Year" anthology.

There are fewer big names represented this year — more relatively new comers to the field and unknowns. But the level of the writing remains exceptionally high.

One of the amazing things about these anthologies is the manner in which they demonstrate the versatility of crime writers. No two stories fit exactly in the same category. The range is from an old-fashioned Ellery Queen puzzle to a Jack Ritchie horror chiller. One Marinite, Mill Valley's Charles Einstein, is represented.

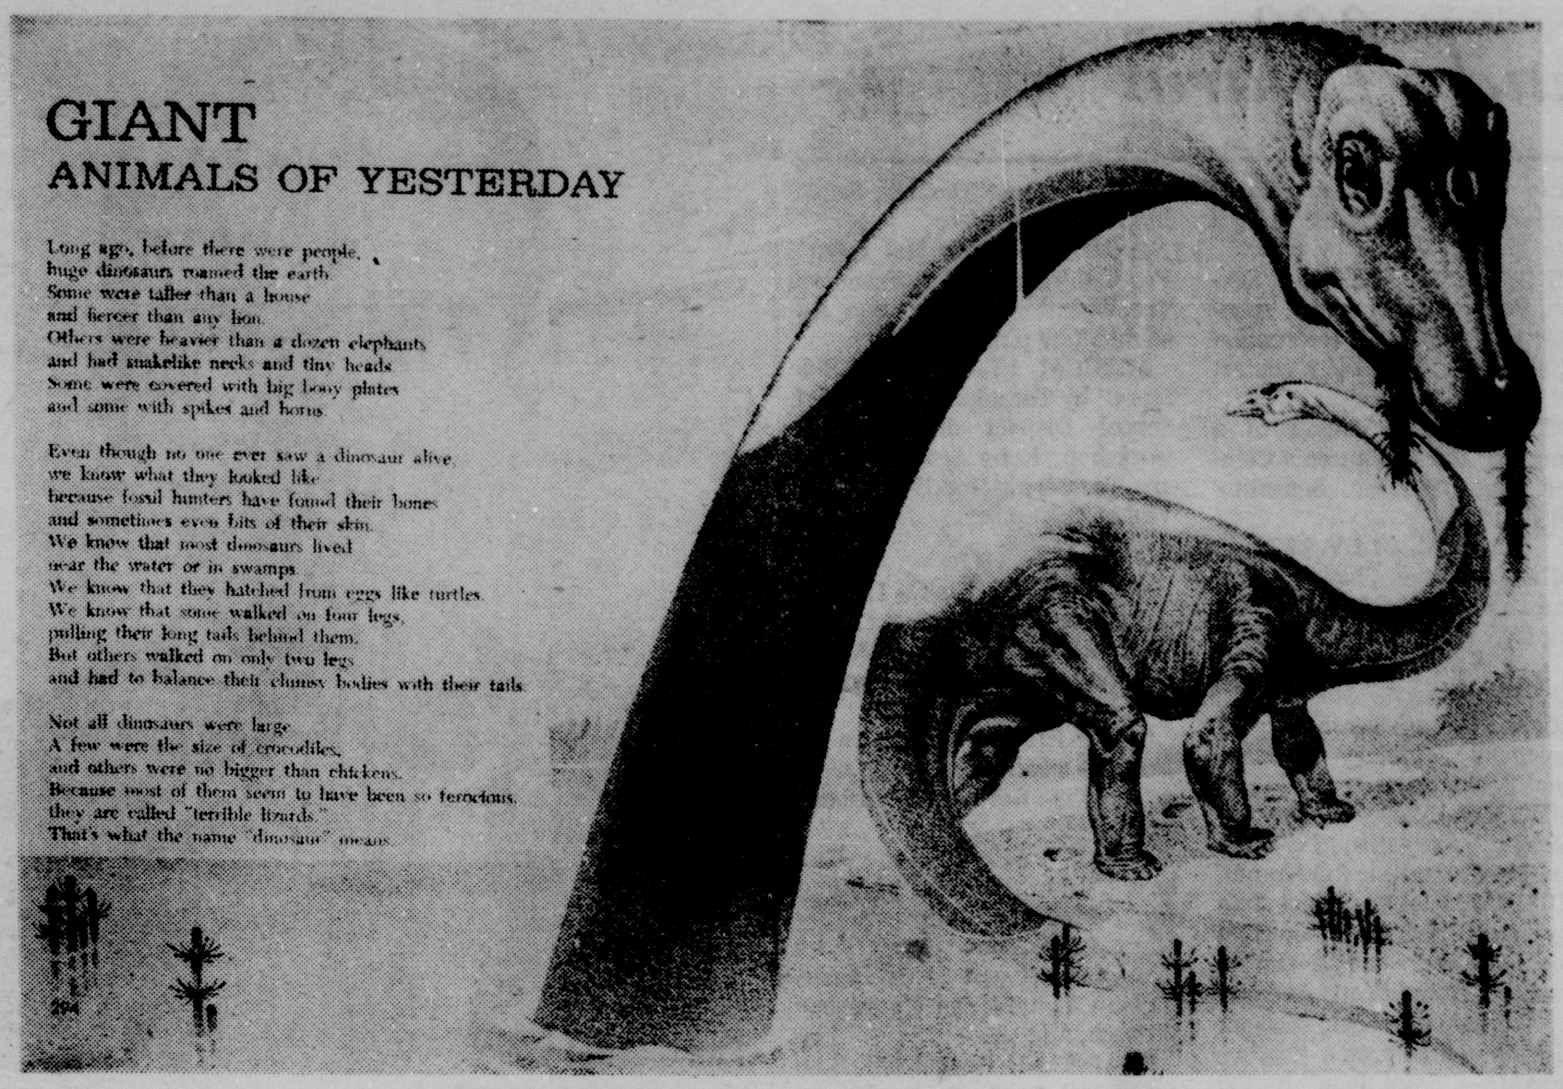
Our personal favorites were another Ritchie tale, a breezy and very clever story entitled "The Operator," and Ken Purdy's eerie, highly original "The Golden Frog." But you should like all, or most, of these. We did.

DEATH OF A FOX by Jan Roffman, Crime Club, 191 pages, $3.50.

The "damsel in distress" theme continues to provide us with some of our best suspense fiction. Jan Roffman's "Death of a Fox" is the latest of a number of recent superior efforts in this category.

Widowed Joanna accepts the position of housekeeper for an elderly man in his dreary and isolated house in the English countryside. No sooner are she and her small son settled in their remote new home than it becomes first a place of mystery, then of terror and finally of deadly peril.

The author successfully achieves a brooding atmosphere that helps her in sustaining tension and deepening the chill for her readers. The women, especially, will enjoy this one. But it makes quite satisfactory reading for the men as well.



ILLUSTRATIONS FOR Field Enterprises' new "Childcraft, The How and Why Library" set of 15 volumes are carefully selected and beautifully reproduced. The prehistoric creatures above are taken from the fourth volume entitled "Life Around Us," and the art work is by the renowned scientific illustrator, Rudolph Freund. The "Childcraft" books are reviewed below.

READING TO PLEASE THE CHILD

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest readers:

What trio could be more appealing to young adventure fans than "Two Dogs and a Horse"? The book of that title by Jim Kjelgaard (Dodd, Mead and Co., $3.50) is actually not just one but three separate stories, two with canine heroes, the third with an equine central character. There is no excess of violent action, but the stories do not drag. The spirit of the outdoors is to be found in all of them. And the ties that bind man and his animal friends are effectively demonstrated. Fine for boys 12 to 15 with a yen for the outdoors and a love for animals.

Girls 8 to 12 are the intended audience for Marilyn Sachs' "Amy Moves In" (Doubleday, $2.95), and they should be well entertained by this yarn about a little girl who undergoes the ordeal of moving onto a new block—and learns the changed surroundings aren't so bad after all. New friends, she finds, can be even nicer than old friends.

For boys 5 through 7, Norah Smaridge has written a rollicking story in rhyme about "Impatient Jonathan" (Abingdon, $1.75), who learns the hard way that enthusiasms sometimes have to be curbed. There's a moral, but it isn't preachy. And Margo Locke is responsible for illustrations certain to attract and hold the interest of small readers.

Young nature lovers will be fascinated by "Insects" by Su Zan Nobuchi Swain, entomologist and artist. The book is part of Doubleday's "First Guides" series of natural history identification books with colorful and authentic illustrations by Mrs. Swain along with informative textual descriptions. A great deal of general information on the huge insect family is also presented. More than 40 of the more familiar and interesting insects are accorded individual attention.

15 VOLUMES
A Library For The Youngsters

An encylcopedic set for the tiny tots that grows with them as they mature has been assembled by Field Enterprises Educational Corp. under the title "Childcraft, The Why and How Library."

The set consists of 15 sturdily and handsomely-bound volumes totalling 5,040 pages. But it is the content, not the size, that makes the undertaking impressive.

Field Enterprises of Chicago, publisher of World Book Encyclopedia, claims to have invested two million dollars in collecting the resource material for preschool and primary grade children. An examination of the wealth of data and of its presentation makes that claim believable.

WHAT "Childcraft" attempts, and succeeds to a remarkable extent in doing, is to answer the questions that most often occur to the little ones—and to stimulate them into asking still more questions, which, in turn, are also answered farther along in the same book. Each volume has been arranged progressively, beginning with the needs of the baby and continuing with him into the early school years.

Volume I is entitled "Poems and Rhymes," and its contents range from Mother Goose through the verse of Emily Dickinson, Robert Louis Stevenson, Lewis Carroll, Eugene Field, Christopher Morley, et al, to Carl Sandburg and Phyllis McGinley. From "Pat-A-Cake" and "Pease Porridge Hot" to a collection of children's prayers. It is followed with a volume entitled "Stories and Fables" that is equally well-tailored for pointing the little ones toward a love of good reading.

There follow volumes for "A Foundation for Understanding Science"—"World and Space," "Life Around Us," "How We Get Things" and "How Things Work."

IN THE social sciences — "Holidays and Customs," "How Things Change," "People to Know," "Scientists and Inventors," "What People Do" and "Pioneers and Patriots."

To stimulate creativity and encourage health and safety — "Make and Do" with some 600 activities to develop artistic and manual skills.

Volumes 14 and 15 are for the parents—the former a collection of 150 articles by authorities in medicine, psychology, education, child guidance, etc.; the latter a closing index and guide for maximum use of the set.

The books are beautifully and effectively illustrated, expertly planned to appeal to the child's imaginative mind.

THE SET sells for $120.90, not an outlandish price considering the going price of children's books today—and the balance, comprehension and overall quality which has been attained in "Childcraft."

Young parents just beginning the rearing of their first child will be especially fortunate to have these books on hand to help them in their task ahead. The youngster would be even more fortunate. As would be a little brother and little sister yet to come.

"Good Grooming Tips For Summer Cottons"

Ladies, be careful. Many cotton fashions this summer have the popular leather trim. But the National Institute of Drycleaning warns that what appears to be leather is sometimes plastic. And this can make a difference to the drycleaner. But then the drycleaner has to be sure the fabric itself can also be wet cleaned. Institute members have received a technical bulletin advising how to handle this tricky summer fashion.

The Institute offers this tip for you to keep in mind when shopping. Get a guarantee that the suede or leather trim is drycleanable. And make sure you know whether th trim is real or imitation leather. This information will help the drycleaner.

Stereo Hi-Fi

By C. J. Catania
Audio Engineer

GETTING THE BEST SOUND FROM YOUR TAPE RECORDER. Most tape recorders are capable of furnishing the listener with rich full range round; however, the recorder itself may reporduce thin limited range sound.

When a manufacturer designs a tape recorder, he has to make it small enough to be portable. Because of this, the loudspeaker, or speakers in a stereo recorder, together with the speaker inclosure is very small. These speakers within small tape recorder boxes cannot provide full range sound. The bass range suffers the most because it cannot be properly reproduced.

The electronics in most recorders is capable of furnishing the complete musical range with much better fidelity than the average commercial home radio console. In order to achieve this fine sound, the user has to by-pass the small internal speakers of the recorder and allow the recorder to reproduce its full range sound through larger external speaker systems.

The majority of home tape recorders have jacks that are marked "External Speaker" or something similar. By plugging into the jack, the internal speaker is disconnected, and the audio is passed out through the cable to the speaker connected to the end of this cable.

To obtain good results, the external speakers need not be expensive or excessively large. A good 8 inch loudspeaker in the 15 dollar range and a shelf model cabinet in the 15 dollar to 25 dollar range will provide amazingly good sound. For a stereo unit, you plug-in two external speaker systems.

If your recorder is a stereo model, you will enhance the stereo reproduction by using the external speakers. Since the speakers in the recorder itself are only a few inches apart, the stereo effect is practically non-existent. With the external speakers, the separation can be made 6 to 7 feet and the stereo prerecorded tapes will come alive.

Another suggestion is to hang patio speakers in your outdoor area and terminate the speaker with a cable and plug to fit your recorder. Just plug it into your recorder and float the taped music throughout your patio area.

Your tape recorder will surprise you with beautiful sound when you plug in the external speakers. Try it.

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

Some new modern jazz sides:

THE SHERIFF—Modern Jazz Quartet — Atlantic Stereo SD 1414:

The title tune of the MJQ's latest conjures up TV westerns as sure as shootin'.

There are noisy rim-shots, followed by dramatic silences, and then fast-swinging improvisation. A delight.

There are two selections from John Lewis' music to Inge play "Natural Affection." John's interest in concert music is shown graphically by the absolutely gorgeous treatment of Villa-Lobos' "Bachianas Brasileiras," a work performed originally with guitarist Laurindo Almeida at last year's Monterey Jazz Festival.

For all MJQ fans and anybody else looking for the epitome of modern "chamber jazz."

A QUARTET IS A QUARTET IS A QUARTET—Modern Jazz Quartet, Hungarian Gypsy Quartet, Quartet de Milano — Atlantic Stereo 1420:

Each of the three quartets heard on this disc are contemporary and yet respectful of the traditions behind their individual styles of music.

John Lewis, leader of the Modern Jazz Quartet, feels all three groups have a great deal in common and put them together to demonstrate. The MJQ opens the program with four selections of their finely-honed jazz sounds.

"Winter Tale" is extremely gypsy-flavored, coming originally from a movie sound track played by gypsy musicians with the MJQ. "Concorde" is an early Lewis piece which features tight interplay of several melodies at once, similar to the Webern music to follow.

Side two of the disc presents the Quartetto di Milano in Anton Webern's "Five Pieces," a severely atonal work by the late Viennese follower of Schoenberg's 12-tone methods. Like jazz musicians, Webern was known for his ability to say his piece with extreme brevity—one movement is only 36 seconds long. Another link to the other music are the unusual effects drawn from the instruments by use of various bowing and striking techniques — reminding us that both gypsy and jazz musicians are often accused of producing ungainly "noises."

The use of tremolo by Webern is also reflected in gypsy music.

The second track on Side two features the Hungarian Gypsy Quartet in a concert medley. The quartet is composed of violin, viola, cimbalom and contrabass.

The album notes draw comparison between the improvisation of gypsy music and jazz; also the bending of notes, dissonant harmonies similar in all three types of music.

Altogether a most imaginative and educational idea, adroitly handled.

THE QUIET BLUES of Mississippi John Hurt, guitarist and country singer, will be presented from the stage of Brown's Hall in Mill Valley tomorrow night at 8 o'clock under the auspices of Chris A. Strachwitz. A recording artist back in the 1920s, Hurt went back to working on the railroad and picking cotton for his living after the record market dried up in the depression years. He was re-discovered in 1963 and was a hit at the Newport Folk Festival that year.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

THREE CHILDREN

Three children sitting at my feet—
Two sons and daughter, oh so sweet—
And as I read of the Promised Land,
A lifetime of knowledge I place in each hand,
Knowing I've done a mother's best
As I meditate and rest.

Above all, I stress these lines—
If thee abandon God,
God will abandon thee.

A TOUCH OF ORIENTAL styling has been given to the exterior of the Oakview Club which faces on broad sunning and play areas, swimming pools and tennis courts. Apartments With Own Clubhouse

An apartment complex that boasts a private club for its residents is nearing completion at the Meadows near Terra Linda.

This 25-acre development, designed by Welton Becket and Associates (the same architects who designed the Emporium), is featuring one, two and three-bedroom apartments, and townhouses with two and three bedrooms and extra baths — all beautifully landscaped with oaks, olives, pines, shrubs, lawns and flowers.

APARTMENT buildings are laid out so as to have as their centerpiece the Oakview Club, an indoors and outdoors recreation area with large dining and social rooms, cocktail lounge, exercise room, showers and sauna baths, intended for Meadows residents and their guests.

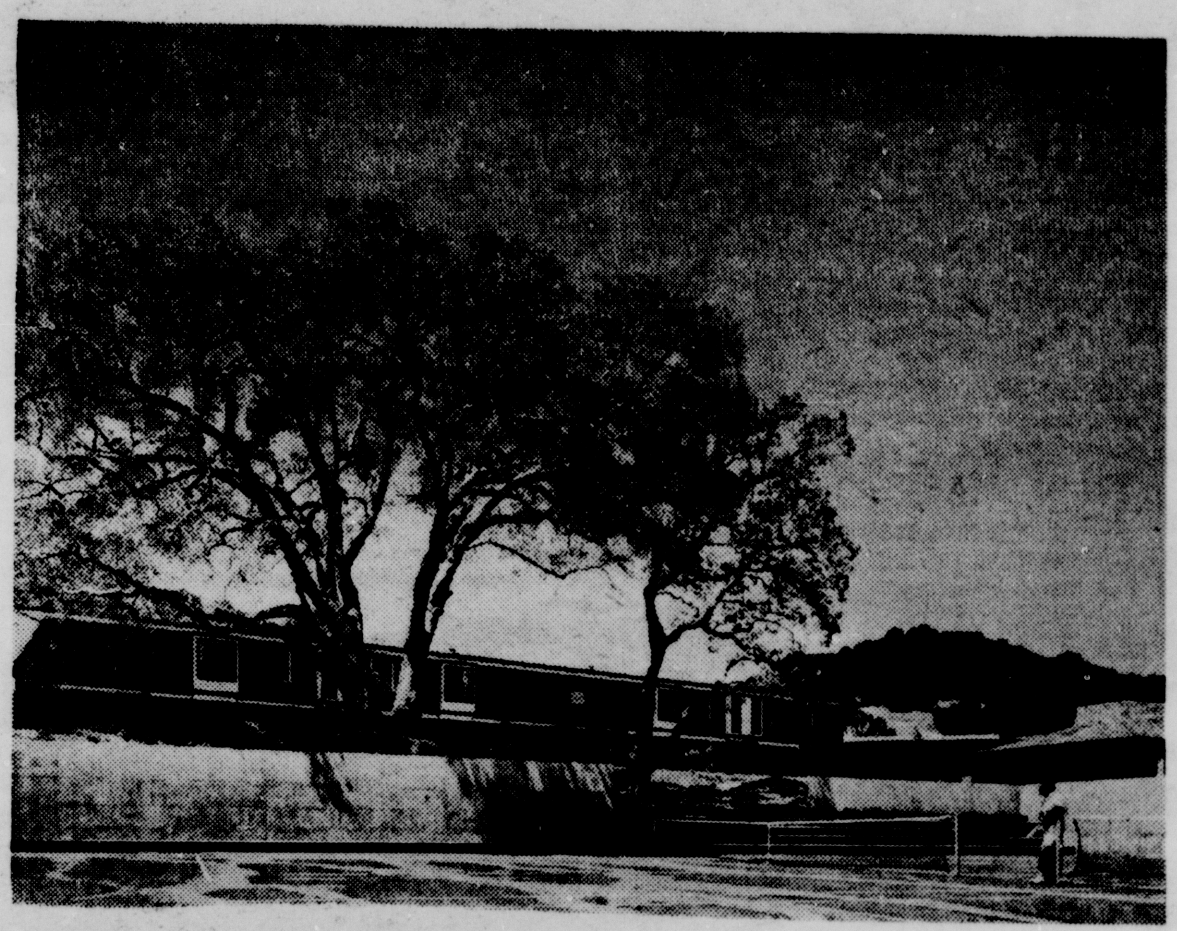
Rentals include club dues.

Outside facilities include two tennis courts with bleachers to seat 500 people, two heated swimming pools and a wading pool, shuffleboard court, table tennis, sunning areas and barbecues.

The development is headed by Calvin C. B. Wheeler and his associates, who were principals in Terra Linda Oaks. Club manager is Shaun Wiltshire, owner of Wiltshire Towers on Highway 101, San Rafael.

CONSTRUCTION work is being done by Stolte Inc., with landscape architecture under Douglas Baylis.

The Meadows is located at 910 Lea Drive, near the west end of the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway.



SUNKEN tennis courts at the Oakview Club will host exhibition and tournament games, with bleachers from where spectators can watch the matches. A tennis pro will be available for lessons. The Oakview Club is centered among apartment buildings of the Meadows and within a short walking distance for all residents of the apartment homes.

MANY residential developments today have their own community clubhouses, but few of them so luxuriously appointed as this, with a licensed bar and facilities for private receptions, bridge luncheons, fashion shows and other affairs. Lunches and, later on, dinners will be served to club members and their guests, depending upon the demand. A mirrored exercise room, completely equipped, can also be used for dances, indoor movies and keep fit programs.

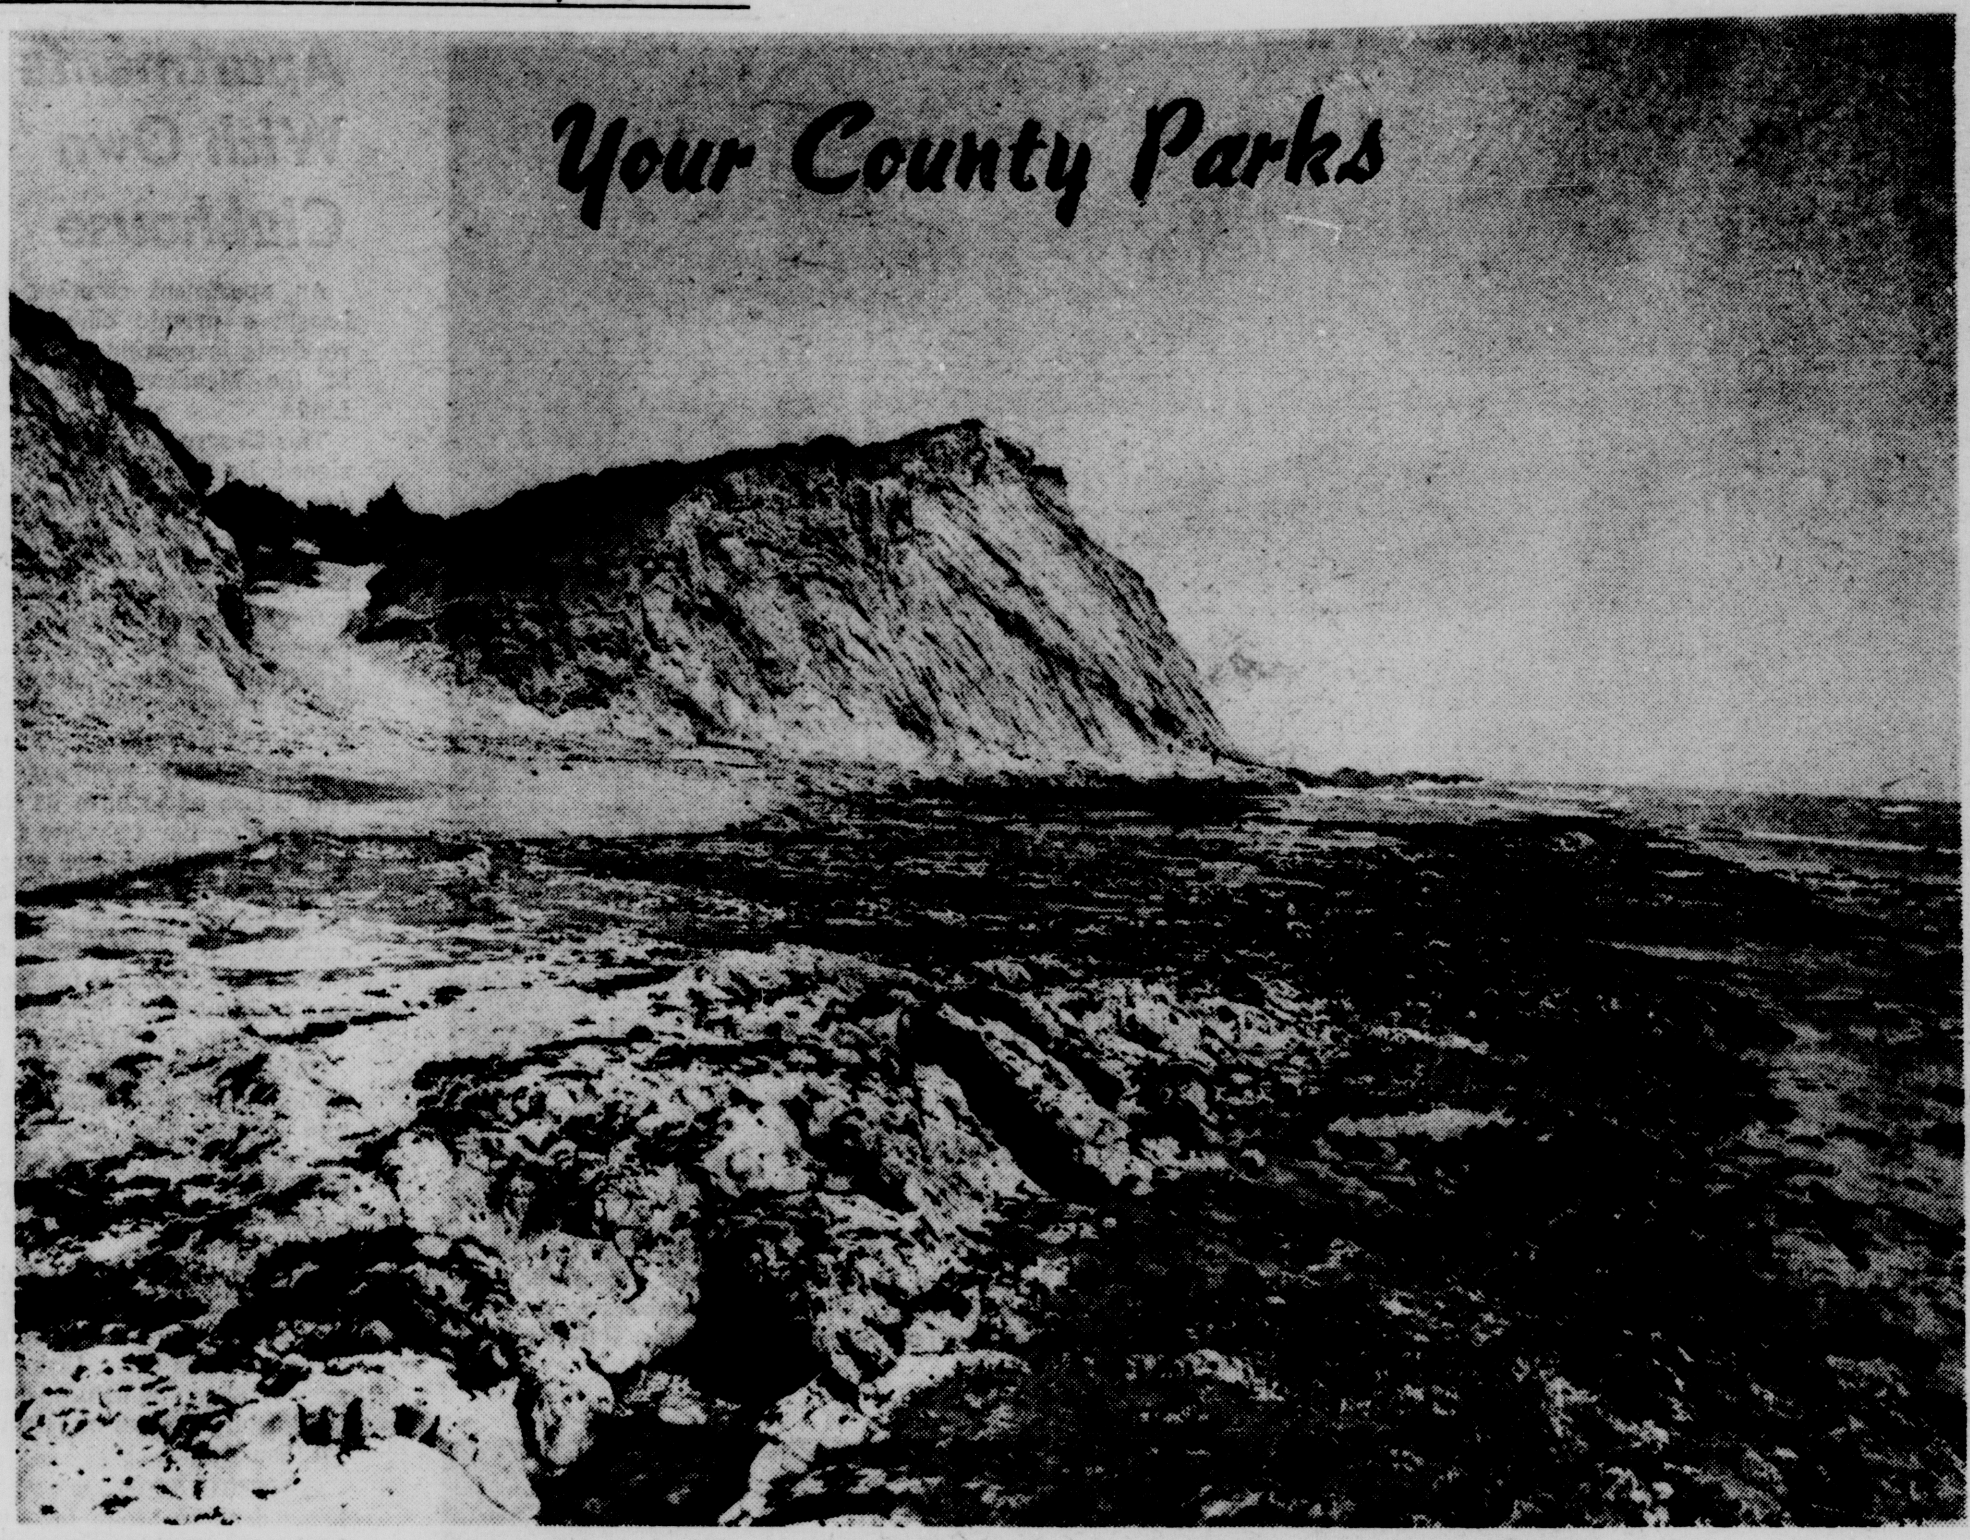
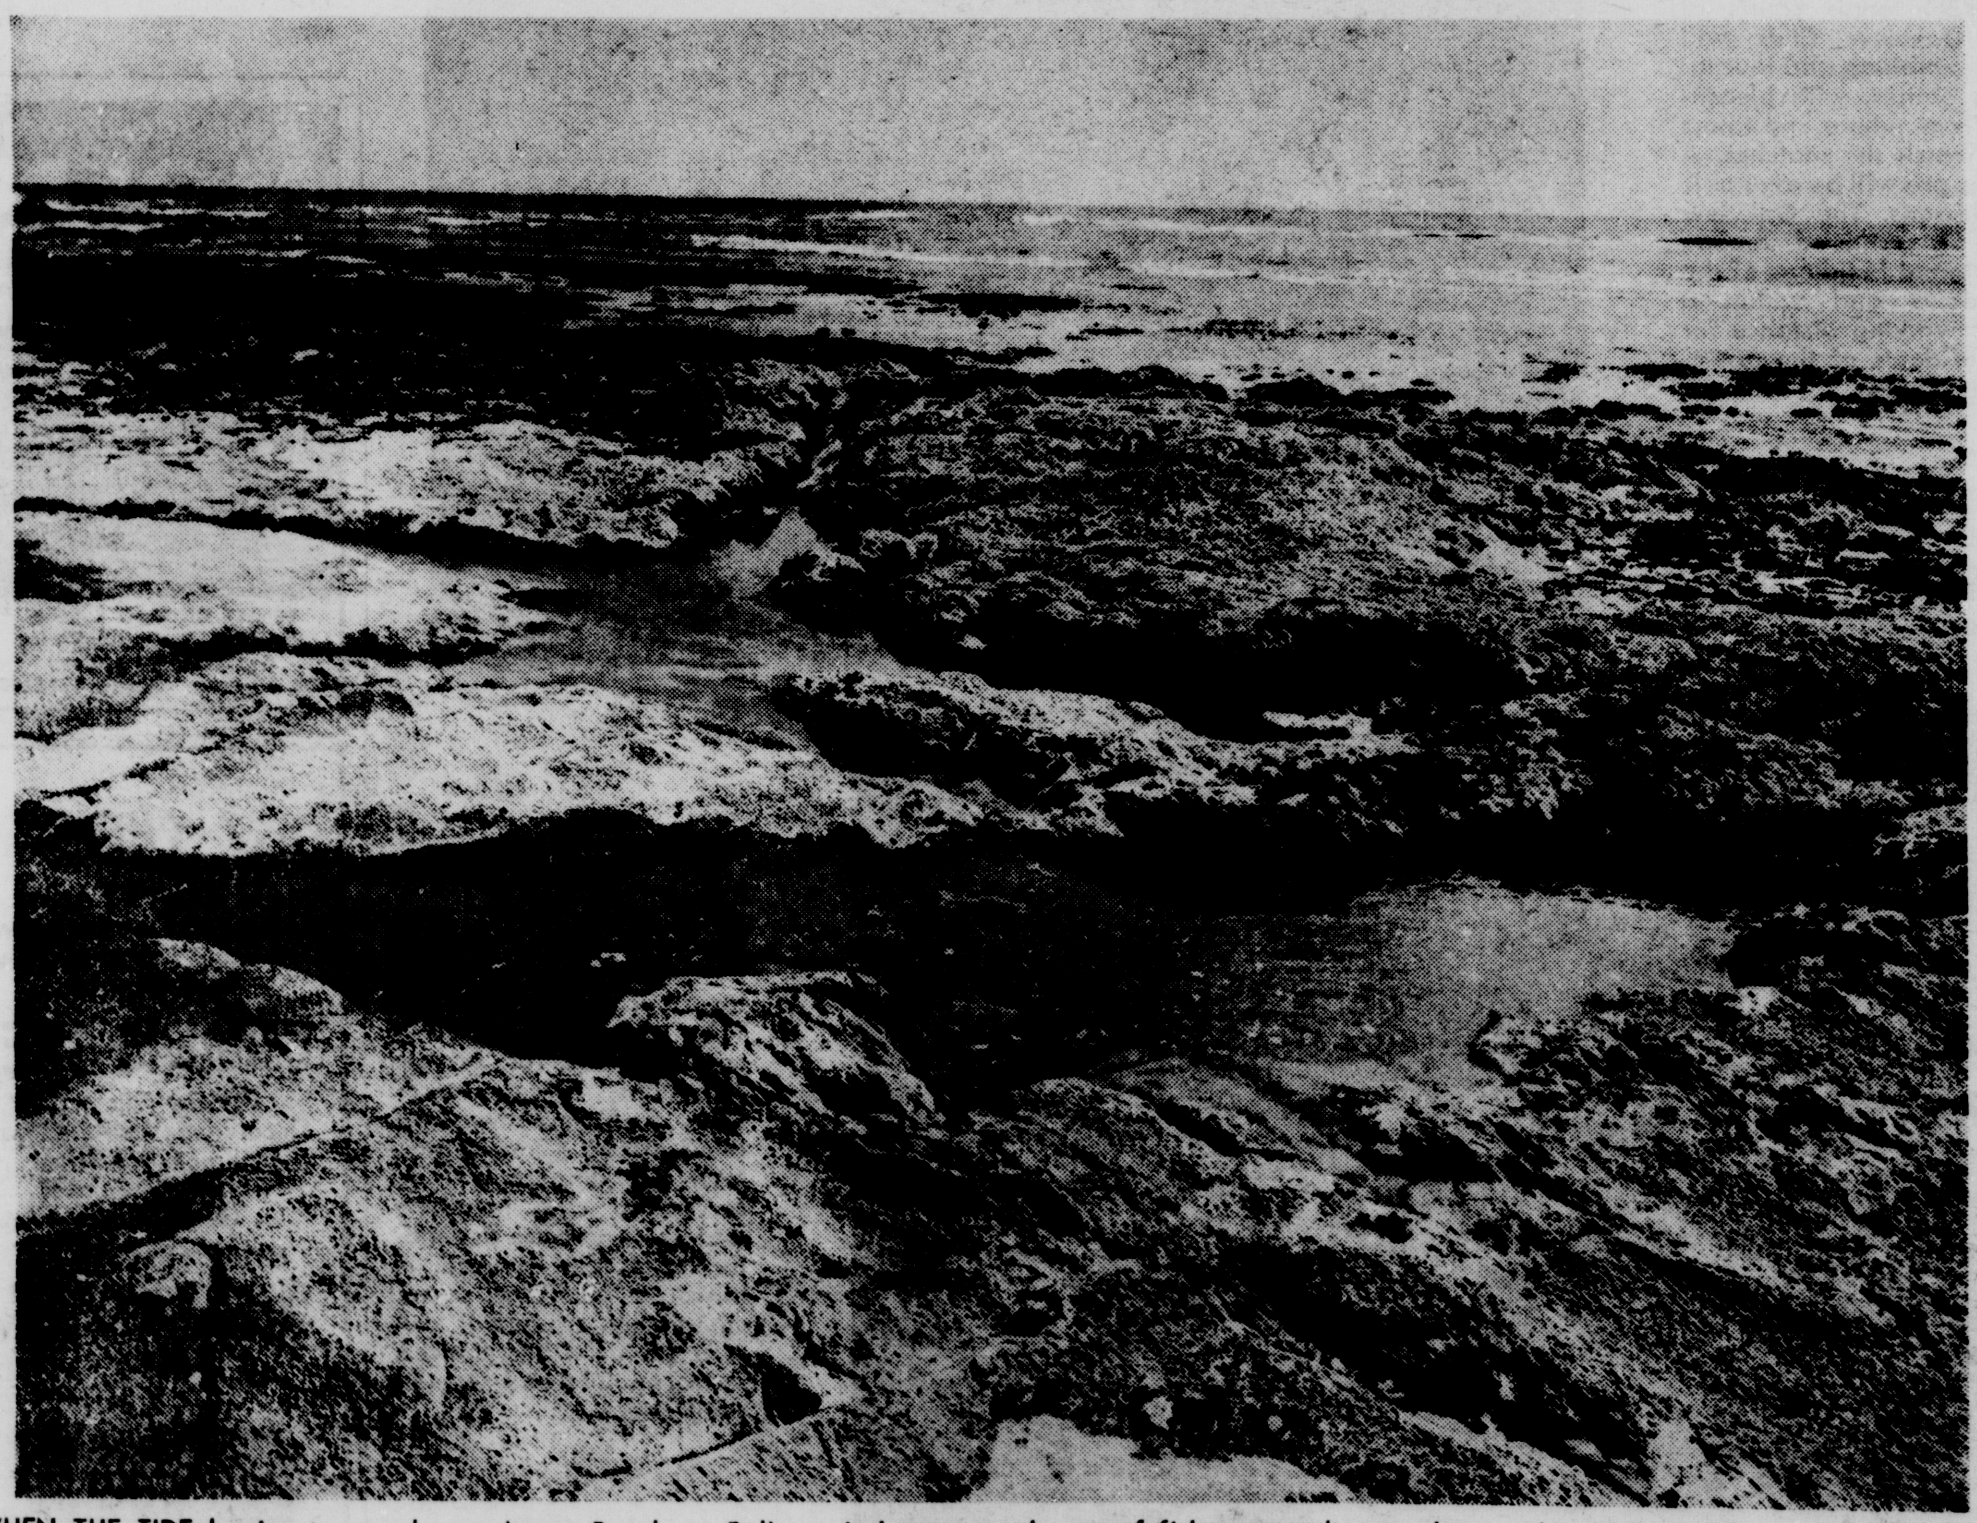
Your County Parks



COUNTY-OWNED Agate Beach itself is a 6.6 acre parcel with some 1,200 feet of ocean frontage. But it provides access at low tide to some two miles of shoreline. Fishermen find the catches good. And botanists, biologists and geologists also use the tidal pool area as a happy hunting ground and research laboratory. (Independent-Journal photos)



WHEN THE TIDE begins to recede on Agate Beach at Bolinas, it leaves behind isolated tidal pools such as these, filled with marine life of all kinds. When the tide comes in, this same area can become the favored haunt of fishermen who stand on rocky promontories to cast their lines. State funds have been made available for development of the parking area and other improvements at the beach.

Agate Beach— A Shoreline 'Laboratory'

It's Also A Popular Spot With Marin's Fishermen

(Editor's Note: This is another in the "Your County Parks" series in which the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine is covering the various properties operated and maintained by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department for public enjoyment. Today's subject: Agate Beach at Bolinas.)

For professional and budding geologists, botanists and biologists, Agate Beach is a happy hunting ground.

For fishermen, too, it's a most important member of Marin's county park "family."

It fronts the sea on the Bolinas Mesa at the end of Ocean Parkway. With some 1,200 feet of beachfront within the 6.6 acre county park parcel itself, more importantly it provides access at low tide to some two miles of publicly-owned shoreline from Duxbury Point to the RCA installation.

AGATE BEACH and the adjoining shoreline, however, are not the same kind of "beach" as those frequented by sunbathers at Stinson Beach and Drake's Beach. Far from it. Rocky and irregular, subject to drastic tidal changes, it offers nothing in the way of sandy stretches upon which to loll and relax.

But it does provide tidepools, at low ebb, that serve biology and botany students as "outdoor laboratories" where they can study close at hand a wealth of fascinating miniscule sea and shore life, both plant and animal. And it does provide anglers with rocky promontories from which they can cast their lines and try their luck.

It was back in 1959 that the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District first offered, by resolution, to dedicate to the county two acres of its waterfront holdings adjoining the beach road for development for parking and restroom purposes.

COUNTY supervisors referred the offer to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission. Commissioners then joined representatives of the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District and the Bolinas Beach Improvement Club in a tour of the site and a discussion of the proposal.

The commission found, however, that funds for the proposed development were not immediately available. The Bolinas Beach Public Utility District was asked to keep its offer open. The 1963-64 county budget included funds for a survey of the area.

THEN LAST July, taking notice of state interest in the development of such an access area, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission recommended to county supervisors that they authorize action to acquire an insurable title in the property and then request the California State Wildlife Conservation Board to provide ". . . the necessary development of an access road, parking area and toilet facilities as part of its program providing access for fishing" with the county to furnish the necessary maintenance and free access to the beach after its development.

In August, supervisors carried out the commission's recommendation. By October, a photogrammetric and topographic map of the area was completed.

Title to the 6.6-acre parcel was conveyed by the Bolinas utility district to the county at no cost in February of this year. The State Wildlife Conservation Board proceeded to approve the project and allocate $20,600 from wildlife restoration funds for the State Department of Fish and Game to proceed with the work.

BIDS ON the project are to be opened later this month.

The state appropriation includes monies for excavation, rock and asphalt topping of a parking area to accommodate 60 cars, curb and gutter installations, ditch paving, plantings for erosion control, painting of parking stalls, posts, chains, signs and contingencies.

Once the state project is completed, the county has agreed to provide maintenance.

The county is also to furnish restroom facilities.

IT IS THE plan of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission and Parks and Recreation Director Kelvin Nelson to install rented chemical toilets on the site.

At present the beach has no drinking water, and no such facilities are planned for the immediate future. Nelson hopes, however, that eventually drinking water can be provided for Agate Beach users.

Fishermen find Agate Beach and the adjoining shoreline an excellent point from which to cast for rockfish, greenling, perch, ling cod and other fish. Catches are usually good. Abalone picking and clamming provide other sport that pays off in good eating.

SCIENCE classes, grade school, high school and college, are frequent visiting parties to the area to study the geology or to examine the teeming marine life in and around the tidal pools. Sometimes world recognized authorities visit to collect rocks or flora and fauna specimens.

Gordon Chan of San Anselmo, biology teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School, often conducts his charges on field trips to the beach. It is, he says, a superb laboratory in which budding young scientists can expand their knowledge of marine life.

They may study the hordes of black turban snails, or the multitude of sea anemonies, or the crabs, or the more minute organisms that inhabit the area.

Botany students may be interested in the rockweed or the tiny plankton floating in the pools.

EACH POOL provides a fascinating picture of the relationship of animal to animal, animal to plant, and plant to plant.

As for geology students, the name "Agate Beach" in itself indicates the attractions of the area.

And Wildlife Conservation Board staff members in one of their reports took note of still another form of life to be observed along the beach: "It is always an interesting place with its shore birds and awesome cliffs."

SO RICH is Agate Beach in marine life that, Chan says, the College of Marin Bolinas Marine Station, scheduled to begin functioning in an old converted Coast Guard station around the first of the year, will undoubtedly set up study stations along that beach to carry out projects. Chan will be on the Marine Station staff as an instructor along with botanist Al Molina.

Parks and Recreation Director Nelson has one admonition for those who explore the shoreline from the Agate Beach access point:

"Keep a wary eye on the tide. It can come in fast and trap forgetful waders."

AGATE BEACH, he feels, is worthy of the attention it is receiving from both the state and county.

Like other county parks, it has its recreational value for the fishermen and "beachcombers." But that, undoubtedly, is surpassed by the beach's unique contributions to science and the study of science.

The Juniper Family: Hardy and Beautiful

When Californians heartily adopted the low sweeping lines of ranch-style architecture, one group of plants was suddenly thrust into the spotlight.

These are the spreading Junipers, and they were immediately recognized as handsomely compatible.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen reports that of the 25 or more spreading junipers, the Tamarisk variety is the most popular.

Nursery growers can hardly grow enough of them to keep up with demand. It has everything popular conception believes a low - growing juniper should have: Feathery blue-green foliage, dense habit, spreading fairly quickly in a symmetrical pattern.

WHILE THE Tamarisk variety may be the most popular, it is wise to check with your nurseryman on the many varieties of juniper that will give you good results.

Blue-green Sargent Juniper is generally suited to all gardens. It is a groundhugging form that grows about a foot high and spreads approximately 10 feet. Slightly slower growing than the Sargent, the San Jose Juniper creates the same dramatic effect with dark green foliage.

Among the predominately blue types are the Bar Harbor, Waukegan and Wilton Junipers. All stay very close to the ground and are quite blue in the growing season.

ANDORRA, grey - green in summer, changes its color to plum purple during the winter months.

For "tight" locations, investigate the possibilities of the slow growing forms prized in Japanese gardens.

In large areas requiring quick cover, the more robust spreading junipers are at their best.

BEST KNOWN is the Pfitzer variety, with broadly sweeping branches. It is also available in a blue form and a variety with gold-tipped branches, well-known as Blue Pfitzer and Golden Pfitzer.

In recent years two or three compact forms of the Pfitzer have come into prominence. One of these is the Mordigan Golden Pfitzer and another is the Nick's Compact Pfitzer. They are useful where a little more height is required, but the area to be developed is restricted, such as foundation planting along the side of a house, a fence or a wall.

Your nurseryman can supply you with most varieties in both one-gallon and five-gallon sizes, occasionally an intermediate size in two-gallon containers. Plant the largest size your pocketbook will afford to achieve the earliest desirable effect.

SET YOUR plants at the distance apart recommended by your nurseryman in well-drained soil that is neither acid nor alkaline. Set the base of the plant exactly at ground level and provide a basin of mounded soil around the plant.

For the neatest and most dramatic appearance, control weeds between the plants while they are covering the area, particularly morning glory, rye-grass and bermuda.

Botanically speaking, the above are: Tamarisk Juniper (Juniperus sabina "Tamariscifolia,") San Jose Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "San Jose"), Bar Harbor (Juniperus horizontials "Bar Harbor"), Waukegan Juniper (Juniperus horizontalis "Douglasii"), Andorra Juniper (Juniperus horizontalis "Plumosa"), Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana"), Blue Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana Glauca"), Golden Pfitzer (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana Aurea"), Mordigan Golden Pfitzer (Juniperus Chinesis "Mordigan") and Nick's Compact Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus pfitzeriana "nick's compacta").

PFITZER JUNIPER, one of the most hardy yet most beautiful varieties in the juniper family, can be seen in many Marin gardens. The low-growing, spreading form which the Pfitzer takes is most complimentary to any style home and landscaping. It fits in perfectly with rock and shell arrangements, with higher growing plants and shrubs and with patio or walkway arrangements. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔Make use of all the blooms this time of year and lavishly decorate your home with cut flower arrangements. Now you can enjoy these garden prizes both indoor and out.
- ✔To determine if you are watering in sufficient amounts, insert a sharp stick or other implement into the ground. If it doesn't show moisture to a depth of three to four inches, additional watering is needed.
- ✔Just arrived! Cushion mums are now available in gallon cans at your nursery. For a quick lift of color, buy these delicate plants now.
- ✔Dampen the soil or walks with water around your begonias and fuchsias on hot days. This raises the humidity and helps cool the soil around them. A fine spray applied directly on the plants is, of course, the best arrangement.
- ✔Prepare the soil and dig a trench for sweet peas. You will be planting them soon.
- ✔Just about now you wish you had a good selection of shade trees in your garden. Fruitless mulberry, ash, elm and many others are available in cans at your local nursery. Planting now would give a good start for next year.
- ✔Tuberous Begonias have built-in indicators to signal their need of food. If the leaves have a dark green, almost bluish tinge, they are fine, so let them rest. Light green, or yellow-tinged leaves mean they need a feeding. Use liquid fish fertilizer in the standard dilution.
- ✔Note that plants and shrubs in containers require more frequent watering and feeding than those planted in the ground.

HANDYMAN'S CORNER

THE SPORTSMAN especially will be interested in this handsome revolving cabinet and the available Easi-Bild pattern, telling him how to construct it. It's the perfect storage for his guns, fishing tackle and other gear. Its ingenious, roomy design requires a minimum amount of floor space. Even when loaded, the cabinet turns easily on the inverted casters fastened to the base. Locked compartments provide safe storage for guns and fishing rods on one side, while drawers and cabinets on the reverse side hold ammunition, clothing, boots, shoes, etc. For the pattern, send $1 to Independent-Journal, P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510, and ask for the pattern for the "Hold Everything" storage cabinet.

BASEBALL SUPERSTAR Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants is the central figure in the NBC-TV documentary, "A Man Named Mays," that will be repeated on KRON-TV Tuesday at 10 p.m. Marinite Charles Einstein is the narrator, while former Marin resident Lee Mendelson produced the one-hour special.

A Repeat Special On Mays

NBC To Again Air Show On Baseball Great

"A Man Named Mays," a one-hour special about Willie Mays, the San Francisco Giant considered to be one of the greatest all-around players in the history of major league baseball, will be repeated on the NBC-TV network and station KRON-TV Tuesday at 10 p.m.

"A Man Named Mays" is narrated by Charles Einstein of Mill Valley, a long-time friend and author of two books about Mays, and was produced by Lee Mendelson Film Productions of San Francisco, headed by Lee Mendelson, former Marin County resident.

THE SHOW was acclaimed by sportswriters and TV columnists throughout the nation after being telecast on NBC Oct. 6, 1963.

The filmed special reviews the big league career of the Giants' centerfielder from his first season in 1951, when he was named "rookie of the year," through the 1963 campaign. Seen are action shots of many of Mays' greatest feats, including his sensational catch of Vic Wertz's long drive in the first game of the 1954 World Series against the Cleveland Indians and his four home runs in a 1961 game against the Milwaukee Braves.

Giving their views of the amazing Mays are Alvin Dark, manager of the Giants; Leo Durocher, former Giants' pilot and now a Los Angeles Dodgers coach; Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants; Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Mets; Bobby Bragan, manager of the Milwaukee Braves; Stan Musial, the former St. Louis Cardinals superstar, and Ed Montague, the Giants' scout who discovered Mays in Birmingham, Ala.

DUROCHER, who was Willie's manager in his rookie season, sums up the general feeling of a great many baseball men when he says during the show.

"Willie is the greatest all-around player in the game today . . . because he can do the five essential things—hit, hit with power, run, field and throw—better than ayone else."

Other experts are equally lavish in their praise of the brilliant San Francisco star.

Marin Burglary Chase Ends With Spectacular Collision

CHASE CAR — Novato Police Sgt. Gene Clayton and California Highway Patrolman J. L. Smith look over the wreckage of the car in which two San Francisco youths crashed into an oncoming vehicle after leading Novato police on a 100-mile-per-hour chase from near Hamilton Air Force Base. The car spun, then flipped in the air before it struck the other.

Three Hurt, Fugitive Auto Contains Loot

Two San Francisco men, suspects in a Novato gas station burglary, led police early today on a 100-mile-per-hour chase which ended when their car somersaulted in the air and crashed into an oncoming car just south of San Rafael.

Three persons were injured, including an Oregon man and his 83-year-old mother who were in the other vehicle, and the driver of the escape car.

In satisfactory condition at San Rafael General Hospital today was Mrs. Mary Murphy, 83, of Newport, Ore., who suffered a cut tongue and a bruised right leg. Her son, Otto N. Williams, 60, received stitches for a cut on his chin, but was not kept at the hospital.

Also listed as satisfactory was John Edward Padilla, 21, of 2770 San Jose Avenue, San Francisco, who suffered severe bruises and scrapes of the head. He was under guard by sheriff's deputies.

Booked at Marin County Jail was Juan Jose Reimoneng, 19, of 26 Athens Street, San Francisco.

Padilla and Reimoneng were both charged with burglary, drunkenness in and about an automobile and evading arrest. The California Highway Patrol said an additional charge, reckless driving leading to an injury accident, would be lodged against Padilla today.

Police credited Mrs. Florence L. Seamons of 1140 Elm Drive, Novato, with alerting them to the burglary. They said she saw two men taking tires from Smith's Flying A Service, 7351 Redwood Highway at about 1 a.m. She walked four blocks to the corner of Second Street and Grant Avenue, where she spotted a patrol car driven by officer Louis R. Robinette and told him what she had seen.

Robinette radioed for other units to proceed to the station. Officer A. W. Schroeder was dispatched to Highway 101, in case the suspects attempted to flee.

Schroeder said he saw a green and white 1955 Chevrolet going south at 45 miles per hour. Since it was similar to the description given by Mrs. Seamons, Schroeder pulled behind it and switched on his red light and siren.

The car continued at the same speed, he said, its occupants apparently unaware he was trying to stop them, until they reached St. Vincent's Hill, when the auto speeded up to an estimated 95-100 miles per hour.

"After that, they stayed at the same speed all the way," Schroeder said.

State Will Consider Route Idea

One of the routes that the state will consider in planning an east-west connection between Highway 101 and West Marin is a ridge route over White's Hill, according to a letter from the State Division of Highways to Ernest N. Kettenhofen of San Anselmo.

Kettenhofen said he got the letter from B. C. Bachtold, assistant district engineer for the Division of Highways. Bachtold wrote: "We will consider the location you recommend in our planning studies for State Route 17."

Kettenhofen's proposal is a road along the ridge west of Terra Linda over inexpensive grazing land to White's Hill and San Geronimo, then northwest to Pt. Reyes. He contends that such a route would least disrupt developed areas.

Kettenhofen also wrote to First Congressional District Rep. Don H. Clausen (R-Crescent City), pointing out that an access highway to West Marin should get federal aid because the new Pt. Reyes National Seashore will bring millions of out-of-county visitors to Marin.

Muir Woods Man Killed On Shoreline

Fatal Journey For Forgotten Laundry Item

A 28-year-old carpenter from Muir Woods was killed early today when his small car grazed another on Shoreline Highway just north of Northern Avenue and crashed into a tree.

Jules David Klain of Sunset Way became the 25th traffic fatality in Marin County this year. Last year at this time the grim total stood at 18.

Klain clipped a passing car with his 1957 Volkswagen and slammed into a tree at 3:10 a.m., the California Highway Patrol reported.

Klain, who possibly suffered a broken neck, was pronounced dead on arrival at Marin General Hospital.

The CHP reported that Klain's car collided with a car driven by Michael Richard Dickinson, 18, an Oakland City College students, and then veered into the tree.

Dickinson told investigating officers that Klain's car came around a curve straight toward him on the wrong side of the road.

Then, according to Dickenson, both cars swerved to the right, but Klain's car brushed the left side of his car and careened into the tree.

After the collision, "I hit the brakes, skidded to a stop, turned around and saw the Volkswagen hit the tree," Dickinson said.

Coroner Frank J. Keaton said Klain had been returning home from a trip to a launderette in Tamalpais Valley to pick up a bedsheet that had been left behind earlier.

Jules and his wife, Crystal, had been to the launderette earlier. When they got home at 2 a.m. and discovered they had forgotten the bedsheet, Klain went back to get it, Keaton said.

The California Highway Patrol reported that the car was registered to Crystal Malar.

Other survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Joseph Klain of Oceanside, N.J.

An autopsy was to be performed today at Russell and Gooch Mortuary in Mill Valley.

WATCH IT, ROAD DUE TO MOVE OVER AGAIN

Beginning Tuesday, the southbound lanes of Highway 101 near Hamilton Air Force Base will be closed and traffic will be routed onto the new northbound lanes, the State Division of Highways announced today.

The detour will continue in effect for two months of road work. Northbound traffic will continue to use the temporary lanes on the east side of the highway.

Today's announcement was in keeping with a promise made by J. O. Grassberger, executive assistant for the division in the San Francisco office following Thursday's long traffic tie-up on Highway 101 at Ignacio. Grassberger said any future traffic changes would be announced in advance.

In Friday's Independent-Journal the story on the traffic tie-up incorrectly said that three lanes of traffic were funneled into one lane. Only two lanes, in operation along the route, were funneled into one.

U.S. Deficit Below Budget, Johnson Says

Tells Newsmen Of Testing British Bomb

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson announced today the third cut in red ink spending for the fiscal year ended June 30—a reduction of 500 million dollars.

The 8.3 billion dollar deficit was 3.6 billion dollars below the original 1964 fiscal budget estimate made in January 1963.

And it was 1.7 billion dollars below Johnson's estimate in January this year and 500 million dollars below the most recent estimate last May.

Lower than expected spending and rising tax receipts both contributed to the cut in the budget deficit.

Expenditures amounted to 97.7 billion dollars.

This was a reduction of more than one billion dollars from the January 1963 estimate, a decrease of 700 million dollars from the revised January 1964 budget and a decrease of 600 million dollars from the re-estimate in May.

Receipts totaled 89.4 billion dollars, up 2.5 billion dollars from the original estimate in January 1963 and up one billion dollars from the January 1964 estimate. Receipts were up only slightly from the re-estimate in May.

President Johnson also said today the United States and Britain have jointly tested a British-made nuclear device underground in Nevada.

Johnson said the device, described as having a low yield, was detonated Friday at the atomic energy test site.

He emphasized that the test, conducted under an Anglo-American agreement to cooperate in using atomic energy for defense, "was carried out within the framework of the limited nuclear test ban treaty of August 1963."

Barry Relaxes While Hot Debate Still Rages

COMBINED AP AND UPI

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Sen. Barry Goldwater, relaxing at his hilltop home, announced today he has moved formally to withdraw his bid for renomination to the Senate now that he has won the Republican presidential nomination.

Goldwater's press secretary, Edward K. Nellor, released copies of a letter Goldwater dispatched from San Francisco yesterday to Arizona's Democratic secretary of state, Wesley Bolin.

Bolin already has said that the ballots are not printed and that there will be no problem keeping Goldwater's name off of them.

Goldwater's withdrawal leaves only three-term Gov. Paul Fannin, his longtime friend, in the Republican primary race.

The conservative senator flew from San Francisco last night to a triumphant homecoming in his native city. About 3,000 persons cheered the state's first presidential nominee.

Goldwater left in San Francisco a boiling GOP feud over a remark he uttered in accepting the nomination Thursday night—a remark he underscored yesterday in these words: "Extremism is no sin if you are engaged in the defense of freedom."

Before the Republican National Convention's windup session, Goldwater declared: "I would remind you that extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. And let me remind you also that moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

The remark brought a swift, sharp retort from an old campaign foe. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller — the first caller to congratulate Goldwater when he was nominated Wednesday night—termed it "danger-

Marin Amateur Radio Fan Picks Up Goldwater On Air

His critics have accused Sen. Barry Goldwater of having old-fashioned political views, but the Republican presidential nominee is as modern as a moon rocket in his political campaigning techniques.

Goldwater has introduced the short-wave radio to the political wars, and Stuart H. Macdonald of 81 Alder Avenue, San Anselmo, can prove how far-roving, if not comprehensive, this method is.

Wednesday evening at about 6 p.m., while delegates at the Cow Palace convention were in the raucous process of nominating him, the Arizona senator hooked up the short-wave equipment which he had brought with him to San Francisco and started talking to other amateur operators who were transmitting at that time.

One of these was Macdonald, who connected his receiver to a tape recorder when he heard Goldwater's voice. "He talked for about ten minutes," Macdonald recalls, "to people from the Midwest and a few from California. He said how happy he was to talk with us, and he seemed like a pleasant man to talk to. He finally said that the fellows in the other room (in the senator's suite in the Mark Hopkins Hotel) were whistling for him and he had to go to some meetings."

"I picked him up again at 8 p.m., but I didn't try to talk with him in order to give other people a chance. He told us that when he returned to Arizona, he would send us cards, confirming his conversations with us."

Macdonald, an employee of the Standard Oil Company in San Francisco who has lived in San Anselmo for 14 years, has been a "ham" operator since 1933, but does not recall ever speaking to a public figure before.

Officer Kills Man In Duel After Kidnap

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — A California Highway Patrol officer killed a kidnap-robbery suspect today after the suspect had missed the officer at pointblank range.

Police Lt. Walter Bieter said Ralph Doshak, 19, a serviceman AWOL from Ft. Ord since Monday, was shot twice through the chest by CHP Officer William Bloxom, 35.

Doshak had fired at least two shots at Bloxom before his .22 caliber pistol jammed and exploded.

Doshak's two companions, Daniel Bomar, 21, of King City and Jack Crowder Jr., 20, a serviceman AWOL from Ft. Ord since July 6, are held on suspicion of kidnap and robbery.

The three suspects met Joseph Armstrong, 21, and Alvah Summers and Kaj Christensen, each 20, sailors on liberty from the USS Midway, at King City and asked the sailors for a ride to Bakersfield.

Then the suspects pulled a gun and a knife, threatened the sailors and took their wallets.

The sailors escaped in Bakersfield and flagged down police.

Quick Action Seen On Military Pay Hike Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prompt Senate approval of fatter envelopes for nearly two million persons in the nation's armed forces appeared likely today.

If the House, as expected, agrees to details of the pending Senate bill, the pay boosts could become effective either in August or September.

The annual cost would be 207 million dollars.

Court Continues Rights Test Case

ATLANTA (UPI)—A three-judge federal court panel has put over until Monday the first test of the new civil rights law brought by three Negroes who were refused service at Lester Maddox's segregated restaurant and chased away with a pistol.

The panel also has taken under advisement another suit arising from the public accommodations section of the new law—an 11 million dollar suit brought by an Atlanta motel owner who claims that the act will damage his business.

Defense Puts Stress On Corbett Death Time

By ROSS DAVIS

Defense arguments in Marin Superior Court were closed at 4 p.m. yesterday with attorneys charging the prosecution left at least a reasonable doubt that Robert Lee Jones and John Lee King murdered Donald G. Corbett Jr.

Defense attorneys leaned heavily on a pathologist's estimate that death occurred on March 28—a full day later than the time alleged by Dist. Atty Bruce B. Bales.

Bales ended arguments with his rebuttal at 4:30 p.m., stressing that the pathologist — Dr. John H. Manwaring of San Rafael — declared his estimate could well have extended the extra day.

"Only God and the killers" know exactly when the slaying occurred, Bales added.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson recessed the jury until 9:30 a.m. Monday when instructions will be given prior to start of deliberation.

The defense attack on a March 27 (Good Friday) death time was spearheaded by Thomas P. Boyd, representing Jones, who said Dr. Manwaring testified not once but four times that his best estimate was that Corbett died in his Sausalito apartment about 48 hours prior to the 5 p.m. autopsy on March 30.

Peter Allen Smith, attorney for King, supplemented the contention by quoting Frank Keaton, Marin County coroner, as "testifying Dr. Manwaring told him the death was most likely from 36 to 48 hours.

The time element was important because the prosecution based its entire case on an evening slaying March 27, a period for which the defendants offered no alibis on their whereabouts.

Boyd said the reasonable doubt areas included whether Jones and King were really together on March 25, when they are accused of holding up Harbor Liquor Store in Alto, and were again together on March 27 during the alleged killing. He said another area of confusion was about the "mysterious" person who allegedly answered Corbett's phone March 27.

Two witnesses testified a strange man's voice answered and said Corbett was away.

Boyd also belittled the likelihood that Sylvester Schladweiler, operator of the liquor store, could have been positive in his courtroom identification of Jones and King as the robbers when he actually had only "15 seconds" to see the gunmen during the holdup.

Boyd also asked the jury not to find his client, Jones, "guilty by association" He said, "What King did doesn't damn Jones."

Smith declared the most that could be said of the state's case

PURSE GRAB HOODLUM RETURNS?

A 61-year-old San Rafael woman was the victim last night of a purse-snatching attack similar to those which victimized a number of Marin County women a year ago.

Police said Verga A. Bufford of 177 D Street was thrown to the sidewalk at the corner of D Street and San Rafael Avenue. Her assailant then grabbed her purse, which contained $10 and two bank books, and ran from the scene.

She was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for bruises of both knees.

It was the first case reported in over a year, but closely followed the pattern of the 1962 and '63 attacks. A wave of such thefts was reported in several Marin communities during that period.

Ignacio Collision Injures Woman

Geneva Benson, 30, of San Francisco suffered a bruised forehead in a two-car collision on Highway 101 in Ignacio at 12:35 a.m. today.

Miss Benson was a passenger in a car driven by James E. Doyle, 47, of San Francisco, Doyle, 47, of San Francisco which collided with a car driven by William A. Amick Jr., 50, of Vallejo, the California Highway Patrol reported. She was examined at Marin General Hospital and sent home.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Poland Abandons Laos Parley

LONDON (UPI)—Communist Poland has quietly shelved a compromise plan for a truce arrangement in embattled Laos, diplomatic sources said today.

The Poles found themselves caught between conflicting policies of the Soviet Union and Communist China, the sources said.

Poland, a member of the three-power International Control Commission (ICC) for Laos with India and Canada, suggested a compromise last month.

It proposed a meeting in a neutral city to be attended by the Soviet Union and Great Britain as the co-chairmen of the Geneva Conference, plus the three ICC members and the three factions which make up the moribund coalition government in Laos.

The plan omitted Red China and the United States in an apparent attempt to facilitate a get-together. The United States agreed in principle. Red China sharply opposed the plan.

The Russians, who at first appeared agreeable, began to drag their feet when Peking vetoed the idea and insisted on nothing short of a full-dress, 14-nation ministerial conference.

'Discrimination In Reverse' Hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Asst. Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall has suggested the Justice Department may take legal action against civil rights groups which seek to force businesses to hire Negroes.

Marshall, who heads the department's civil rights division, also said he thought the government has the power to act against "discrimination in reverse" and would do so.

In remarks to a trade association made public yesterday, Marshall added that fair employment provision of the civil rights bill "does not permit preferential treatment on the grounds of race." He added that the department's role under this section probably will be clarified when the employment commission is appointed next year.

Nuclear Watchdogs In Space

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—One of two new nuclear detection satellites policed space today and its twin was scheduled to join the cosmic watch tomorrow.

The two nuclear sentries were rocketed into preliminary orbits early yesterday along with a four and one-half pound research moonlet that hitchhiked a ride on the Atlas-Agena rocket.

About 19 hours after launch, the Air Force Satellite Control Center at Sunnyvale, Calif., triggered a small rocket aboard the first of the 493-pound Watchdog satellites to successfully kick it into its final near-circular orbit 65,500 miles above earth.

Scientists planned to try a similar complicated maneuver tomorrow afternoon with the second satellite when it loops back from its first orbit to exactly the right spot for the orbital switch.

If all goes as planned, the two satellites will end up about 130 degrees apart—nearly opposite each other—on the same orbital track. They will circle the globe about once every four days. The first satellite's orbit was inclined 37 degrees to the equator.

Equal Time Invoked

REDDING (UPI) — Goldwater forces have apparently won the first "equal time" encounter of the presidential campaign.

A satirical, anti-Goldwater folk song called "Barry's Boys" achieved such popularity on a local radio station that supporters of the Republican presidential nominee demanded—and received—equal time for an album of anti-liberal songs. The album that will be given equal time with "Barry's Boys" is a group of parodies called "Folksongs to Bug Liberals By," performed by the Goldwater Boys of Nashville, Tenn.

Turks Oust Greeks

ISTANBUL (UPI)—Seventy more Greek nationals have been expelled from Turkey, informed sources said yesterday. Since March 700 Greeks have been expelled, and it was learned that another 500 face expulsion soon. Further mass expulsions were threatened if any Turk living in Greece was harmed.

PLAN TELEVISION CAMPAIGN

Nobel Prize To King?

OSLO, Norway (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been proposed for the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, the Norwegian religious magazine "Vaar Kirke" Our Church says. A group of Swedish legislators reportedly proposed King for the prize, the magazine said. The winner is chosen by the Norwegian Parliament.

French Gang War

MARSEILLES, France (UPI) — Two men were shot to death from a speeding car in Marseilles today, raising to four dead and three wounded the toll in a month-long gang war here. Eyewitnesses said the two men were shot as they were standing at a street corner. One of the dead men was found with a knife in his hand.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Joan Crawford was expected to be released today from Cedars of Lebanon Hospital where she underwent treatment for a respiratory ailment for the second period in five weeks. Korean Blames Reds

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Chung Hee Park's government said today a secret Communist youth organization had inspired the riots and demonstrations by students this spring. Park imposed martial law on Seoul June 3 after students and police clashed for two days. More than 100 students and civilians were arrested.

Tokyo Cabinet Sworn

Dr. Sam, Girl Friend May Wed In Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI)—Dr. Sam Sheppard and his fiancee today took out a marriage license.

A corps of newsmen greeted the pair when they came to the office of Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett in the county building.

Sheppard's fiancee — Ariane Tebbenjohanns — whisked him here last night in a big yellow rented limousine.

As they went through the proceedings to get the marriage license, Sheppard had his arm around her shoulder. He appeared to be annoyed with the newsmen and told her:

"I don't know why I thought things would change."

Mrs. Tebbenjohanns had come to know Sheppard after starting correspondence with him after he was sent to prison. When he got out Thursday she came to Columbus, Ohio, to meet him.

They did not indicate immediately what their wedding plans were, but earlier they said they hoped to get married sometime today. Sheppard is due to return to prison next week. He got out on a habeas corpus writ issued by a federal judge after serving nearly 10 years for the slaying.

Less than six hours after the couple started for Chicago the Ohio attorney general's office asked for Sheppard's arrest. A hearing on that motion is scheduled for Wednesday. It seemed that Sheppard and his bride could honeymoon at least until then.

Sheppard said he worked 200 hours in prison to earn the money for the $10 license fee.

Baptism In Surf

LONG BEACH (UPI)—The largest surf of the summer here yesterday did not prevent the baptism of more than 300 persons in an immersion ceremony by Jehovah's Witnesses. Waves knocked many persons, attending a district convention of the group, off their feet as they waited in the water to be immersed by six male ministers. Seven life guards and a rescue boat stood by.

Irish Park For JFK

DUBLIN (UPI) — Four hundred acres of sloping green land will be taken over formally by the Irish minister for lands next Wednesday as a memorial park for the late President John F. Kennedy. Irish organizations in the United States pledged $100,000 as a start to financing the memorial, which is in County Wexford, near the Kennedy ancestral home at Dunganstown.

2 Stolen Bikes Are Recovered

Thanks to three other boys and the San Rafael police, two San Rafael youths got their stolen bicycles back Thursday before they even reported them missing.

At 4:30 p.m., three boys told Patrolman Henry W. Ingwersen they had seen two others take bikes from near the San Rafael High School swimming pool. They knew the bikes belonged to someone else, the informants said.

Ingwersen found the miscreants—both from San Francisco—riding the stolen cycles toward Highway 101 on Francisco Boulevard. He took them to the county juvenile hall.

About 5 p.m., James Ragghianti of 1360 Grand Avenue and Paul Ramponi of 85 Rose Street emerged from swimming in the high school pool to discover their bicycles had vanished. They went to police headquarters to report the theft — and there were the bikes waiting for them.

Woman's Body Found

RICHMOND (UPI) — The body of an unidentified woman, about 30, was found Thursday floating off the 26th Street breakwater. A deputy coroner estimated the body had been immersed two to three weeks.

ous, irresponsible and frightening."

Charles H. Percy, the GOP candidate for governor of Illinois, called for an explanation from the nominee.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, R-Mass., generally considered "Mr. Republican" in New England, even hedged when asked whether he would support Goldwater.

Voting officials in New England reported that many Republicans switched to democratic affiliations following the Goldwater victory.

And the New York Times said today former President Dwight Eisenhower let Senator Goldwater know "in no uncertain terms" that he would support the Republican ticket only if the presidential nominee makes an "acceptable" public explanation of his extremism statement.

The Times said that Eisenhower feels the statement conjures up a philosophy that the end justifies the means and that vigilantes and nightriders are acceptable if their purpose is the "defense of liberty" or the "pursuit of justice."

The Times said that when Goldwater paid a "courtesy call" on Eisenhower at his San Francisco hotel suite yesterday the former President did not express himself in precisely these words but his meaning was clear.

Dean Burch, swiftly approved by the GOP National Committee as Goldwater's choice to take over its reins, said the senator had told Eisenhower he was "rather extremist" when as a general he launched the Allied invasion of Europe in 1944.

Snapping back at Rockefeller, Goldwater said several American presidents — George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt—took what he considers extreme steps "when defending our freedoms."

"I would like the governor, for my benefit and for the benefit of the party and the people of America, to put down in writing his definition of extremism," Goldwater said.

Goldwater told a reporter "extremism in politics is either fascism on one side or communism on the other."

That definition did not mesh with the context of his acceptance address.

When a reporter asked him about it in Phoenix, Goldwater replied, "You read the speech and if you can't understand it you don't deserve to be a reporter."

Still other top Republicans, such as Sen. Margaret Chase Smith of Maine and Senate minority leader Everett M. Dirksen, also had questions regarding the senator's position on extremism.

Mrs. Smith, first woman in either major party ever nominated for the presidency, indirectly opposed Goldwater following an address before the Commonwealth Club yesterday.

Asked for her views on extremism, she answered: "I don't like extremists, I call myself a moderate."

"I feel that the American people cannot be helped by anyone on the extreme right or the extreme left."

Dirksen, speaking on a radio interview on his return to Chicago, said that he thought Goldwater's statement needed "clarification."

In England, Woodrow Wyatt, member of Parliament for the opposition Labor Party, said Goldwater "could well be the West's Mao Tse-Tung," referring to Red China's rocket-rattling chairman.

The Independent Times of London said Goldwater's declaration that "extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice" summed up "the curious blend of naivety, ruthlessness and misapplied idealism that has now been adopted as the philosophy of the American Republican party."

Tiburon's Temporary Aide Given Yet Another Hat

WARREN SCHMID
Still another job

Warren Schmid, Tiburon's temporary city administrator, added a new title to his list this week.

Schmid, in the process of changing jobs, was officially appointed executive director of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments in Berkeley Thursday night.

He is also executive director of the Institute of Local Self-Government which has offices in the same building. He has worked for some time with the present director Wilber E. Smith.

Schmid was selected as city administrator June 15 and works for the new city on an hourly part-time basis. Councilmen plan to discuss selection of a permanent city administrator Monday night.

"I assume he will honor his commitment to us until Aug. 15" said Mayor Gordon W. Strawbridge. The mayor stressed that the commitment was verbal only.

Schmid could not be reached in Berkeley for comment, but a spokesman for ABAG said the new position would not interfere with his duties at Tiburon.

The spokesman said Schmid will leave his new position in Washington D.C. August 7, but Schmid will not officially begin at ABAG until Aug. 15.

available units of the San Rafael Police Department also sped to assist.

At the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge turnoff, police said, the car suddenly spun around, shot across the center barrier, somersaulted in the air and crashed into the Williams vehicle.

Padilla, who was thrown from the car, was found about 30 feet away in a ditch. Reimoneng ran from the scene, but was caught by deputies and passers-by in a nearby field.

Schroeder said Reimoneng was highly intoxicated when he was taken into custody. At the hospital, Padilla admitted he had been drinking heavily earlier in the evening.

The eight tires were found in the trunk of the wrecked Chevrolet and were returned to the service station.

Novato police praised personnel of the communications center, the other officers who aided in the chase—and Mrs. Seamons.

Body In Bay Believed Bridge Jumper

The body of an Oakland woman, who apparently jumped from the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge July 9, was found floating in the Richmond Harbor yesterday.

The Contra Costa County Coroner's office identified her as Margaret Masako Takaesu, 49, whose purse and identification papers were found in an abandoned car on the Marin County side of the bridge July 9.

Mrs. Takaesu had been visiting her brother, Harold H. Itokaza, at 923 Del Ganado Road, Terra Linda, and had borrowed his car to drive back to Oakland.

Mrs. Takaesu was the second suicide victim from the bridge this year, and the fourth in the bridge's history.

was than King "was in possession of stolen goods." He added that the alleged fact that King did register under the name of Corbett in a Hawaii hotel following the murder is the best evidence that King not only didn't participate in the slaying, but was unaware of it.

"Totally unrealistic," he called any other interpretation. "It is quite possible that Robert Jones is involved, but not my client.

Bales commented that if the defense in closing arguments "implied one of the two of these men (defendants) was not involved, it's hogwash," They were "cohorts" throughout the events of armed robbery and murder, he said.

Scouting—A Family Tradition

Mrs. James D. Adams of San Rafael joined the Girl Scouts in 1939 as a member of the troop committee of Ross' newly formed Troop 1. In doing so she began a family tradition that is going strong after 25 years and three generations.

Mrs. Adams worked with Troop 1, of which her oldest daughter Katy soon became a member, for four years. In 1943 her husband, then a lieutenant commander in the Navy, was called to Washington, D.C. Kay Adams worked in Scouting there until he was sent overseas. She and their five children moved to her family's home in Winnetka, Ill., where she was training chairman on the Girl Scout board.

AFTER THE WAR, the family returned to Marin County, where they've lived ever since. Kay's continued activity in Scouting led in 1949 to a term as president of the board of the Girl Scouts Marin County Council.

IN 1956, SHE was selected to go to the Edith Macy Training School in Pleasantville, N.Y., for a 12-day international gathering. Here she met other adult Scouts from all over the world. She came home breathless: "Well, I did some talking, too. And it was such an exciting experience! I still count many of the women I met there among my closest friends — friends I would never have made without the Girl Scouts."

Upon her return, she became the Marin Council's Senior advisory chairman, a position she held until 1960. Now she is a member-at-large on the board of the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council and International Hostess, entertaining visiting Girl Scouts and Guides from all over the world.

MRS. JAMES D. ADAMS of San Rafael, a Girl Scout for 25 years, displays her Japanese souvenirs sent by her daughter, Mrs. Thorne Butler. Mrs. Butler and her daughter, Katy Anne are both active in Scouting in Japan. Katy Anne is performing a Japanese tea ceremony for her family. The doll that Mrs. Adams is holding is a Japanese Girl Scout. (Independent-Journal photo)

THE ADAMS FAMILY tradition of Scouting extends to Jim Adams, who was president of Marin's Boy Scout Council and is still on its board, and down through their children. Douglass and the Rev. Robert Adams were both Boy Scouts. The Adams' daughters, Mrs. Hebert Mills of Berkeley, Mrs. Gary Tucker of San Rafael and Mrs. Thorne Butler of Japan, were all Girl Scouts. The Adams have 16 grandchildren, three of whom are already in Scouting. The others aren't old enough yet.

HER DAUGHTER, Katy Adams Butler, is active in international Scouting, too. Katy's husband Thorne, a pathologist, was sent to Japan in 1960 by the Air Force. Katy joined TOFS (Troops on Foreign Soil), a branch of the Girl Scouts of the USA which provides Scouting for the families of American servicemen abroad. In 1963, she was a staff member at the Asian Conference of Girl Scouts, a Far Eastern version of Round-Up.

IN 1963 KATY was made International Commissioner for the Far East branch of TOFS. She is also assistant troop leader of a junior troop, since her daughter Katy Anne, an eager third-generation Scout, just was graduated from Brownie to Junior.

DR. AND MRS. J. Alfred Rider have as their house guests this week Dr. Rider's brother, Dale Rider, and his wife and daughter, Martha from Dalton, Ill.

MR. AND MRS. Leo Schwab of San Rafael will leave on Monday for a four weeks trip to Switzerland, where they will visit his relatives. While abroad they will tour Denmark and Ireland. Highlights of their trip will include the Exposition in Lausanne, Lucarno and the Tivoli Gardens in Copenhagen.

MR. AND MRS. Wint F. Saint will give a dinner party tonight for several Sausalito couples. They are Messrs. and Mesdames George Chapman, Earl G. Thompson and V. H. Petrie. Mrs. Saint reports that the most fun they have had recently was the swimming party last Sunday at the home of the president of the St. Francis Dog Training Club, Mrs. Claire Lippert of Boulder Creek. The Saints little Papillon dog, Rajah, a champion utility dog, won a prize. Highlight of the afternoon was a completely unofficial but hilarious contest for the 33 members' dogs. Prizes were offered in a long list of categories, such as dog with the longest eyelashes, longest ears, longest tail, curliest curls, fanciest hat, best dressed male and best dressed female. Rajah won first prize for the best dressed male dog parading around the pool in a French sailor suit made for him by Mrs. Saint.

MRS. S. C. STAPP is planning a party, but hasn't decided details, honoring Mrs. George Reed of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who will arrive Sunday. She is driving up from Whittier, Calif., with her sister and brother-in-law. She and Mrs. Stapp were longtime friends when they both lived in Cleveland, Ohio.

ROMAN SNUB GIVEN THE 'CASUALS'

ROME (UPI) — Teen-agers in their slacks, shorts and "casuals" were given the Roman snub in the last of the eternal city's fall-winter high fasion showings.

Eleonora Garnet's collection marked the end of the Roman half of the Italian high fashion showings for international buyers and press.

The scene now shifts to Florence and six days of fashion shows in the Pitti Palace.

GARNETT is a designer who designs for grown-up women. She says that there is no point in slanting high fashion to the teen-agers, since they don't need it in the first place and can't afford it in the second.

The result of this fashion philosophy is a flatteringly elegant collection.

Garnett's suits have the longer jackets that have emerged as one of the fashion dictates of the Roman collections.

HEMLINES fell slightly below the knee and the figure was gently moulded.

Perfume Not For Saving

Perfume's not for saving . . . it's for wearing every day, not just on those special "dress-up" occasions. Of course, you wouldn't wear the same perfume to the supermarket that you wear to a party. That's why you shouldn't limit yourself to just one fragrance. So how about adding to your perfume collection right now.

WHAT KIND of scent to buy? Well, it depends on when you're going to wear it. The fresh, delicate fragrances are best for daytime wear. And the "headier" more sophisticated fragrances are beautiful at night. If you really want to splurge . . . choose a couple of different perfumes to match your daytime moods . . . and one or two little bottles of the classic imported fragrances . . . for evening.

When you start out on your shopping spree . . . don't try on too many perfumes at one time. Just test a few by putting a drop on the inside of your wrist. Fragrances are different on your skin than they are in the bottle. That's why you should always "try them on" . . . rather than just whiff them in the bottle.

Perfume, as you know is a very powerful persuader. Just a little goes a long way. So don't overdo it. Apply a few drops to the temples, base of throat, inside the wrists.

If you have trouble opening a new bottle of perfume, peel off the wrapper around the neck of the bottle, cut the cords, and gently twist the stopper. If that doesn't work—tap gently with another glass bottle.

Pamper your perfume since it will be a part of you. Be careful about exposing open bottles to strong light. It can change the quality of the fragrance. Glass stoppers are grooved to fit the bottle. Be sure you twist the stopper in firmly to prevent evaporation. Colognes, dusting powder, and scented soaps are delights to use, but they should be in the same scent as the perfume you're wearing. Matching not mixing makes the most of your perfume.

Summertime Means More Fabric Care

Summer, "when the living is easy," is actually the time when more care than ever is required for washables. With an increased emphasis on outdoor living and varied activities, clothing seems to pick up more stains and receive harder wear during summer months.

Stains resulting from catsup, mustard, berries, and grass, are difficult to remove once they've become "set" in the fabric. Such stains should be rinsed immediately. There are many stains and conditions which require special treatment and improper handling can make the situation worse. Such difficult stains could be cared for by a fabric care expert.

Particularly during the summer, clothing should be laundered frequently and soon after wearing to avoid fabric damage or staining. This also holds true for wash and wear garments. Hand washing at low temperatures is usually not enough to remove body oils, soils and perspiration from minimum care articles. Thorough laundering is required or these garments may become gray or discolored.

An added precaution given for summer care of clothes is to avoid prolonged exposure to the sun, which may fade and gradually weaken some fabrics.

The Giant Zipper

Paris, which likes to be obstinate, has embraced the giant zipper just as American designers here are settling down happily with the invisible zipper that tucks unobtrusively into seams and darts. Along with closing up coats, the rugged steel teeth of the French zippers keep pants, skirts and culottes from coming to a parting of the ways.

Draw-String Dress Requires Caution When Button-Holing

By EUNICE FARMER

Help! I have an emergency. I made a drawstring dress that has two buttonholes in the front for the belt to come through the casing. After completing it, I found it is too long-waisted. It looks beautiful hanging on a hanger — but on me, hopeless. Mrs. A.M.

Dear Mrs. A.M.:

For the benefit of all of you who will have this type of pattern, be sure to check the placing of these buttonholes before you make them. Try your dress on, tie a belt very tightly around the waist, push up the amount of ease, or blouson you would like, and mark the correct place for the buttonholes.

For you, Mrs. A.M., I can only suggest that you make a tuck in your bodice so that the seam will be exactly on the top edge of the buttonhole. When your casing is made and the drawstring inserted, I'm sure it won't be noticeable, also, because of the blouson styling of this type of dress, I don't think it will be too bulky at the waistline. Good luck!

Is 100 per cent purse Irish linen ever made in other than 36 inch widths? Mrs. D. S.

Dear Mrs. D.S.:

Irish linen made for the home sewer is always 36 inches to my knowledge. Pure linen used for tablecloths is usually 50 inches wide. Also, I have seen linen drapery fabric that is 50 inches wide. Many times you can purchase fabric that has been left over from a manufacturer. This width will vary also, in this case, wider fabric is more economical in cutting many garments.

One last word on linen for the home sewer: If you intend washing your garment instead of having it cleaned, especially white, when you would be using hot water, be sure to pre-shrink your linen first. Place it in hot water, dry and then press.

Tailor Trix Winner: "To avoid bulk on shoulders, particularly when working with heavy coatings and suitings, incorporate back and front facings at the shoulder lines, pinning pattern pieces together through the seamlines. Add a ⅝ inch seam allowance at the center back where the new joining will be.

"Cut fronts and facings in one piece to get rid of a bulky seam on a coat or jacket front (if it doesn't have lapels). Just remember to be extra careful that the center front is on the exact straight of goods or grainline."

Mrs. Darrell Sibley, Webster Park, Spring Valley, Ill., is this week's winner of a tailor trix pressing board for this suggestion.

Whenever I have a blouse or dress with a "V" neckline, I have trouble making the interfacing and facing lay flat at the point of the "V." I either have a pucker, or else the seam tears into a hole. Miss B. R.

Dear Miss B. R.

When you machine stitch to the point of the "V" take one stitch across the "V" and then stitch back up and finish neckline. When you have finished, shorten the machine stitch, and reinforce the "V" by beginning ½ inch from the "V," take your stitch straight across the point, and then stitch ½ inch further on the previous stitching line. You may now clip to the last stitch with confidence. It will make the facing lay flat and also, by reinforcing, will not pull out at the point.

Your Sewing Glossary: gore: This is the term used for a section of a skirt. If there are six section, or whatever, each section is called a "gore," such as a six-gore skirt.

Ah, Those Linings

Fur coats for kids are a little pretentious, even for those whose Dads own most of the town. Ah, but fur linings, that's another thing. Next to their comfort blankets, wee ones like the soft feel of fur pelts best of all. And since small pieces of inexpensive skins may be utilized inside, Dad likes it because it is comparatively cheap. Real fur in white lamb or kit fox can be had for less than $100 and fake fur of a dozen varieties for half of that.

Sheepskin Race Wolfs Up The Family Finances

CONCORD, N.H. (AP)—Parents whose son or daughter has won a scholarship can heave a sigh that they will get some financial help in putting their offspring into the sheepskin race.

But they will be disappointed if they think the scholarship alone erases financial fidgets over college.

Even with scholarship help, parents almost always must contribtue a major share of the cost of the bachelor's degree.

This reminder comes from James L. Yeager, president of Tuition Plan of New Hampshire, Inc., which finances tuition and fees on the installment plan at any approved school or college.

Valley Forge Ready For Another Youth Gathering

VALLEY FORGE, PA. — Nothing was left undone in the way of preparations for the 1964 Jamboree of the American Boy Scouts.

A week before these young Americans were due to converge here from all parts of the nation, this historic place was a beehive of preparatory activities.

Army-style tents were springing up at designated areas according to grand plan.

An Army field hospital was being set up to care for the injuries and illnesses inevitable in such a huge gathering of human beings.

Field kitchens, tent-dining halls, recreation areas, water supply and distributing facilities were being prepared. Even field toilet facilities were under construction.

All was in readiness for the care and feeding of the cream of American boys.

But it was a study in contrast.

ON THE NIGHT OF December 19, 1777, the cream of another generation of young Americans arrived here, faltering over the frozen ridge, staggering from fatigue.

The only preparation for the arrival of Gen. George Washington's men was the hasty military survey one day previously to designate areas for bivouac and for defense. Gen. Washington himself had drawn specifications for approximately 900 log huts his young Americans would have to build for themselves for protection against the elements that bitter winter. But not till after they arrived.

Washington's men arrived in disorder, retreating from military disaster. They could no longer be accurately described as an Army. In the snowy weather, many with legs naked, feet bare and all half starved, they required more than a week to move 15 miles to Valley Forge.

Only 11,000 arrived at Valley Forge and 3,000 of those were physically unfit for duty.

IT WAS UNQUESTIONABLY the darkest day of the American Revolution.

But it was also here at this hallowed spot that Washington and his rag-tag troops became an army again. By Christmas, most but not all were under shelter. Washington and his generals combed the countryside for food and clothing for the freezing, starving troops.

Not until the middle of January were all adequately housed.

In the months that followed, the Prussian drillmaster, Gen. Von Steuben, welded them into an army—perhaps really for the first time.

By Spring they were trained and equipped to begin operations. By June they were able to administer a stinging defeat to the British at Monmouth and from there to go on to victory.

ON THESE SACRED acres a determined Washington and his faithful young Americans lifted themselves from the depths of defeat, acquiring the training, the equipment and the moral courage and strength to win the ultimate victory.

Let us hope that the extensive preparations for the Boy Scouts don't make them so comfortable that they miss the opportunity that is so abundant here to draw inspiration to face our nation's problems successfully — whatever those problems may be in their lifetimes.

CONCORD, MASS.—Here was fired the shot heard round the world that day in 1775. Every American grammar school youngster learns about the meeting of the British Redcoats and the colonial Minutemen on the Concord bridge.

Each year thousands of Americans now visit this historic site.

And they find it has a contemporary significance they were not aware of before their visit.

The little souvenir and refreshment stand at the foot of the bridge still sells full-sized Hershey bars for a nickel—probably the only place in the nation not charging 10 or 15 cents.

And we suspect that the tight-fisted Yankees who fell here in the first skirmish of the Revolution—lying now in their graves nearby—take some satisfaction in this.

MONTREAL, QUEBEC—If you journey to this French Canadian province by auto via New England, you see the American Revolution in a broader perspective than ever before.

At Lexington and Concord in Massachusetts, you come face to face with the ghosts of the heroic Minutemen; plain citizens who were fed up with the high-handed actions of the Royal British government and—untrained, undisciplined, unequipped and unsupplied—stood up to the professionals of the King's army and fought it out on the battlefield.

In Boston—if you are genius enough to find your way around Boston's tangled mess of short, narrow streets at odd angles—you can visit Paul Revere's house, the Old North Church were the light was shown in the steeple signalling the approach of the British soldiers, and the site of the Boston tea party that preceded the Revolution.

Scattered everywhere in Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont are battlefields, statues, monuments, plaques and the like which reinforce the impressions you already have from grammar school history class, that those revolutionaries were a brave, courageous and heroic lot.

THEN YOU CROSS into the Province of Quebec.

It is bilingual with French predominating, and you are reminded that much of what is Canada and U.S.A. today was once held and colonized by the French.

And you recall that the American-British colonists assisted the British Monarch's royal army in driving the French from this continent.

Washington himself was among the colonists who got his first military experience fighting in the English King's uniform against the French and their Indian allies.

And you ask yourself, "Was it not in this contest that the colonists first realized that it was possible to drive one more foreign power out of the area?"

AS YOU WANDER the by-ways of Quebec and neighboring Ontario Province you come across plaques and monuments honoring and revering "loyalists" born in one of the 13 rebel colonies.

These men remained loyal to the British in the Revolution. They donned the King's uniform and fought loyally to put down the revolution.

After the revolution they moved to "loyal" colonies in Canada to start life anew. Many succeeded eminently. Their memories are now honored and revered.

IT IS POSSIBLE for an American to visit the shrines of the Confederacy in the South and develop considerable respect for Gen. Lee and his "rebel" forces. They were sincere, dedicated men giving their all for a cause they believed in.

It is possible, too, for an American to visit the "loyalist" shrines scattered over Quebec and Ontario and to develop considerable respect for this lesser known (in the United States) group who likewise risked their lives for a cause they, too, thought just.

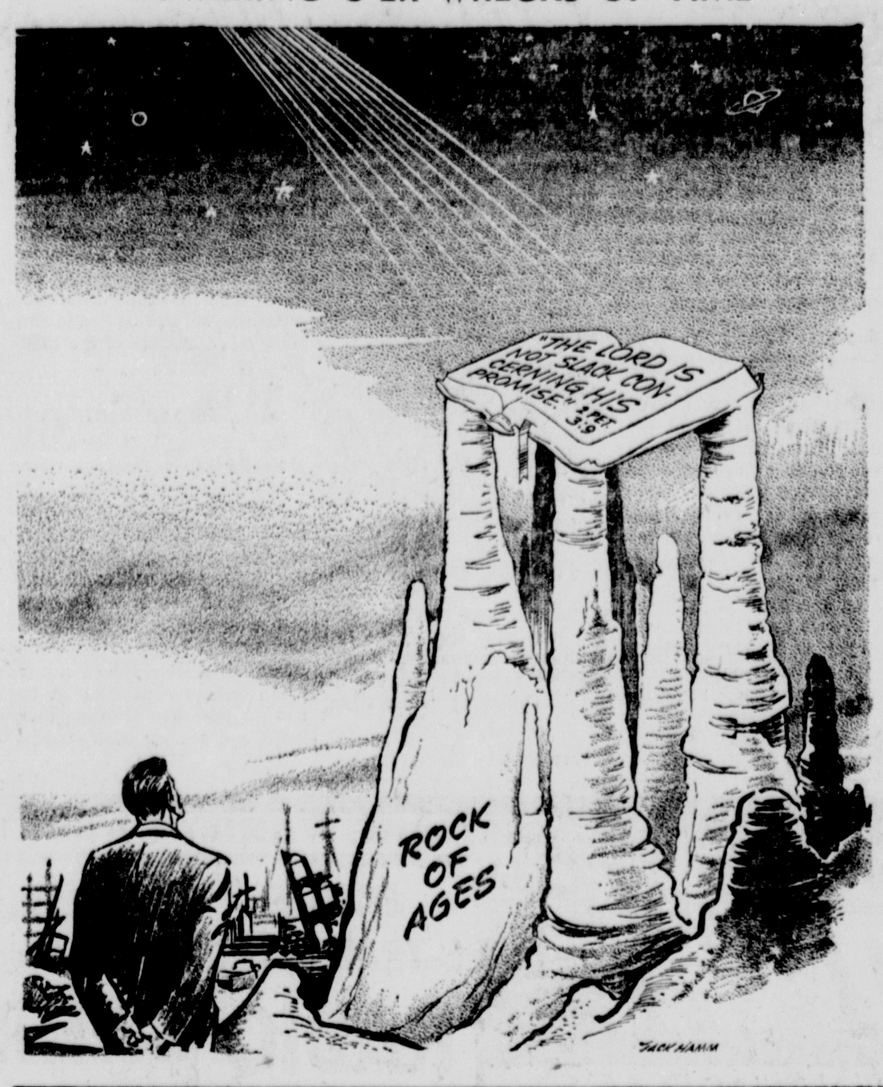
TOWERING O'ER WRECKS OF TIME



THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

ONE TRIP TOO MANY FOR OLD JALOPY

The family car just seemed to disintegrate one winter's night in Decatur, Illinois.

As the family was driving home through heavy snow drifts, the motor overheated and the battery ran down.

They reached a service station and recharged the battery. But the clamp slipped off the water hose and out poured the anti-freeze.

Just as they reached home, the car had run out of gas. But that wasn't the end. One of the tires went flat. So after getting some fuel, the harassed couple headed back to the filling station. After having the tire fixed, all seemed to be under control. But on the way home, the clamp on the water hose went again and a loud snap announced that the fan belt had broken.

There are days when everything seems to be falling apart, although seldom in such a consistent fashion as this dilapidated auto. Patience, good humor and a clear view of your heavenly goal are needed to pull you through.

Never fail to help others through their rough days!

"Let us therefore draw near with confidence to the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need." (Hebrews 4:16)

Fill me with the firmness I need, O Jesus, when things go wrong.

This Year's GOP Campaign To Be Unlike Those Of Previous Years

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Republican Party under conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater now begins a presidential campaign that is unique in the 20th century and will be remembered for generations.

THE FOUR-DAY convention that made Goldwater the party's candidate against the Democrats' President Lyndon B. Johnson was dull because his selection was a foregone conclusion. But the implications are profound.

This 1964 campaign will be vastly different from the kind the Republicans have waged for decades. Previous ones hardly did more than urge restraint on the expansion of federal power and programs.

But Goldwater wants to return to some aspects of the past. In his acceptance speech Thursday night he said "we must and we shall return to the proven ways—not only because they are old but because they are true."

FOR EXAMPLE: Although Democrats and Republicans agreed in the Employment Act of 1946 that the government has a responsibility for the general welfare, Goldwater has said it must withdraw from social welfare programs.

He did not necessarily budge from that position Thursday night when he said, "we must assure a society here which, while never abandoning the needy or forsaking the helpless, nurtures incentives and opportunities for the creative and the productive."

AND, AS HE has said before, he would diminish both the role and the power of the federal government. He said:

"We Republicans define government's role, where needed, at many levels, preferably the one closets to the people involved: Our towns and cities, then our counties and states, and only then the national government.

"That is the ladder of liberty built by decentralized power. On it also we must have balance between branches of government on every level."

NEVER ONCE in his speech did he say a word about what he thinks should be done on civil rights.

It is hard to believe this will not be one of the roughest campaigns in this century—perhaps the toughest.

Less than two weeks ago Goldwater said one of the main issues of the campaign would be the "scandal hanging over the White House."

Two nights ago, discussing Johnson's role in civil rights, Goldwater called him a faker and a phony.

THURSDAY NIGHT he said "our people have been given bread and circuses, spectacles and even scandals." And he talked of "corruption in our highest offices."

At this moment it is impossible to know how much appeal Goldwater will have to the masses of voters, or even to liberal Republicans, although it seems clear he will need all the Republican support he can get.

If he loses, particularly if he loses badly, Republican power in this country will probably be shattered for years. If he wins, the country will have to reverse its course and take a sharp turn to the right.

THEN A WHOLE new evaluation of the government's role at home and its foreign policies would begin.

In the past, at least back to 1940, the two parties have looked pretty much like twins, except for semantic hair-splitting on issues that looked more synthetic than real.

Thus for years voters have not been given a clear choice between liberal and highly conservative parties.

They'll get that choice this year.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I wish to comment and also offer a bit of correction upon the article in the July 13 Independent-Journal, re: The fire at the city owned property at 1404 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael in which my name is mentioned as a former owner.

I am not qualified to criticize the article upon its historical background when the house was a San Rafael show place, but I do very much object to the statement at the end — "a cheap rooming house." During our many years of ownership the house was not a rooming house—it consisted of several individual partments occupied by not rich, but respectable people. Most of them elderly or retired. Many of whom have resided there happily for 20 to 30 years.

I have received several protests by these former tenants who object strenuously to the reference "cheap." I would suggest that your paper correct the immaturity of the writer of the article in regard to self-supporting, clean elderly people living on a modest income being referred to as "cheap." It also is most unfair in implying that the former owner maintained a "cheap" establishment. Please be assured that although the rent was low, the accommodations were well kept and that neither the owner nor the tenants were or are now of a cheap caliber.

His Sizeup Of GOP Convention

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I would like to point the free thinking people of Marin County toward the future. The recent convention in San Francisco has been proved to me that the John Birch Society has increased its influence into controlling positions in the Republican Party. This influence has forced me to leave the Republican Party and the party of my parents. California Republicans have voted to support Senator Goldwater, and this has been seconded by the convention as a whole.

The tactics used by many Californians in this campaign have frieghtened me. Terrorism, threats, intimidations and slander have been used to force the conservative wing into power. With this swing of power, elements of racism and anarchy have been given the aura of respectability.

The future I look to is to be found in the liberal wing of the Democratic Party. It is possible that this election will open to everyone the truth of what is in reality a four party coalition government which is as unstable as that of France, and that can only be held together by a dictator.

All thinking Americans should band together to make a realistic division of American Politics along the true lines of liberal and conservative. In spite of all the claims to the opposite, the issues are what should be done, and not how. The hows are confirmed in our Constitution. The only thing that our Constitution does not tell us is what we are to do in the face of the great political crises of our time.

Let us not be afraid of the future. Let us rather be afraid that the structures of the past which have served us well now limit us to false choices and unreal divisions of philosophy. With only one thing do I agree in Goldwater's statements. I agree that we need a real choice along meaningful conservative and liberal lines.

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

Barry Will Accept Offer For Briefings

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and PAUL SCOTT

SAN FRANCISCO — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater is accepting those intelligence briefings offered by President Lyndon B. Johnson.

When they were originally made available to Goldwater some months ago, he declined. Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, then his leading rival for GOP standard bearer, accepted and had a series of classified briefings.

Now that Goldwater is his party's chosen candidate for the White House, he has decided to receive these important secret briefings on foreign and defense developments.

THE WHITE HOUSE is being informed of this, and an announcement will shortly be forthcoming of the assignment of a senior Central Intelligence Agency official to brief Goldwater during the election campaign.

Advisers stressed that a presidential candidate "can't have too much information about what is transpiring, especially if he is running against an incumbent president." As a graphic case in point they cited what happened in the 1962 congressional election.

In that contest, in which the Democrats won seats in both the Senate and House, the Republicans were caught by surprise several weeks before the balloting by the war-threatening Cuban missile crisis—which had definite impact on the voting.

KITCHEL AND HESS vigorously warned against a repetition of this.

Advisers also recalled the effective use the late President Kennedy made in the 1960 campaign of what he learned from the briefings arranged for him by President Eisenhower. This intelligence was of particular value to Kennedy in his historic televised debates with Vice President Nixon.

This factor particularly carried much weight with Goldwater in persuading him to change his mind about accepting the confidential briefings.

A TIME-BOMB is tucked away in the new GOP platform that is certain to explode with a loud bang during the campaign.

This unnoticed political dynamite is the plank titled "Trusting Ourselves and Our Friends," as follows:

"Secrecy in foreign policy must be at a minimum, public understanding at a maximum. Our own citizens, rather than those of other nations, should be accorded primary trust. Consultation with our allies should take precedence over direct negotiations with Communist powers. The bypassing of our allies has contributed greatly to the shattering of free world unity and to the loss of free world continuity in opposing Communism."

Written into the platform at the personal request of Goldwater, the plank will be used by him as a mandate to demand that President Johnson make public the series of secret letters he has exchanged with Premier Khrushchev and other Communist leaders.

From sources deemed authoritative by Goldwater, he is convinced there are at least 16 such letters, two dealing with a disarmament proposal still undisclosed in the U.S.

Goldwater A Publicist's Dream

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Not every politician is foresighted enough to be born in a log cabin. The next best thing, apparently, is to be the grandson of an immigrant peddler who once or twice went broke but never gave up.

Barry Goldwater started that way and now look at him. At once Goldwater qualifies not only as millionaire merchant but also as jet pilot, author, gadgeteer, general, jazz saxophonist, photographer, outdoorsman, radio ham, Senator, and Republican candidate for President of the United States.

Where other White House contenders traditionally are photographed looking ridiculous in the headress of Indian chiefs, Goldwater no doubt will be pictured performing the ritual dance of Hopi and Navajo tribes, and very likely doing it well.

The man overwhelmingly picked by the GOP National Convention as the party's 1964 standard bearer is handsome and sun-tanned. On looks, he could easily pass for a professional golfer, though his game lately has suffered from infrequent practice.

Barry Goldwater emerges clearly as a man of many parts, and some of those parts have earned him conflicting acclaim as either the white knight of salvation, the voice of a ring-wing conspiracy, or merely a shallow thinker with easy answers to insoluble problems.

What he calls himself is a right-wing conservative. He thinks that way and he votes that way. He also talks that way, and despite the fact neither friend nor foe reacts mildly to Goldwater's political stands, just about everybody who knows him calls him one of the world's nicer guys.

If he is not much of a reader or thinker, as his detractors contend, that is not hard to understand. He works hard at his numerous jobs and in his spare time lives the life of a hobbyist's dream.

That is to say he did until Wednesday night. Between now and Nov. 3 he will be giving President Lyndon B. Johnson most of his undivided attention. For a starter he already has called Johnson a phony and a political faker.

Yet on Tuesday, while the delegates were getting around to doing what everybody knew from the start they would do, Goldwater was installing an amateur transmitter in his Nob Hill hotel suite and exchanging chit chat with other hams over the world.

As Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois was at pains to advise the convention, in the nominating speech that touched off uproarious acclaim for Goldwater, Barry was the first of three children born to a Jewish merchant whose father came to the United States from Europe seeking his fortune in the California Gold Rush.

The family, after several false starts finally settled in Arizona. The general store they managed to buy in La Paz eventually developed into a retail empire and Arizona landmark.

Barry as a boy learned to box and became a top athlete at Phoenix Union High School. He became a radio operator at age 13 and his K7UGA signature is known to hundreds of hams around the world.

At hitting the books Barry never was much. He flunked a couple of courses in high school, spent one year in college, and decided the University of Arizona wasn't for him.

At age 20 he went to work in the family store. He soon developed a flair as a salesman. Last night he said he hoped his pitch to the country would go over better than Johnson's.

The man who now wants to be president helped, as recently as Harry Truman's regime, to develop a fast-moving clothing item comprising men's underwear decorated with red outsize ants. He sent a pair to Truman along with a note advising the President to "get used to having ants in your pants."

Barry had a way with the girls and in particular with Peggy Johnson, a beauty from Muncie, Ind., then getting the romantic treatment from G. Mennen Williams.

Williams' soft soap couldn't match Goldwater's soft sell, and at the wedding in 1934 Barry was the groom while "Soapy" Williams came as a guest.

The Goldwaters had four children, who now have four of their own. They are handsome, photograph well, and look like the All-American family.

They built and maintain a beautiful hill-top home outside Phoenix where the U. S. flag is raised and lowered automatically at sunrise and dusk and a VHF radio is kept tuned to Phoenix airport control.

Goldwater's expert photographs for a time were regular features of Southwestern magazines. He has written for magazines and has published books on his political beliefs.

In general, these add up to the proposition that less government is better than more, and that the United States ought to stand stiffer in its dealings with communist nations. These views have made him the darling of conservative voters and a principal villain in the eyes of the liberal bloc.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER
Heads GOP effort

He held those views when elected to the Senate in 1952, and, although he has changed his mind on specifics, he hasn't backed up an inch on general principles.

A year ago all the "experts" said Goldwater would never get a shot at the presidency. Between mouthfuls of crow some of these "experts" now insist he hasn't a chance to win the election.

On one thing you can bet. If Johnson is to win in November he will have to do it on issues. He can't make people think Goldwater is not a likeable guy.

U.S. Armed Force Stretches Farther

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press Writer

The long arc of U.S. military bases around the eastern sea perimeter of Red China is now being lengthened to curve through South Vietnam and Thailand.

This arc begins in Korea and stretches through Okinawa, Japan, Formosa and the Philippines to the air base of Udon in Thailand.

It embraces the newest jet base in South Vietnam at Danang, 350 miles north of Siagon. By jet, this is less than 30 minutes from the Chinese border across North Vietnam.

The Danang base ties in with the Air Force bases at Ton Son Nhut Nhatrang and Bien Hoa and the Udon base in Thailand just across the Mekong River southeast of Vientiane in Loas.

The powerful Seventh Fleet roams the South China Sea off Vietnam and southern China. It is in itself a floating airfield from which jets are capable of striking from almost any point along China's coast.

On Okinawa alone is a Strategic Air Command bomber base and an understrength Marine Division.

There are two army divisions and a number of jet bases in Korea.

The Chinese Nationalists operate several jet bases on Formosa which are used by U.S. planes.

Further, as a backup staging base, there is Clark Field in the Philippines near Manila.

Additionally, the British operate four military bases in the Far East — the only European power to do so.

The British have Navy and air facilities at Singapore, and air field in Sabah, another Royal Air Force facility near Kuala Lampur in Malaya and some army and air units at Hong Kong.

The U.S. bases in Southeast Asia are guarded by a long range radar station atop the 2,000 foot Monkey Mountain near Danang. This scans the skies over North Vietnam and the seaward approaches for the presence of Chinese or North Vietnamese aircraft.

It is from the Danang base that Air Force F100 jets reportedly have left to make strafing and bombing runs over Communist positions in Laos.

The base at Udon apparently is used mostly for piston engine, U.S. made T28 fighter bombers. One report said there were 10 such aircraft at Udon — five with Laotian markings and five unmarked.

It was at Udon that the United States began a buildup in 1962 when it appeared that the Communists might overrun Laos.

Forecasters Overshoot State Growth

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—California had an estimated population of 18,234,000 on July 1, a gain of 564,000, or 3.2 per cent, during the past year.

However, the population was about 35,000 below the figure that had been estimated by department of finance population experts a year ago.

The chief reason for the population falling short of the estimate was an increase of 29,000 in the number of Californians in the military service. In addition, California followed the nationwide trend of decreases in the birth rate, with births about 9,000 less than had been estimated.

The department of finance estimated the population a year from now would be 18,815,000, of which 18,492,000 would be civilians. It said there had been a net build-up of about 26,000 in the estimated number of military personnel stations in California since mid-1960.

By July 1, 1966, the department has projected a population figure of 19,389,000.

A breakdown in the population figures showed the state is becoming younger. In the zero to four years of age group the largest single segment in the population, there are 1,894,000 persons. This compares to a total of 1,552,000 who are 65 years and over.

Next highest to the zero-to-four, is the five-to-nine bracket, with 1,875,000 persons. The third highest is the 10-to-14 years category, with a total of 1,712,000.

This shows that about 30 per cent of the state's total population is 14 years of age or younger, as compared to only about 8 per cent who are over age 65.

The department said the projected pattern of migration is conservative.

Brezhnev Remodeled Old Figurehead Post

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Leonid I. Brezhnev served four years as Soviet president, changing the job from a largely ceremonial one to an active part of the government.

After succeeding the aging Marshal Kliment Y. Voroshilov as titular Soviet chief of state on May 7, 1960, the previously little known Brezhnev traveled abroad extensively, made major Kremlin policy speeches, and took on a number of key party tasks for Premier Nikita Khruschev.

His vigorous activity as the normally ornamental chairman of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet — or President — added seeming weight to widespread reports that the burly Brezhnev was Khrushchev's heir apparent.

Born into a Ukrainian steel worker's family Dec. 19, 1906, in Dneprodzerzhinsk, Brezhnev joined the Communist Youth League at 17, became a metallugrical engineer, and managed to rise rapidly through Ukranian Communist Party ranks during the great Stalinist purges of the 1930s.

He met Khrushchev at that time, and their political paths have never since been far apart.

Brezhnev gained the rank of major general during World War II in various important political posts with the army.

As he rose in postwar civilian life, Brezhnev was given, among other jobs, the tough one of launching Khrushchev's controversial virgin lands farm program.

In 1957 he became a full member of the ruling Presidium.

He handled primarily domestic assignments until his appointment as president four years ago when he began traveling and speaking out on foreign as well as internal affairs.

Although at times described as a colorless bureaucrat, Brezhnev has impressed American officials who have met him.

Words Fly Over 'Extremism'

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Webster's International Dictionary defines extremism as "a quality or state of being extreme, specifically radicalism."

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona wants to know New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's definition of that word.

In his acceptance of the Republican presidential nomination Thursday night, Goldwater brought convention delegates to their feet when he said: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. Moderation in pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Rockefeller, who only hours earlier had congratulated Goldwater on his impressive victory in the Cow Palace, was the first Republican leader to react unfavorably to the Senator's statement. He called it "dangerous, irresponsible and frightening."

"Any sanction of lawlessness, of the vigilantes, of the unruly mob can only be deplored," Rockefeller said. "The extremism of the Communists, of the Ku Klux Klan and of the John Birch Society—like that of most terrorists—has always been claimed by such groups to be in defense of liberty."

Goldwater then asked Rockefeller, who had fought him in the primaries, "to put in writing what his definition of extremism is."

"Would the Governor fight for his life?" Goldwater asked. "That would be an extreme action. Is it extreme action for our boys to give their lives in Vietnam?"

The Goldwater-Rockefeller schism happened only a day after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Goldwater's final adversary, called for party unity.

Whether the split would widen and deepen was something only time would tell.

GOV. NELSON ROCKEFELLER
Lashes "extremism."

Around The World, Around The Clock

Washington — The State Department deplored the action of a Soviet boat which fired three shots across the bow of an American grain ship in the Black Sea and then sent a search party aboard. The incident followed a disagreement involving unloading of the cargo by stevedores at the Red port of Novorossisk.

Cape Kennedy—Scientists fired three satellites into orbit with a single rocket. Purpose: To watch for any secret Soviet nuclear testing in space.

Saigon—Viet Cong guerrillas killed a U.S. Army medic in an ambush attack on a Vietnamese convoy in the Mekong Delta.

New York—A near-riot took place when a policeman killed a young Negro during a scuffle which followed an apartment superintendent's splashing of a group of Negroes with a water hose. The police officer said the youth had charged at him with a knife.

Miller Offers Many Assets To GOP Election Strategy

By EDWARD W. O'BRIEN
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON— Congressman William E. Miller, chairman of the Republican National Committee, is now the vice presidential candidate on the ticket headed by Sen. Barry Goldwater.

Once the presidential nomination was locked up, Goldwater forces got down to serious business of appraising possible running mates for the Senator.

Their consensus was in favor of Miller, for having these apparent political assets:

YOUTH—He is 50 years old and looks a little younger. Goldwater is 55.

GEOGRAPHY—He is Eastern but not too much so. He lives in a small town near Niagara Falls, N.Y., in the westernmost corner of the state.

SAVVY—As National Committee chairman, he has impressed party leaders and troops around the country with his political skill and hard-driving aggressiveness. They know him and like him as a relentless worker and fighter.

ORIENTATION—He is a conservative but has avoided any such conspicuous label.

RELIGION—As a Catholic, he might attract to the Goldwater ticket many of the votes the Republicans lost in 1960 by the presence of Sen. John F. Kennedy.

After the first ballot convention win by Goldwater, it was highly unlikely that he would be forced to use the vice president nomination as bait to win the presidential nomination.

After what happened at the convention, the Senator was able to make a completely free choice. His preference was for the six-term Congressman.

An unmentioned asset from Goldwater's personal standpoint is that Miller, as National Committee chairman from Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's home state, has maintained an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the Arizonian through the bitter fighting of recent months.

Bobby Baker Case Won't Quickly Fade From Capitol Hill Memory

By DON BACON
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — The ending of the official investigation phase of the Bobby Baker case did not mean the high-flying former Senate employee will soon be forgotten.

The one-time page boy, and later secretary to the Senate majority, has left a lasting imprint on Capitol Hill. Robbert G. (Bobby) Baker's noisy departure and the subsequent public airing of his questionable business and personal activities has brought about a quiet revolution in congress.

The change is mainly one of attitude among members and their employees. The belief that an elected official or any public employee can divorce his personal activities from his public responsibilities no longer prevails. Instead there is a growing awareness that the two are inseparable.

This new feeling is best reflected in the ever-increasing number of Senators and House members who have endorsed a proposal to require public disclosure of their income sources and assets.

When the Baker scandal broke last fall, only a handful were in favor of the disclosure bill sponsored by Sens. Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.), Clifford P. Case, (R-N.J.), and Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa.), among others. In recent months, the bill has picked up scores of supporters, including nearly 40 members who have voluntarily disclosed their outside sources of income.

Significantly, the Senate committee on rules and administration, which investigated the Baker affair, has just recommended "the adoption of new rules requiring some form of public disclosure of outside financial interest by the members, the officers and the employees of the Senate."

Unanimous endorsement by the nine-member panel gives official backing to the disclosure proposal and strongly enhances its chances of reaching the senate floor either this year or next. The House, while not bound by any Senate action, would be under enormous pressure to follow with its own disclosure rule.

The burgeoning support for disclosure is even more striking when it is remembered that only five years ago Sen. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) became the first member of either house to make a public accounting of his finances. At that time, the Senator confided later, he feared he would be ostracized by his colleagues.

Although the Baker case was not the first scandal to hit capitol hill and undoubtedly won't be the last, it was to many members an eye opener. For the first time, they were able to see how a real operator, backed by Senate power and prestige, could amass a fortune in a short time. They were reminded that congress, in this era of the 100 billion dollar federal budget, has overpowering influence on private business and the general economy.

Today in congress there is more serious talk among members about "conflict of interest," "ethics" and "reform" than at any previous time in memory.

BOBBY BAKER
Campaign Target?

Described by the Senate investigators as "an opportunist," Baker was just a single individual caught on the shady side of the ethical street. But most members share at least some of his guilt, for they are ultimately responsible for the rules of conduct—or lack of such rules—on the Hill.

Operators like Bobby Baker do not abound in Congress or on congressional staffs, but certainly there may be other "opportunists" among the 535 members and nearly 6,000 professional and clerical workers. The present concern is not that unethical conduct is so widespread, but that Congress's tattered prestige cannot stand even one more scandal.

Forgotten Cost Is Discovered In Civic Center

The second unit of the Marin County Civic Center won't cost $9,740,000 after all. It will cost $10,497,700, according to County Auditor-Controlier Michael Mitchell.

Left out of the architect's estimate presented to the board of supervisors Tuesday were the architect's fees, which will be 10 per cent of the building costs.

The Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation has submitted a bill for $378,850 for the payment of the pre-preliminary work which has been done so far.

The bulk of the rest would be paid at the time the construction goes to bid, which could not be earlier than December, 1965.

Mitchell, in a letter to the board, has asked that $94,712.50 be held up from the architect's payment at this time, to be paid when preliminary plans for the building are completed. The contract allows holding up this money, he said.

The county still faces the question of financing the building, which will have space for courts, county clerk, recorder, district attorney, health and expansion of departments in the present building.

Quarrel Lands Spouse In Jail

Alton Arthur Morgan, 38, of 10 Tarrant Court, Santa Venetia, was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace Thursday after he allegedly threatened to kill his wife.

His wife, Georgina, filed a citizen's arrest with the sheriff's office and Morgan was booked in the county jail under $110 bail. He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court for arraignment at 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Mrs. Morgan said he caused a disturbance at home and told her to get out or he would kill her.

No Quorum, No Meet

The meeting of the Larkspur-Corte Madera Joint Recreation Commission was called off Thursday because of lack of a quorum. The commission will meet at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Larkspur-Corte Madera School.

Lucas Valley Homeowners Want Master Plan Delay

Lucas Valley Home Owners Assn. will ask the Marin County Planning Commission to delay consideration of the Lucas Valley master plan Monday, president Stanly Dorst said today.

The request will continue an already extended stalemate between the organization and builder Joseph L. Eichler, who wishes to place apartments and single family homes where town houses are shown on the master plan.

Home owners have complained that this would put too great a load on already limited recerational facilities at the planned community.

Eichler has offered concession to owners verbally since the association meeting last Monday, but not in written form and with not enough time for members to vote on them, said Dorst.

REPUBLICANS!

Congratulations! This could be a very good year for Orthodox Republicans, perhaps the best since George Washington. Despite many handicaps, we are convinced even George Washington could be elected in 1964, particularly when it is observed the Democrats do not appear to be seeking a candidate other than a candidate for vice president, and as Alexander Pope remarked; "Vice is a monster of so frightful a mein as to be hated, needs but to be seen".

Today is Saturday, July 18, the 200th day of 1964 with 166 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase; the morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Mars and Venus

On this day in history:

In A.D. 64, the City of Rome burned.

In 1914, the U.S. Army created an aviation section within the Signal Corps.

In 1932, the United States and Canada signed a treaty to develop the St. Lawrence River into an ocean link.

In 1940, President Franklin D. Roosevelt was unanimously nominated for a third term by the Democratic convention meeting in Chicago.

A thought for the day: Greek philosopher Plato said: "Of all the animals, the boy is the most unmanageable."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

Don't Rush After First Trick When There Is Repeat Finesse

Don't be in a hurry to take a trick the first time when declarer has a repeatable finesse. In fact, make it a rule to refuse the first such trick without even thinking about it.

Opening lead — ♣ 3

An excellent illustration is furnished by Fred Karpin in his latest paperback, "Winning Play in Contract Bridge." When West opens the three of clubs and declarer plays the queen from dummy, East must play a low club without the slightest sign of thought.

If East does so, South will try for a diamond trick by taking the king of diamonds and leading a diamond toward dummy. West discards a heart, and South sees that the diamonds are hopeless.

Declarer can now count only eight tricks: two spades, three hearts, two diamonds, and one club. The best chance for a ninth trick is in clubs, as sooner or later declarer must lead a club toward dummy.

STRATEGY PAYS OFF

Here is where East's strategy pays off, which is just as well since the subtitle and main subject of Karpin's book is Strategy at Trick One. There is a fine chance that South will play the king of clubs from dummy on the assumption that West has the ace of clubs.

If so, declarer goes down. East captures the king of clubs with his ace. The defenders then have an easy time producing five tricks — and in any case South has only eight tricks.

South would make his contract easily if East took the first trick with the ace of clubs. South would then have no choice in clubs except to finesse with dummy's ten of clubs in his search for a ninth trick. This finesse would work.

East should recognize the position at the first trick as one in which declarer can play the clubs twice without being sure of how to play from dummy. To put it another way, declarer has some sort of repeatable finesse in clubs — which means that East should follow the rule of refusing the first trick without thinking about it.

QUESTION

Partner opens with one no trump (16 to 18 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ Q 10 7
♥ J 10 3
♦ Q 10 9 8
♣ A 8 4

What do you say?

Answer: Bid three no trump. With your nine points you know that the combined count is 25 to 27, and you have three tens to help if you are a point shy of the 26 points usually needed for game.

Nichols Thought Golf Was Easy, But Then...

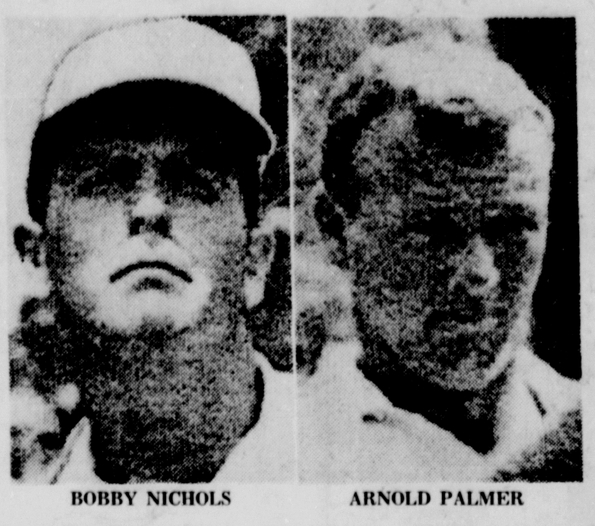
By JIM BECKER

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"I got to thinking this game wasn't hard," said Bobby Nichols.

When you're playing golf, thinking like that is like tap-dancing on a land mine.

However, the resultant explosion of bogeys—three in a row—wasn't fatal, and baby - faced Bobby pulled himself together to hold the lead after two rounds of the PGA championship at the Columbus Country Club.

But Nichols could be excused for looking over his shoulder in the third round today. Right behind him can be heard the tramp, tramp, tramp of Arnold Palmer's Army, punctuated from time to time by the pistol-like crack of U.S. Open champion Ken Venturi's iron shots.



BOBBY NICHOLS

ARNOLD PALMER

Nichols, who was putting more and enjoying his $5 putter less, scratched back from the bogey string and got a one-over-par 71 yesterday holding the lead at 135. The bargain basement blade had aided him to a PGA and course record 64 on opening day.

Palmer had his second straight 68 for 136. Arnie chipped into the cup on the 10th hole for the first eagle three of the tournament—and promptly fell apart.

But an assist from a foot soldier in the army, who stopped an errant approach shot on the 15th hole, helped Palmer save second place.

Venturi hurled some beautiful iron shots through the sweltering afternoon for a 65, and a tie for third at 137 with Bo Wininger.

"I knocked the flags right out of the holes," Venturi said. "And it was the same story as at the Open—I got the putt down on the first hole, and I was off.

"I was about 30 feet from the cup on the first, and as soon as I hit the putt, I thought: 'Whoops it's going 10 feet past.' But it hit the middle of the cup and jumped in.

Nichols said he was not disenchanted with his new putter.

"I was just too relaxed and confident," he said. "It came so easy Friday that I thought I would go right on from there. I got six straight pars and then I went to sleep.

"I three - putted seven, and messed up eight—I missed the green and chipped badly—and

SANFORD MAY BE ABLE TO RETURN THIS YEAR

An operation to restore full blood circulation to San Francisco pitcher Jack Sanford's throwing arm was termed successful yesterday with hopes he'll be back in action this campaign.

The surgery corrected a five-inch blood vessel blockage in Sanford's right arm. The big hurler went into the operating room at 10 a.m. yesterday and came out at 6 p.m. Surgery was performed by vascular surgeon Dr. Frank H. Leeds.

Team physician Dr. E. C. Sailer, who observed the operation, said it was a success and added, "it was amazing he could pitch at all."

The circulatory impairment, blamed on an injury during Sanford's military service in 1955, became acute on June 25. The 1962 World Series hero had blanked Los Angeles for five innings when his right hand became cold and numb.

He left the game and missed his next starting assignment. On July 4, he again could go only five frames before numbness forced him out of action. When the same thing happened on July 9, Sanford was sent home for a complete examination.

Sanford, who posted a 24-7 record in 1962, was 5-7 for this campaign with a 3.30 earned-run average.

Those Thorough Yanks Already Have N.L. Contenders Scouted

Jack Hanley

Those thorough Yankees already have their scouts trailing the Giants, Phillies, Reds and the rest of the National League's 1964 pennant contenders.

Mayo Smith picked up the Giants in Milwaukee. Simultaneously, Johnny Neun picked up the Phillies in Pittsburgh. Bill Skiff, meanwhile, picked up the Dodgers in St. Louis. That blanket coverage left only the Reds without attention. But Smith will take care of that this weekend.

"I think I'll run down to Cincinnati and say hello to my good friend Fred Hutchinson," said Smith as he left the Giants when they concluded their road trip in Milwaukee. "I'll be seeing you."

Smith knows as much about the Reds as Hutchinson does. He preceded Hutch as Cincinnati manager before joining the Yankees as their ace National League scout.

During his three-game stay in Milwaukee, Smith didn't take one paper note. He never does. He always come equipped with a score card but he never sullies it with notes. However, he misses nothing.

HE DIDN'T have to be told that Jim Ray Hart was hitting .275 just before the All-Star break and had boosted that average to an even .300 going into the final game with the Braves at Milwaukee. Smith knew that the Giant third base rookie had a .436 average for the road trip (17-for-39, including 11 RBIs).

Such information could readily be obtained by Ralph Houk in a local telephone call from Yankee headquarters to the Elias News Bureau that compiles official statistics for both major leagues. Furthermore, such information would be of little value to Yankee pitchers, primarily interested in how to get Hart out provided the Giants and Yankees do tangle again in the 1964 World Series.

THUS, SMITH paid particular attention to Hart every time the rookie came to bat. You could see the scout making a mental note of the way Denny Lemaster worked on Hart for a called strikeout in the second game of the Brave series. The southpaw first jammed the rookie, next worked the outside corner, wasted the third pitch high and hard, and then got the rookie looking.

That is the start of the Yankee book on Hart. Before the season enters the September stretch, Smith will have a complete dossier on the rookie's batting habits. And, of course, he will similarly have helpful reports for Yankee pitchers on how Jay Alou and Hal Lanier should be pitched.

THE YANKEES already have detailed reports on Giant veterans, particularly Willie McCovey. In his 1962 report on the Giants, Smith urgently recommended a right side defensive shift on Stretch. And everyone who saw the seventh game of the 1962 World Series in Candlestick park knows how Bobby Richardson was in perfect position—closer to first base than second — for McCovey's line drive that would have scored Matty Alou and Willie Mays with the winning runs had it gone through.

Giants Now 10-10 With Cellar Dwellers

Independent-Journal Sports

12 Sat., July 18, 1964

Houston's Colt 45's shoot down the San Francisco Giants just as if they didn't know they were big birds near the top of the National League standings.

In fact, if they weren't down to Houston in the 1964 series to date, the Giants might be ahead of league leading Philadelphia.

Whipping San Francisco 5-2 in Candlestick Park last night, the Colts took a 5-4 lead in games for the year. That combined with the scant 6-5 advantage held by the Giants over the New York Mets leaves San Francisco just 10-10 on the year against the clubs in ninth and tenth places.

Back in 1962 when the Giants won the pennant and were 61-21 in their home park, which club held an edge over them in Candlestick Park? Why, the Colts, of course. Manager Harry Craft's club that season, its first in major league baseball, was 5-4 over the Giants in their home park.

In an effort to even the count this campaign, Manager Alvin Dark of the Giants sent left-hander Billy O'Dell 3-1 against Ken Johnson 7-8. The two clubs conclude this series with a doubleheader tomorrow.

Asked the secret of his club's success as Giant killers, Craft answered, "We've been fortunate to get good, consistent pitching against them. As long as you do that and get a few runs, you can win."

Bob Bruce notched his tenth triumph of the year last night and his second over the Giants this year although needing relief help from reliable Hal Woodeshick in the eighth.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, Dave Roberts walked and after Eddie Kasko fouled out, Jerry Grote singled Roberts to second.

Bruce came to bat, obviously to bunt for a sacrifice. He topped the ball to Herbel who dropped it. First baseman Orlando Cepeda picked it up and threw past second baseman Hal Lanier covering first.

When the dual-error play ended, Roberts had scored from second and there were runners on second and third. Billy Pierce came on to pitch and Al Spangler knocked in the fourth Houston run with a fly to left field. Spangler also drove in No. 5 with a single in the ninth.

Still the Giants threatened in the eighth even though the first two batters went down. Then Tom Haller walked.?

Left-handed hitting Duke Snider batted for Lanier and Bruce served two balls. Out came the right-hander and in went southpaw Woodeshick. Out came Snider and in went right-handed hitting Harvey Kuenn who promptly singled. Willie Mays, out of the starting lineup to rest an ailing back, was safe on an error loading the bases.

The rally died when Cap Peterson flied out in a pinch hitting role.

PERRY SENDS NELLIE FOX A NEW BAT

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Pitcher Gaylord Perry of the San Francisco Giants is following the orders of National League President Warren Giles in getting a new bat for Houston's Nellie Fox.

Giles ordered Perry to purchase the bat after Perry lost his temper and broke the bat of Fox, whose hit drove in the winning run against the Giants last Sunday.

Frank Ryan of the Hillerich and Bradsby Co., manufacturer of the Louisville Slugger Bat, said a personalized bat is being made for Fox and the bill goes to the Giants. Ryan said he received the order yesterday from the Giants.

Bill Russell Good For 10 More Years?

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell said yesterday he will play two or three seasons more at the most for the Boston Celtics, the seven-time National Basketball Association champions.

He brushed off talk of possible retirement during last spring's playoffs as the words of a man sleepless from pressure, weary from playing and pained by aching knees.

"Of course, if everything goes haywire for me, then maybe I'll play nine or 10 years," Russell added with a wink.

The big center said he is launching a career in automotive sales "so I can grow old gracefully. I want to have some other interests so I won't be attempting to play that 'one more year' after I've lost the touch."

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE

Rare Error Aids Phillies

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

It didn't take Don Pavletich too long to make a mark for himself.

Less than an inning, in fact.

The mark, however, was a red face resulting from a rare and costly error that helped first-place Philadelphia edge Cincinnati 5-4 last night and move one game ahead of San Francisco in the National League race.

Pavletich played with Cincinnati last season but was assigned to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League this year. Thanks to an injury to John Edwards, the Reds' regular catcher, Pavletich battled his way back to the majors.

He made his first appearance last night, walking as a pinch hitter for starting catcher Hal Smith in the seventh inning. Then came his 1964 catching debut in the eighth.

Pinch hitter Danny Cater opened the inning with a single. With Costen Shockley at bat, Pavletich tossed the ball back to pitcher Bill Henry. The ball, however, went astray, landing behind the reliever. Before anyone could recover it, Cater raced to second.

SQUEEZE BUNT

Shockley grounded out, sending Cater to third from where he scored on Clay Dalrymple's squeeze bunt.

The run seemed somewhat harmless at the time, as it gave the Phillies a 5-3 lead. But Vada Pinson homered for the Reds' final run in the eighth.

Philadelphia Manager Gene Mauch credited Cater with alert base running on the play, but Reds' Manager Fred Hutchinson undoubtedly had another way of saying it.

The Giants also had some error trouble in losing to Houston 5-2. Los Angeles nipped Chicago 3-2 and St. Louis trimmed New York 9-8 in other National League games. Rain washed out a doubleheader between Pittsburgh and Milwaukee.

Pavletich wasn't the only Red to commit a costly error. A wild throw by Steve Boros helped the Phillies load the bases in the seventh inning before Tony Taylor singled in a run that broke a 2-2 tie. Then, Johnny Callison popped to Leo Cardenas, and Bobby Wine scampered home as catcher Smith let Cardenas' throw get past him.

Callison hit a two-run homer and Steve Boros did the same for Cincinnati.

TORRID STREAK

Ron Fairly continued his torrid hitting streak with his fourth homer in three games and a single, leading the Dodgers over the .500 mark for the first time since opening day. Fairly's homer in the sixth was the winning run.

Don Drysdale recorded his 12th victory against eight defeats, allowing six hits, including Billy Cowan's first-inning home run.

The Cardinals and the Mets engaged in a see-saw slugfest that St. Louis won with a two-run rally in the eighth. Lou Brock's third hit, a triple, drove in one run while Dick Groat's single, his third hit, brought in Brock. The Mets rallied for a run in the ninth, but Bob Gibson came on and retired Bob Taylor for the final out.

St. Louis' Bill White and Charlie Smith of the Mets each clouted two-run homers.

Semi-Pro Baseball Starts 2nd Round

Three Games On Sunday Schedule

RON BLUM

Three games spread out through the county will launch the second half of play in the Marin County Semi-Pro Baseball League tomorrow.

The San Anselmo Merchants, winners of their last two games, will play against DeMaestri's Fairfax Garage at San Anselmo's Memorial Park; league-leading Billings-Hutchison will oppose last place Novak Builders on the Novato High School diamond, and the Mill Valley Merchants will host the Tiburon Sox at Project 17 field. All three games will start at 1:30 p.m.

The San Anselmo-Fairfax game will break a third place tie in the league, both teams with 2-3 records. Expected to get the starting berths on the mound in this game are Steve Miller of San Anselmo and Laddie Richardson of the Fairfax nine. The last time these two clubs met, the garagemen were on the long end of a 10-4 score.

Billings-Hutchison walloped the Novato entry in the Marin League 17-1 the first time the two teams met. Either Paul Chaffee or Nino Geminiani will get the starting role for B-H, opposing probably John Dolinsek of Novato.

Keith Fraser has been given the starting nod for the Mill Valley Merchants in their game with Tiburon. Starting for the Sox will be Skip Rush, strikeout king of the league. These two teams didn't meet in the first half of the loop and will make up that game at the conclusion of the regular schedule.

then I three-putted nine.

"You get a little jerky when you get to three-putting a few."

Palmer came to the 10th one under par, and was in the rough to the left of the green on his second shot on the par five 526-yard hole. His chip hit the back of the cup, jumped a foot in the air, and came down in the cup.

"I kind of went to pieces after that," Palmer said.

At the par four 15th, 474 yards long, Palmer's drive was in the rough. He hit his second only about 100 yards and under a tree. His third was hit on the green and headed for the high grass behind, but a specator stopped it. Palmer chipped up from there and one-putted for a bogey five.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, straining to make a good show before the home folks, had a 73 for 140, five shots off the lead, and suffered the greatest embarrassment that can befall a golfer. He missed a sand trap shot.

Nicklaus, the longest driver in the history of golf, banged a tee shot about 320 yards on the 15th. His five iron second caught the right trap.

He swung and moved the ball about five feet, still in the trap. His next just barely got out. He finished with a six.

Winning the last event that decided the victory, the Las Gallinas Aquatic Club defeated the Tiburon Peninsula swim team 161-153 Thursday.

Double winners for Las Gallinas were Steve Roberts, Ann Roberts, Ben Edmands and Kathy Mullowney. Double winners for Tiburon were Diane Ring, Suzanne Pratt, Leslie Airola and Eric Rayner.

Nice Start! Raider Ace Hurt Already

SANTA ROSA (AP) — The Oakland Raiders opened training for the 1964 American Football League season here today with one top player already sidelined with injuries.

Cotton Davidson, who shared quarterbacking duties with Tom Flores for the Raiders last year, suffered a pulled muscle in the right leg while working out on his own yesterday. He'll be sidelined four or five days.

Coach Al Davis welcomed 17 rookies and Raider newcomers to camp today for two days of special instruction. Twenty-four Raider veterans will report Monday as training begins in earnest.

Davis said he would hold two workouts each day. The players also will attend squad meetings in between workouts and nightly skull sessions.

Fog Saves Eagle From First Loss

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—A pea soup fog settled down over Rhode Island Sound and put an end to racing yesterday afternoon in the Observation Trials for America's Cup defense candidates.

The New York Yacht Club Selection Committee called the races off when the four yachts involved had sailed about half of the 24-mile Gold Cup course.

The committee later announced Friday's pairings will carry on to today and there will be no races in the observation trials after today under any circumstances.

Abandonment of the races probably saved American Eagle from her first defeat of the year. She was four minutes behind Constellation when the fog closed down and blotted the two 12-meter yachts from view.

Nefertiti led Columbia by six boat lengths on the second leg of the course when that race was called off.

Old Fashion Uppercut Decides Video Fight

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—The uppercut, a punch rarely used these days, apparently has earned clever Johnny Bizzarro of Erie, Pa., a shot at the lightweight title.

The 25-year-old, Italian-born Pennsylvanian shook Frankie Narvaez with a right uppercut in the third round and floored him in the ninth with another in gaining a unanimous decision in 10 rounds over the 12-5 favored lightweight contender from New York last night.

This reversed a split decision loss to Narvaez in the same Madison Square Garden ring six weeks ago and ended the squat New Yorker's 2½ year unbeaten streak at 15.

Erie promoter Don Elbaum said he had offered a $40,000 guarantee to lightweight champion Carlos Ortiz for a title defense against Bizzarro and that Bill Daly, Ortiz' adviser, had accepted. Ortiz said the price and opponent was okay with him.

A 'SUCKER'

Bizzarro profited from his disputed loss to Narvaez in June. "I thought I won that fight," he said. "Anyway I learned he was a sucker for a right uppercut and I proved it this time. I was waiting for him to shoot his left in the ninth and when he did I let him have it."

The three officials had Bizzarro ahead by these scores: referee Johnny LoBianco, 7-3; judge Frank Forbes, 7-2-1 and judge Tony Castellano, 5-4-1. The Associated Press had Bizzarro in front, 6-4.

Ruling On Pill Due

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Millions of Catholic couples are anxiously awaiting a promised re-statement of their church's position on birth control.

Pope Paul VI disclosed recently that the Vatican has been giving "wide and profound study" to the "extremely grave problem" of regulating family size.

He said the conclusions reached in the study will be announced "soon."

The Pope did not say that the church is preparing to change its stand. But neither did he rule out the possibility of important modifications.

Informed Catholic circles consider it highly improbable that the church will alter its long-standing opposition to the use of contraceptive devices. On the contrary, the forthcoming pronouncement is expected to re-affirm the Catholic view that it is immoral to engage in sex relations "in such a way that the act is deliberately frustrated in its natural power to generate life."

But there is at least a chance, informants say, that the Vatican will spell out certain conditions under which Catholics may in good conscience use the new hormone pills which affect ovulation.

The moral acceptability of these pills as a means of family planning has been the subject of sharp controversy among Catholic theologians in recent months.

Some noted Catholic scholars, such as Louis Janssens, professor of moral theology at the Catholic University of Louvain, Belgium, have urged the church to approve use of the pills to suppress ovulation, and therefore prevent conception. They contend that there is no moral difference between this method of birth control and the long-approved rhythm method, in which a couple tries to restrict sex relations to those portions of the menstrual cycle in which a woman is naturally infertile.

Other Catholic scholars — including leading U. S. authorities on moral theology—have lodged strenuous objections to use of hormone pills for the deliberate purpose of producing temporary sterility.

However, most of these scholars say that a woman may take the pills for therapeutic purposes—such as correcting irregularity in the menstrual cycle. In that case, they say, the prevention of conception is a legitimate "secondary effect" or by-product of medical treatment.

There seems to be a fairly widespread consensus among Catholic theologians that there would be no moral objection to a hormone pill which did not suppress ovulation entirely but merely stabilized the date of ovulation, so that the rhythm method could be used with complete confidence.

All of the birth control pills now on the market work by suppressing ovulation entirely. But Leo Cardinal Suenens of Belgium said recently that scientists have told him that a pill which simply regularizes ovulation sufficiently to make the rhythm method reliable "will be available very soon."

The thing to watch for in the forthcoming Vatican statement is whether it leaves the door open for Catholics to use such a pill.

If so, it will be the best news in a long time for the Catholic couples who now find it extremely difficult to live with their church's teaching on birth control.

Sons Of Freedom Tame Terror Acts

By FRED COLEMAN

AGASSIZ, B. C. (AP)—"No more nude parades," said Big Fanny, the 230-pound grandmother who used to lead her radical religious sect through protest marches in the raw.

The mass destruction of property has stopped too.

After a turbulent 60-year history of fighting government authority with nude parades, burnings and bombings, the Sons of Freedom sect now appears to be living up to its original pacifist ideals.

Florence Storgoff, 56, better known across Canada as Big Fanny, the Freedomite spokesman, believes her religious sect is the victim of a miscarriage of justice which must be corrected.

The main sore spot is one of the most unusual prisons in the world. The fireproof, concrete compound was built here in 1962 to house 100 members of the sect sentenced to terms of up to 10 years for terrorist acts, mostly arson.

Behind the prison lies a long history of friction between a democratic state seeking to protect the rights of all its citizens and a radical religious sect which believes it must resist all government authority.

Big Fanny and the 550 other members of her sect are camped here outside the prison, 75 miles southeast of Vancouver. They live in 142 tarpaper shacks which local authorities see as an eyesore against the background of the lush green Fraser Valley ringed by snow-capped Rocky Mountain peaks.

Many of the men wear beards. Some of the women wear babushkas, peasant blouses and ankle-length skirts. They converse in Russian, cook borscht, chew sunflowerseeds and find part-time work picking fruit.

But mostly they just wait, hoping to embarrass the British Columbia government into releasing their brethren.

Their story began in czarist Russia with their parent sect, the Dukhobors, in 1895.

The Dukhobors, a pacifist offshoot of the Russian Orthodox Church, refused military service.

Czar Nicholas II turned his Cossack troops on the Dukhobors to force conscription. The sect responded by collecting rifles in a pile and burning them. Fire since has been a favored form of Dukhobor protest.

Leo Tolstoy, the author, contacted Quaker groups in London and together they helped the Dukhobors migrate to Canada.

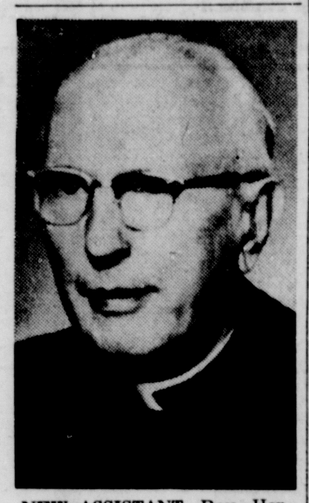
The trouble centers on the Sons of Freedom, the minority radical wing of the sect which broke with the Orthodox Dukhobors 40 years ago and settled in the Kootenay Valley, 40 miles east of Vancouver.

Since then, by some accounts, the Freedomites have been charged with 800 acts of violence.

They often stripped and paraded nude to demonstrate equality before God, and demand equal rights. They claimed the government had taken everything else and it might as well take their clothes.

Friction mushroomed over the years culminating in the spree of terrorism which led to arrests, trials and the Agassiz prison in 1962.

With the exception of an ill-fated hunger strike last year, there have been no further demonstrations.



NEW ASSISTANT—Rev. Herman C. Grunau, former chief librarian and history instructor at Valparaiso University, Indiana, will be installed assistant pastor of the Peace Lutheran Church, Mill Valley, at 11 a.m. next Sunday. In addition to his university work, he has served as pastor of several churches.

Bishop Asks End Of Ecclesiastic Colonialism

Episcopal Prelate Brings Record Of Success To Overseas Dioceses

By STEPHENS BROENING

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—Right Rev. Stephen F. Bayne is a 20th Century cleric concerned with the ending of what he calls "ecclesiastical colonialism."

Bishop Bayne is soon to become overseas director of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

When he succeeds Bishop John Bentley in November he will be responsible for the church's 16 overseas dioceses and the 1,600 clerical and lay workers in them.

Some say he is being considered as a successor to Right Rev. Arthur Lichtenberger as presiding bishop of America's 3.5 million Episcopalians.

Whatever his job, Bishop Bayne has a reputation for getting thing done.

Interviewed while here on a speaking engagement, he was asked:

"When you were bishop of the Olympia, Wash., diocese the congregation there doubled in 12 years, didn't it?"

"Tripled," he corrects, "but it would have happened without me."

At the 1958 Lambeth conference of Episcopal bishops he was the architect of a report endorsing contraception as a liberating force in family planning.

Soon after the conference he was made executive officer of the Anglican Communion, the loose federation of the 18 autonomous Episcopal churches.

"The future of the church," Bishop Bayne says, "is tied up with the ecumenical movement.

"A single Christian church?" he muses. "Could there ever be one? Not foreseeably. What we can look forward to is the bringing together of the diverse elements.

"There are already signs of it. The Methodists, Presbyterians and Episcopalians and the rest have started consultations. Out of them may come some unities.

"The United States, of course, is the toughest nut to crack ecumencially. We like our free market religion, a church for every price class.

"But this fragmentation can not continue. The massive social problems, like the racial question and the inner city dilemma, cannot be handled with a series of religious clubhouses. There has to be some common planning."

Bishop Bayne, a trim, bespectacled 56, had his beginnings in New York—"I was brought up as a devout kid."

Educated at Amherst, he worked for a year on Wall Street before deciding to enter the seminary. "I was ordained in the teeth of the depression," he says.

After a six-year stint in St. Louis, Mo., Bayne served as wartime chaplain at Columbia University.

In 1947 he took over the Olympia diocese.

Big Spending By Churches Irks Prelate

NEW YORK (UPI) — A famous church here is spending $850,000 to give its front entrance what the architect calls "a Fifth Avenue look."

Another well-known church in the same city is investing $350,000 in new stone carvings to "enrich" its already-lavish gothic facade. A third church is laying out $125,000 to "improve" its pipe organ.

New York churches have no monopoly on this kind of thing. Similar examples could be cited from almost any community in America.

To Dr. Clyde H. Reid, professor of practical theology at Union Theological Seminary here, the idea of churches spending so much money on themselves is scandalous.

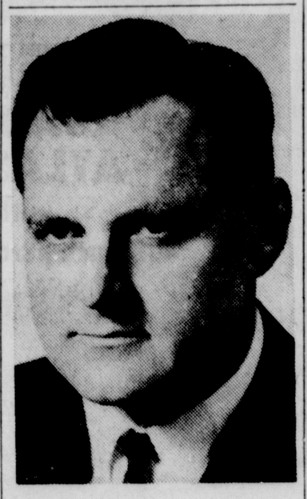
Dr. Reid has let go in the Christian Century Magazine with a blast of rightous anger at what he calls "profligate and irresponsible expenditures by churches for self-centered, even foolish purposes."

He says he appreciates aesthic beauty as well as the next fellow, and would be delighted for churches to have the finest architecture, art and music—if they had unlimited resources.

But in actual fact, church funds are limited, and every dollar spent on bricks is one less dollar available for the church's mission to lost and suffering human beings.

"To spend hundreds of thousands of dollars on statues, stones, carpets and organs is . . . a sin against hungering humanity," says Dr. Reid. "It is alien to . . . the spirit of Christ, who was concerned not with the paraphernalia of religion but with true faith."

Dr. Reid recalls that Jesus said very plainly: "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth . . . for where your treaure is, there will your heart be also."



RE-ELECTED — Lawrence Goldberg was recently re-elected president of Congregation Rodef Sholom. Others re-elected were Harold Harris, vice president; Lewis Aaron, treasurer, and Mrs. Chester Patnoe, secretary. Newly elected to the board of directors were Henry Biggers and Melvin Warenback.

Anti-Darwin Law Stands In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn., (UPI)—Tennessee's anti-evolution law never has been challenged in the courts since the classic "Monkey Trial" 39 years ago this month.

The legislature steadfastly refuses to repeal the law; teachers and state officials tacitly ignore it.

Passed March 21, 1925, it provides:

"It shall be unlawful for any teacher in any of the universities, teachers colleges, normal schools or public schools of the state which are supported in the whole or in part by the public school funds of the state to teach any theory that denies the story of the divine creation of man as told in the Bible, and to teach instead that man decended from a lower form of animal."

The law was written by Rep. John Washington Butler shortly after a speech by William Jennings Bryan at Nashville on "Is the Bible True?" was printed and distributed to members of the legislature.

Bryan was prosecution attorney when John T. Scopes, a high school instructor, went on trial at Dayton, Tenn., July 10, 1925, on a charge of violating the new law by teaching Darwin's theory of evolution to his students. The trial, instigated as a test case, developed into a war of words and wits between Bryan and chief defense attorney Clarence Darrow.

Scopes was convicted and fined $100.

Benefit For Church Organ

Hugo Rinaldo, violinist, bariton Byron Jones and pianist-composer Richard Cumming will present the second annual organ fund benefit recital at 4 p.m. tomorrow at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Rinaldi and Jones are leaders in Marin music affairs. Cumming, who studied at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, is here from New York City as musical director for the Marin Shakespeare Festival, for which he has composed an original score for "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Director of music for San Rafael City Schools, Rinaldi is conductor of the San Rafael Chamber Orchestra and Marin Youth Symphony. He plays violin with San Francisco orchestras as time permits.

Jones is director of vocal music for San Rafael City Schools, instructor in music appreciation and voice at the College of Marin and director of music for the church.

He has been soloist with the San Francisco Symphony, San Francisco Bach Choir and Lamp Lighters and with the Winifred Baker Chorale—most recently singing the lead in its production of "The Death of the Bishop of Brindisi."

Cumming studied piano with Herbert Jaffe in San Francisco and the famed Czech pianist Rudolf Firkusny, for whom he wrote the "Scherzo for Piano," which he will play in Sunday's recital.

He will also join Rinaldi in playing sonatas by Handel and Grieg.

Jones will sing works by Scarlatti, Durante, Mozart, Ravel, Donaudy and a song with music he wrote to words of the poem "Mood San Marcos" by San Rafael poet Margaret Albanese.

His accompanist at the piano will be Margery Bagshaw.

Lutherans' Firm Stand On Rights

PITTSBURGH — The Lutheran Church in America closed its second biennial convention here with a strong endorsement of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and a sweeping indictment of racial discrimination.

The LCA urged "all citizens to join in compliance with the Civil Rights Act in letter and in spirit" and called upon its 3.2 million members to "take the lead in their communities to encourage obedience to this legislation."

The act, signed into law by President Johnson on July 2, the day the LCA opened its eight-day meetings, was hailed as "a historic advance in the long struggle to secure rights to which we, as Christians, believe all citizens are entitled."

Minutes before passage of the civil rights resolution, the 700 delegates adopted a statement on race relations that had been considered for nearly eight hours over four business sessions of the convention.

Subject of most debate was the controversial issue of civil disobedience as a justifiable means of combating racial injustice when all other alternatives have failed.

As finally approved, the statement stressed that "if and when the means of legal recourse have been exhausted or are demonstrably inadequate, Christians may then choose to serve the cause of racial justice by disobeying a law that clearly involves the violation of their obligations as Christians."

In so doing, however, church members were cautioned that they must be willing to accept the penalty for their actions, to limit and direct their protest against a specific grievance or injustice, and to carry out their protest in a non-violent, responsible manner.

The Preview Showing So Many People Have Been Awaiting!

GLENWOOD FOREST UNIT 2

The great success story in homes last Spring was the enormous reception given the first collection of homes in Glenwood Forest. These 73 homes, sheltered in a natural cul-de-sac of rolling tree-covered hills, were gone within 3 months. To those who came too late, we promised a similar limited collection of homes nearby. Now we are keeping this promise. Magnificent 3 and 4 bedroom homes with 2 and 3 baths, spacious living room and enormous family room, beautifully situated among green hills thick with trees. Only 5 minutes from downtown San Rafael. Of course, if you weren't looking for a home at that time, and were unaware there was a Glenwood Forest, you're in for a rare treat! You won't find another community of homes like this for a long, long while — and we can't make any more promises.

Everyone's Talking About THE OAKVIEW CLUB
THE MEADOWS

WHY? . . . because the Oakview Club—your own private Club is just a short walk from your beautiful Apartment or Townhouse. There are exercise rooms, lockers, men's and women's lounges, showers and sauna baths . . . two sunken championship tennis courts with a seating capacity for 500 spectators . . . two large swimming pools and a wading pool . . . shuffleboard, ping-pong and a large, comfortable sunning area . . . all this amidst rolling hills studded with ancient oaks and beautifully landscaped.

THE CLUB HOUSE itself is luxuriously furnished . . . the cocktail lounge is carpeted and has a huge fireplace . . . intimate social-dining room . . . spacious facilities for private receptions, parties, bridge, teen-age dances and indoor movies. AND luncheon is served daily.

APARTMENTS consist of one, two and three bedrooms.

TOWNHOUSES consist of two and three bedrooms, two baths.

CHOICES of parquet flooring or wall-to-wall carpeting. All are beautifully draped. All have louvered doors within. Kitchens are completely electric. All refrigerators are self-defrosting and have separate freezer tops. THESE UNITS ARE THE ONLY ONES IN MARIN COUNTY WITH CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING. THERMOSTATICALLY CONTROLLED. Rents start at $150 per month and include family membership in the Oakview Club.

MODEL apartments, townhouses and the Oakview Club are now open for YOUR inspection. Come out and compare.

DIRECTIONS: Past San Rafael, take Terra Linda turnoff, continue to the end of Freitas Parkway, and then you enter THE MEADOWS. 479-1600.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Learning to talk is not easy and youngsters are not equally prepared to develop this skill. "Children between 2 and 5 tend to repeat sounds, syllables, whole words, and phrases in connected speech," according to Dr. Donald Counihan. He says that at some stage of development, many who eventually achieve normal speech display the fluency interruptions characteristic of the stutterers. A minority continue to talk in this way and eventually exhibit the blocks, hesitancies, and mannerisms typical of this condition.

WE DO NOT KNOW why this happens except that the youngster is disturbed by some physical or emotional trauma during these trying years. The parents may have set their standards too high and become overly concerned when the tot has more than the usual difficulty learning to talk properly.

The youngster becomes frustrated, setting the scene for a speech defect. These same parents realize that learning to walk involves many falls; but learning to talk is not viewed with equal understanding.

A PSYCHIC CAUSE is suspected when the stuttering occurs under stress or with excitement. The boy or girl loses confidence on becoming aware of the speech difficulty. This added hazard is more likely to follow when the parents place a penalty or focus undue attention on imperfect speech. The youngster now is on the way to becoming a stutterer. At first there is a block in saying the same sounds, words, and phrases.

The problem should be recognized as early as possible and the environment changed. Best results are obtained before the child develops a defeatist image of himself as a stutterer. The parents must avoid the situations that precipitate episodes of stuttering. Allow the child ample time to speak and avoid showing embarrassment about the tot's speech behavior. Professional counseling may be needed.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

MEANING OF BLEEDING

M.J. writes: Is rectal bleeding a sign of stomach cancer?

REPLY

No. It may be due to hemorrhoids, anal fissures or ulcers, polyps, diverticula, or cancer of the lower bowel. Bleeding from a stomach cancer usually leads to black stools, because the blood darkens when mixed with stomach acids. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on rectal bleeding.

BOWLING

Mrs. R. writes: My daughter is two months pregnant. She bowls once a week for three hours. Won't this harm the baby?

REPLY

No. Bowling is good exercise up to the sixth month of pregnancy.

BARIUM X-RAYS

M.D. writes: Do barium X-rays reveal chronic appendicitis?

REPLY

Not as a rule. They are more helpful in determining whether the appendix is normal and in finding the cause of abdominal distress.

HERNIA FROM CRYING

Mr. D.B. writes: I was told that if a mother lets a boy baby cry for a long time, he will get a rupture. Is this true?

REPLY

The added strain could lead to hernia if the child has an inherent weakness in the groin.

NOT UNUSUAL

J.G. writes: Can you die with your eyes open?

REPLY

Yes, and this is common.

Today's Health Hint — Good vision is necessary for safety at home and on the street.

We Doubt If They Were Wooden Actors

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — There was a guillotine set up in the Nevada Prison yard and some of the convicts were guards.

It wasn't a revolution in penal philosophy. The prison was being used for location filming of Jean Genet's play, "Deathwatch."

About 100 inmates participated as extras. Most portrayed inmates of a French prison in the 1930s, but a few played the parts of guards.

Novato Artist Cheers Dying Girl's Last Days

A Novato artist's role in giving a dying teenager her last wish came to light last night after a mercy flight failed to arrive in San Francisco in time to save the girl's life.

Linda Yockim, 17, of Mountain View died in the air over Nevada, aboard a private plane which was flying her from Billings, Mo., for an emergency operation at the University of California Medical Center. She had been vacationing in Billings with her uncle and aunt, when stricken.

Word came in a radio message from the pilot at 8 p.m. It ended plans for speeding the girl from Oakland Airport across the Bay Bridge in an ambulance, with a California Highway Patrol escort.

And the announcement also brought out the story of a pretty young girl who wanted to have her portrait painted before she died.

Last weekend, from her bed, Linda told her mother, Mrs. Laverne Yockim, she was sorry she would never have a portrait of herself.

Determining to fulfill this wish, Mrs. Yockim called Frances Shoaf of Mill Valley, a good friend.

Miss Shoaf agreed to do what she could, and began calling artists in the Bay Area in hopes of finding one who would do the painting from photographs—and for nothing.

Eight artists turned her down. Then she called Nevin Kempthorne of Novato and she agreed. She tackled the job quickly and had the painting finished in a few hours. After framing it, Miss Shoaf got the portrait aboard an airline flight for Missouri.

That was last Sunday. Five days later, with her wish fulfilled Linda was dead.

Swarms of Boy Scouts Test Skills At National Jamboree

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) — Thousands of Boy Scouts tested their physical skills on the Skill-o-Rama course today as they settled down to life on this historic site, landscaped with 32,000 tents for the sixth national jamboree.

The scouts climbed rope ladders, ran through a rubber tire obstacle course and otherwise flexed their muscles as they entered the second day of their one-week stand where Washington's tattered army camped through the fierce winter of 1777-78.

The 52,000 scouts also were set to take part in American Heritage Day, which called for simultaneous ceremonies at general headquarters and all troop sections. The program featured a rededication to the scouting oath in the evening, heritage troop campfires were to be lite at each site.

Floods In Russia

LONDON (UPI) — Rising flood waters in Russia's far east Amur Valley have forced evacuation of humans and animals, according to a Moscow radio report monitored here yesterday. Ships, aircraft and special military units have been mobilized to give aid, the report said. The flood was described as unprecedented.

Assistant U. S. Postmaster Richard Murphy was scheduled to dedicate the post office erected here for the jamboree.

The day's events will include a performance by the Mattatuck Drum Band of Waterbury, Conn., the nation's oldest. Founded in 1767, the band will play on drums, some of which date back 150 years, and fifes.

Members of the unit dress in replicas of uniforms worn by colonial soldiers of Connecticut. They will play Revolutionary War tunes.

Art, Garden Fair Buys Second Lot From Objector

The Marin Art and Garden Center has purchased the second of two lots from Nicholas Ivancovich, who has complained about noise, dirt and disturbance at the annual art and garden fair.

The Ivancovich property, on Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross, was surrounded by fair property.

James Goodale, executive vice president of the center, said the land was purchased as an investment and will be used for rental purposes.

Tax stamps indicated $48,000 as the price paid for the second lot.

Attorney General's Opinion Sought On Bay Fill Freeze

The executive committee of the Assn. of Bay Area Governments will seek an opinion from the state attorney general's office on the legality of a three-year moratorium on bay filling projects.

The association has submitted a joint powers agreement to its member cities and counties which calls for delay in further filling of tidelands until completion of a current study sponsored by ABAG and the Bay Area Transportation Study Commission.

San Rafael Mayor John F. McInnis, a member of ABAG's executive committee, suggested at committee meeting in Petaluma Thursday that a regal ruling be asked. He said city governments have the only precedent for moratoriums, these only for one-year moratoriums in zoning matters.

Other members of the executive committee said they would be interested in the moratorium proposal if it is ruled legal.

The executive committee voted to write Gov. Edmund G. Brown urging action on another crossing from San Francisco to the East Bay. McInnis said studies of all alternate routes are complete and a decision on the route and start of construction is long past due.

McInnis said the group believes a second Golden Gate crossing requires more study before a decision can be made there.

The ABAG committee urged all its member governments to protest the federal San Joaquin reclamation project that would dump wastes in San Pablo Bay.

Funeral Burglar Suspect's Plea Delayed Week

Burglary suspect John Theodore Cynko, 45, of San Francisco, held without bail in Marin County Jail, is to appear in Marin County Municipal Court next Thursday to enter plea on the charge he entered a Belvedere home while the family was attending a funeral.

Cynko was arrested July 9 in the home of Thomas P. Phelan on Bella Vista Avenue while the family was attending services for their daughter, Sharon 17.

Cynko was to plead yesterday, but the case was continued one week.

IT'S STRIKE UP the band as Fred C. Rose of Marinwood conducts his Oakland Municipal Band in one of the organization's popular weekly summer concerts at Lakeside Park in Oakland. The appearances attract as many as 2,000 music-lovers. Rose is also music director at the San Rafael Military Academy, and has behind him a colorful career in music with the armed services. The Bandmaster From Marinwood

In Service And As Civilian, Fred Rose Has Waved Baton

By JAMES WILLWERTH

Presto!

Enter Fred C. Rose, 48, at "moderato" pace which, sooner than you can wave a baton, becomes "allegro vivace." His conversation rings with "staccato," and the marching music of John Phillip Sousa fills the room.

He enjoys a "legatissimo" existence with his wife, Gloria, at 505 Pinewood Drive, Marinwood, but only for the last two years. Until then he marched and played for the "forte" of diplomatic circles at Washington, D.C

AND BEFORE that, he island hopped the Pacific Ocean during World War II, playing for the "Mosquito Network"—a wartime radio system with beams bouncing among island-stationed soldiers' radios.

Rose is in his second year as music director at San Rafael Military Academy. Since the summer of 1962, he has conducted the Oakland Municipal Band at Lakeside Park in Oakland.

Every Sunday at 2:30 p.m., some 2,000 East Bay residents gather to hear marches, semi-classical pieces, and the music of Broadway shows. Rose leads 20 concerts each summer, from mid-June to mid-October, plus July Fourth and Labor Day holiday specials.

A NATIVE of San Francisco, he returned to the Bay Area in 1961 from Washington, D.C., where he was assistant leader of the United States Army Band and Chorus, based at Fort Meyer in Virginia.

During summers, his band played concerts at Water Gate Barge, a floating platform tied to the foot of Lincoln Memorial steps. Some 2,000 people would gather on the steps of the memorial to hear those Sunday concerts, he recalls.

With "no rest for the wicked," he remembers, the band would also join the President's special Third Army Infantry Group for parades at Fort Meyer or the Washington Monument Parade Grounds.

WINTER-TIME, the Army band played for State Department official visits. Former President Eisenhower, the King of Jordan, and France's inscrutable President Charles deGaulle were among many who dined or danced to the music.

Rose is a personal friend of Richard M. Nixon, and during the last California gubernatorial campaign, he conducted for the politician's Oakland visit.

Joining the Navy in 1933 as a flutist (he plays all woodwind instruments), he was later sent during World War II to the South Pacific as Adm. William F. Halsey's bandmaster. On one island, his group played two concerts a day, seven days a week, entertaining some 90,000 soldiers at different locations.

IN 1961, HE marched and played for the inauguration of the late President John F. Kennedy. At official functions, he also composed music for a 15-piece strolling string group that walked among tables, combining music with diplomacy.

His most embarrassing moment in the capitol occurred when the Japanese defense minister came to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns.

"The Japanese national anthem was to be played," he recalls, "and it was the dead of sub-zero winter. We had to wait 30 minutes for the diplomat.

"IN THAT time, the valves of our instruments had frozen. That was hard to explain to the high command."

Rose's colorful service career ended at 20-year retirement age in 1961. He returned to San Francisco, landed the Oakland conductorship and also soon realized a boyhood dream—to teach at the San Rafael Military Academy.

His present civilian career, however, is no less colorful than was his military service. From 3:30 to 4 p.m. on Sunday, KCBS radio cuts into the concert—with split second timing, well-rehearsed—for broadcasts up and down the Pacific Coast.

AND IF things get too hectic, the musician takes his troubles to a $5,500 concert organ sitting in the middle of his living room.

Greeting Cards In 3 Dimensions

Products Of Marin Firm Are Finding Ready Market

By DON KEOWN

Two imaginative Marin brothers have added a third dimension to greeting cards.

Cube Card Corp., launched last Jan. 1 by Bill and Don McKee after a year of preliminary spadework, is an already-flourishing business operation.

From headquarters at 130 Woodland Avenue in San Rafael, 56 card designs have been originated, covering Christmas, birthdays, anniversaries, births, get-well and all the usual occasions.

With preparations for the 1964 Christmas season well under way, a total of more than 400,000 colorful cube cards have been printed.

AND THE McKee brothers have developed some 1,000 accounts—quality shops that cater to customers who are looking for something different — for their cards which are mailed flat like conventional cards, but which can then be folded into gaily colored cubes with greeting messages printed around the sides.

Don McFee, a Kentfield resident who has been a Marinite for seven years, creates and designs the cards.

Bill McKee, who moved to Terra Linda some six months ago, heads sales and other business aspects of the operation.

"IT IS," Bill McKee says, "an ideal arrangement for us, taking advantage of my brother's artistic talents and my own business experience."

Don McKee is an art director of a San Francisco studio with extensive training and experience in art design work.

Bill McKee was in sales work with a business forms concern before he left that firm to devote full time to the Cube Cards Corp. operation. He also has had several years experience with a food broker in the Midwest, plus college schooling in business and finance.

Both brothers are married and each has two children. Don's wife, Connie, is one of the firm's three employees in addition to the brothers.

BILL McKEE says it all started this way:

"We were thinking about going into business together, and we wanted something that would use Don's creative talents and my own business background. We had several ideas which we kicked around. It was Don who actually came up with the cube card idea and began creating them.

"We were a year in preparation before our first shipment of cards, produced last December, was ready to be sent to the 24 independent card dealer representatives we had lined up on Jan. 1, 1964. They succeeded in placing them in quality stores.

"THEN IN January we participated in a stationary show in Los Angeles, and the result was overwhelming approval. This was our first real confirmation that we had something. Off that showing alone, we picked up some 100 new accounts."

This was followed by shows in San Francisco and New York. In both cities cube cards scored again and won increased outlets.

"It supported our gamble on our belief that people were looking for something new and different in greeting cards," Bill McKee says.

HE DESCRIBES his brother as "a very creative person—a flash, and he has an idea. He had never done greeting cards before, but they have proven

THE NEWEST things in greeting cards are "Cube Cards." And they come from Marin, a product of Don and Bill McKee's Cube Card Corp. of San Rafael. The Christmas selection is seen here, folded into their final three-dimensional shape. The McKees developed the special racks for the display of their merchandise in the quality stores where they are sold.

A HIGH LEVEL conference of Cube Card Corp. executives is under way on the deck of the Kentfield home of the Don McKees. The result is bound to be some ideas for clever new greeting cards to be produced and distributed by the fast-growing young San Rafael firm. Don McKee, left, is the creative member of the firm, designing the cards. His brother, Bill, handles the business operations. And Don's wife, Connie, works in the Cube Card Corp. headquarters on Woodland Avenue in San Rafael.

an ideal outlet for his creative talents."

The greeting card themes are humorous in a whimsical vein.

One that folds into an owl's head reads: "Happy birthday . . . to you know whoooo."

A rag doll says: "You're a doll . . . Thanks."

AN UNHAPPY little rodent scolds: "You're a dirty rat for not writing."

A rooster says: "Congratulations! You've got something to crow about!"

Sixteen of the designs are for Christmas cards, including Santas, snowmen, angels, snow-topped churches and carolers.

This fall, the McKees plan to

When the plans were made for PARK VIEW TERRACE Apartment homes, we knew people would want to live here. The location was ideal, nestled in the hillside overlooking Corte Madera Park. Close to the freeway and transportation but far enough to be quiet. Warmed by valley heat and cooled by Bay breeze.

Onto this location we put the best construction possible and then made sure that the finishing touches like all wool carpets, drapes, electric kitchens were first grade not lowest bid.

Then we designed a leisure area for all of the things we liked to do—swimming pool, sauna bath, putting green, badminton court, social room and even a horseshoe pitch. And then we told people about it.

FROM THE WAREHOUSE of its San Rafael headquarters, Cube Card Corp. ships its unique folding greeting cards to points near and far. Something New In Greetings

Cube Cards By Marin Brothers Create A Stir

add some Easter and Valentine cube cards to their line.

A recent special job consisted of cube cards extolling the merits of the Grand Old Party for the just-completed Republican National Convention in San Francisco.

BILL McKEE says the firm will do the same for the Democratic National Convention, to be held next month in Atlantic City, "if they want us to."

The greeting cards sell for 35 cents apiece.

Two San Francisco firms do the actual manufacturing, since the printing and the boxing are separate processes. But distribution is handled straight from the San Rafael office and warehouse.

It is a busy place. "We're not yet a year old, and already we're bursting at the seams for space," McKee says.

THE McKEE brothers enterprise was recently the subject of an illustrated article in "Greeting Magazine," a trade publication for the stationary industry.

Said that journal:

"The McKee brothers feel the potential is unlimited. The energy and enthusiasm are there, and acceptance seems proven by sales and repeat orders. At the present, they are a very 'happy' corporation, thanks to the imaginative, card-buying public."

THIS endorsement from within the industry of their unique cube card concept is heartening to the McKee brothers.

Even more so is the manner in which their outlets and their sales have been growing. Three dimensional greeting cards, the brothers are confident, are here to stay.

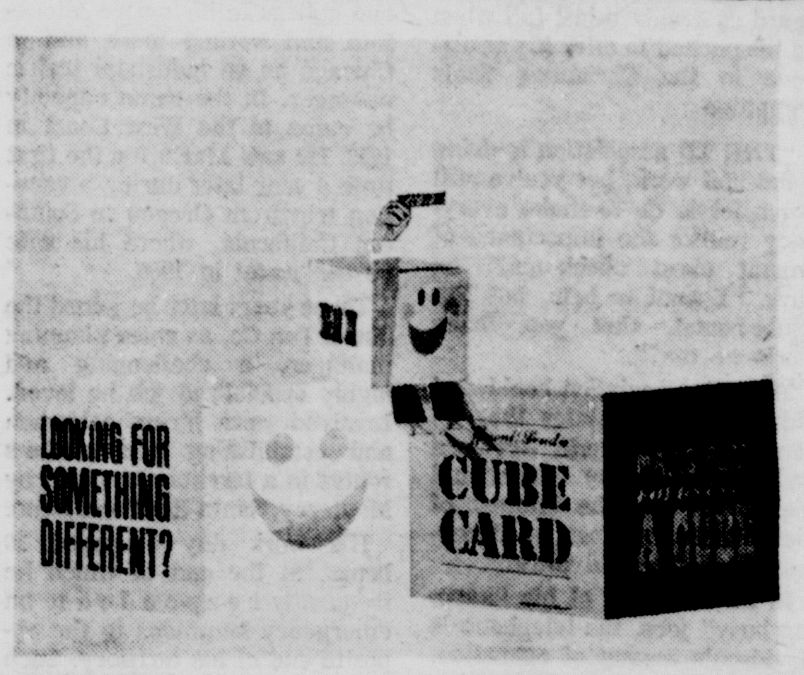
"HAPPY ANNIVERSARY to a pair of incurable romantics" reads the message on this cube card after it is folded into shape. It is one of 56 card designs now being offered by Cube Card Corp. with more on the way. All the usual greeting card occasions will be covered.

AT LEFT, showing you the Cube Card Corp.'s Christmas assortment of greeting cards, is Mrs. Don McKee, wife of one of the founders of the new San Rafael firm and herself active in the business. In front of her are some of the cards, flat for mailing. She holds one of the cards that has been folded into its cube form to become a Santa Claus. So far, Cube Card Corp. has produced 16 different designs for the 1964 Christmas season. There are another 40 designs by Don McKee covering the other traditional greeting card occasions.



THE APPEAL of their colorful Cube Card Corp. products, Bill and Don McKee believe, lies with those who are seeking something fresh and different in the way of greeting cards. A whimsical touch of humor lends further attraction. "Hi . . . Happy Birthday!" says this happy little fellow as he tips his hat.

Emphysema: Incurable Crippler—

Story Of One Of Its Ten Million Victims

Twenty years ago, "emphysema" was a virtually unheard-of medical term.

Today this chronic respiratory disease cripples an estimated 10 million Americans.

Harold Arvidson, 66-year-old Kentfield resident, is one of its victims.

CHIEF SYMPTOM of emphysema (em-fih-SEE-mah) is shortness of breath—the symptom common to all chronic respiratory diseases. Unfortunately, it is a symptom frequently shrugged off as an unwelcome reminder of advancing years or as an accepted consequence of too many cigarets.

Emphysemous lungs are constantly inflated (emphysema means "inflate"). Complete deflation is impossible because the tissue elasticity, which normally helps push out used air, has been destroyed.

Instead of being exhaled, carbon dioxide-laden air is trapped in abnormally enlarged, flabby-walled air spaces. Thus the lung's capacity for vital fresh air is diminished increasingly as the disease progresses.

NO SINGLE, primary cause of emphysema is known. Largest contributors are believed to be cigaret smoking and chronic respiratory infections. Other likely factors are air pollution and tissue-scarring lung infections such as tuberculosis.

More men than women have emphysema and it occurs most frequently (but by no means exclusively) in persons over 40.

Once thought to be an aging or degenerative condition, emphysema is shown by latest research by the National Tuberculosis Assn. to be of two distinct types: Chronic pulmonary emphysema and senile or atrophic emphysema.

BETWEEN 1950 and 1958, incidence skyrocketed 300 per cent in California, for some reason the hardest-hit state. In 1960 the disease totally disabled 25,000 Californians and partially disabled 670,000 more.

Emphysema can be halted — provided treatment starts before damage is too great and if the suspected triggering agents, such as infections and cigaret smoke, are removed.

But there is no cure for emphysema. The lung tissue is irreversibly altered.

THIS IS the hard fact Hal Arvidson faces. And he faces it squarely.

Sure, he is short of breath—so short that he must move slowly and plan his physical activities with great care. Also, he must never be without his nebulizer, the special atomizer which medicates the lungs in a cloud-fine mist to help clear airways. This he uses a dozen times a day.

But he maintains his apartment at 946 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard with weekly assistance in the heavy work from a high school boy, and he does his own cooking, which he declares is far superior to what he ate for many years while traveling.

MORE important, Arvidson seems to have learned two secrets of contentment under an adverse condition—accepting his condition and subjugating it by concentrating on helping others. Through will and ingenuity, he keeps busy in volunteer work.

It was in the spirit of helpfulness that he consented to join the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Assn.'s efforts to alert Marinites to the symptoms of chronic respiratory diseases by telling his story.

The Marin TB association first heard of Arvidson last fall when he telephoned to offer his assistance in the Christmas Seals campaign.

"THE TB association is doing wonderful work, but you've still got a lot to do to make everybody realize the importance of annual chest check-ups," he says. "I want to help, but I'm house-bound. Can you bring work to me?"

The TB association could and did—and learned later that, in completing the work, Arvidson had used it as an educational tool to capture the interest of his schoolboy helper in Christmas Seals-financed work.

In the majority of his "keeping busy" jobs, the telephone is Arvidson's means of operation. Through it he does advertising and publicity for the Tiny Tots photo studio of San Anselmo, operated by his friends of 10 years, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Ellermans.

IT IS thanks to the Ellermans that he does not now live entirely alone. Last fall they gave him Dah Ling, the 18-month-old sealpoint Siamese cat that "bosses" his household.

At the time of this interview, Arvidson was telephoning in the interest of the City of Hope and, perhaps at the instigation of his feline boss, for the Marin Humane Society.

On the personal side, Arvidson's background, briefly, is this:

HE ATTENDED high school and college in his native Minnesota and worked there and in Chicago as an industrial traffic manager. In the same capacity he came to the West Coast in 1923. He saw Marin for the first time a year later during a vacation trip from Oregon to Southern California, where his wife passed away in 1950.

Three years later he joined the Jewel Tea Co. as sales planning manager, a challenging and highly specialized job he loved. Involved were hiring salesmen and establishing new sales routes in a territory bounded by Monterey, Santa Rosa and Reno.

His work day averaged 10 hours, at the end of which he frequently responded to an emergency summons to the opposite end of his territory. Such "above-and-beyond" calls usually were directed to Arvidson because he had no family responsibilities.

ALTHOUGH HE had a generous expense account, Arvidson frequently forgot to eat or ate "on the fly." He smoked heavily and, like many solitary traveling men, eased his loneliness in cocktail lounges.

Arvidson's excellent salary was supplemented with both medical and hospital insurance. But he was too busy to use either. Too busy, in fact, to be anything but impatient over work slow-ups caused by chronic sinusitis.

His cough he attributed to "too

many cigarets," the damaging effects of which were then not yet so well known. His sinus difficulties and his all-weather travel schedule were blamed for his frequent respiratory infections.

IN SHORT, Hal Arvidson's health history contains two elements that occur again and again in emphysema and tuberculosis cases. Fundamentally, they are overwork and underattention to such basic health demands as sufficient food and rest.

In January of 1959 a particularly miserable cold confined him to his home, a Terra Linda motel. A magazine article explaining the importance of regular chest examinations caught his attention and moved him to action. His own chest was hurting too much to be ignored.

Opening the Marin telephone book to the classified section marked physicians and surgeons, he ran his index finger down the columns until he came to the word "chest."

"YOU WON'T believe it," he declares. "It was the biggest piece of sheer luck I ever had. The doctor I chose by chance was Marin's official chest physician and an authority on tuberculosis."

The doctor agreed to see Arvidson the next day in Ross General Hospital.

"I was near collapse and the doctor saw it immediately," Arvidson remembers. "He had me get a chest x-ray and read it without waiting for it to dry. 'Oh, oh!' he said. 'What you need is bed-rest. When can you come in?'

"I said day after tomorrow. I took care of a few business ends, put my car in storage and—boom!—to bed. Boy, did it feel good! That was Jan. 30 and I stayed in Ross Hospital Terrace until the following May 29."

UNEXPECTEDLY, even though Arvidson's chest x-ray showed lung damage caused by tuberculosis, numerous laboratory tests of sputum specimens were consistently negative. Despite his underweight, rundown condition at the time of hospitalization, the almost unbelievable conclusion seemed to be that he had recovered from active tuberculosis.

He was given tuberculosis-controlling drugs, but was moved to a private room from the suite he at first shared with two other men. Arvidson calls it the "presidential suite" because of the view.

"The food and treatment were wonderful. I can't speak too highly of the Terrace," he says.

DURING THAT summer he convalesced, and in the fall he resumed work. He maintained the old, fast pace for just three months.

"I found I just didn't have the old zip," he says simply, "so that winter I took a medical retirement from Jewel Tea Co. I was 62."

He remained under the care of the chest specialist, who diagnosed the cause of his pace-slowing shortness of breath as emphysema.

During his first year of retirement Arvidson underwent nose surgery to correct a bone structure defect caused by an improperly healed fracture suffered more than 40 years earlier. Also during that year he was rushed to San Rafael General for emergency treatment when a lung collapsed.

"I didn't do anything to cause it. It just collapsed. There was no pain, but I could scarcely breathe at all," he recalls.

LAST SUMMER when site development began for the nearby Northgate Shopping Center, dust filtering into his home compounded Arvidson's breathing difficulties.

He moved to his present second-floor apartment at Kentfield Corners.

Its many advantages, he says, include plenty of fresh air, nearness to markets ("Sometimes the boy does the marketing; sometimes I do."), and its proximity to Ross Terrace and his doctor.

The stairs he can manage, he says, by taking plenty of time.

"EVIDENTLY my doctor thinks my emphysema is arrested," Arvidson says. "I used to see him every month; now I see him every two months. But he always tells me, 'Harold, if you feel wheezy, come any time.' That means a great deal, you can bet."

He admits, though, that his physician can be pretty hard and uncompromising about one thing—the cigaret habit.

Like other chest physicians, among his first instructions to patients with respiratory diseases is: "Quit smoking—and that's an order."

GIVING UP cigarets hasn't been easy for Arvidson. If he had his life to live over, he wouldn't start.

Not smoking is only one of the changes he would make.

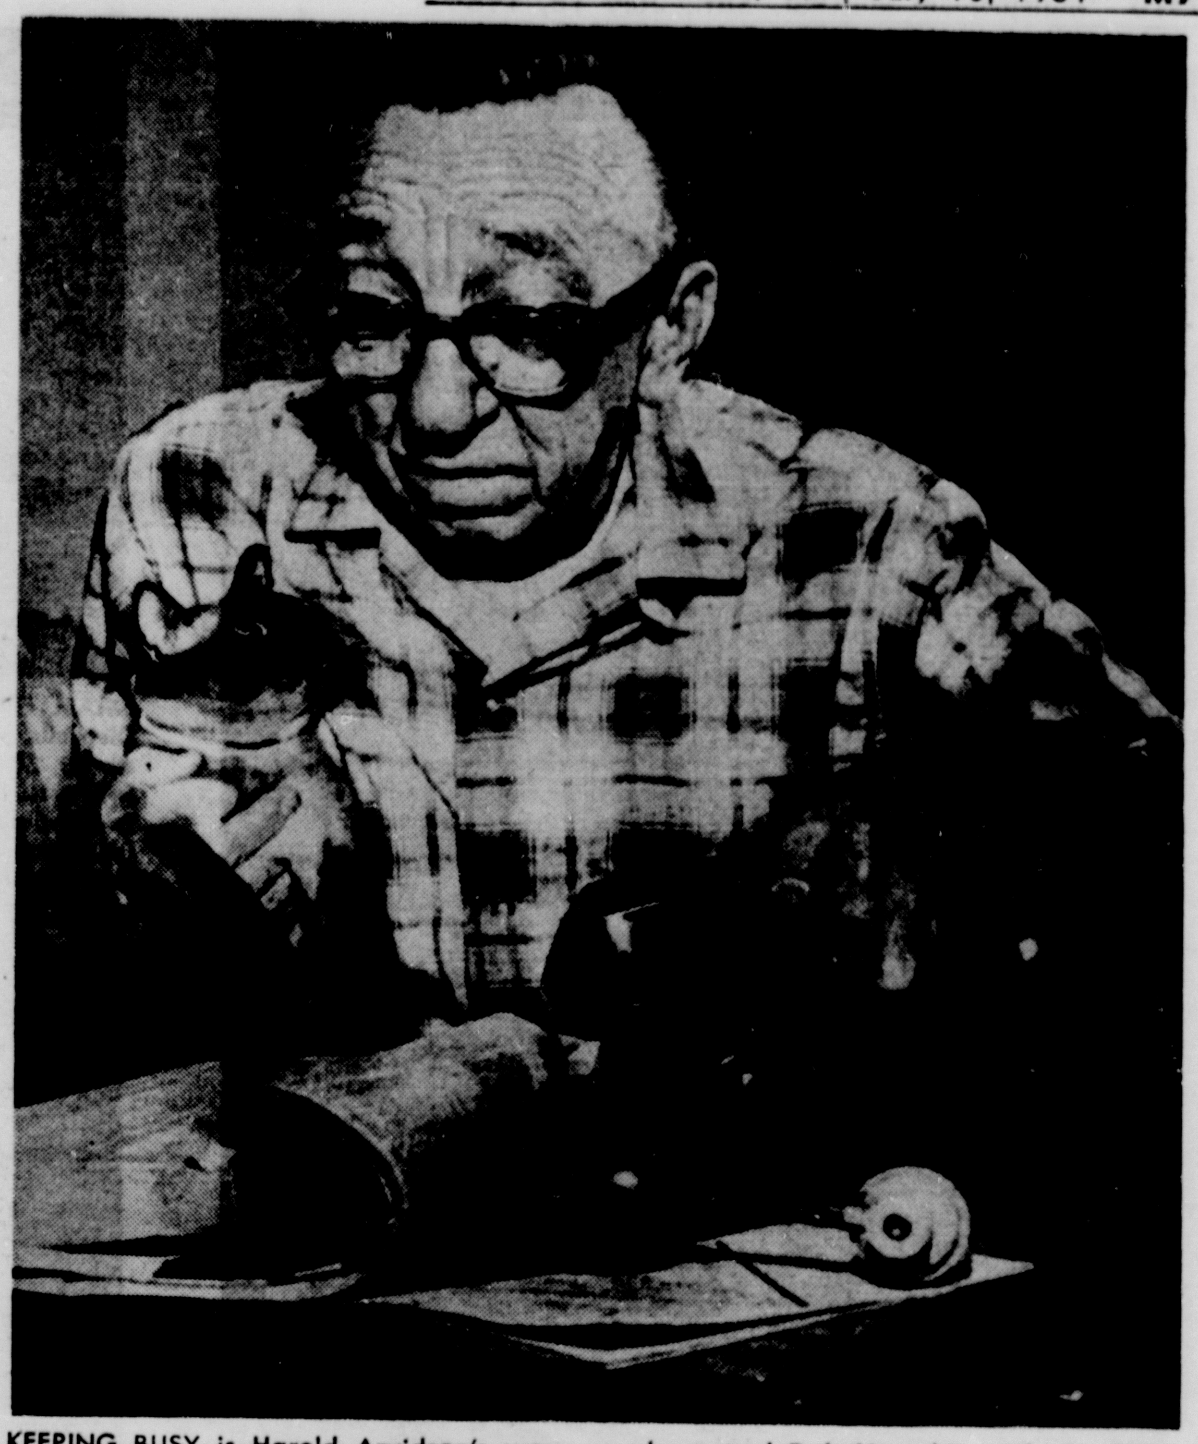
"You can bet I would take the time to take care of my health and, believe me, I would pay attention to the warning symptoms the people at the TB association are talking about," he declares.

Next-best to having that lamentably illusive second chance, Arvidson believes, is the chance to help others avoid his mistakes.

SPEAKING WITH the depth of conviction only personal experience can lend, he says: "I believe everyone, of all ages, should see a doctor at least twice a year. And everybody should get a chest check-up, either by x-ray or tuberculin test, every single year of their lives."

"In my opinion, we should have a law requiring annual chest examinations," Harold Arvidson declares.

Almost audible, though unspoken, was the sequel thought: "I wish there had been such a law to safeguard me."



KEEPING BUSY is Harold Arvidson's way of trying to ignore his emphysema, the incurable respiratory disease that shortens his breaths and confines him largely to his Kentfield apartment. Aided by the telephone and Dah Ling, his sealpoint Siamese cat, he contributes his time and energy to public-benefiting efforts such as the Christmas Seals and City of Hope campaigns.

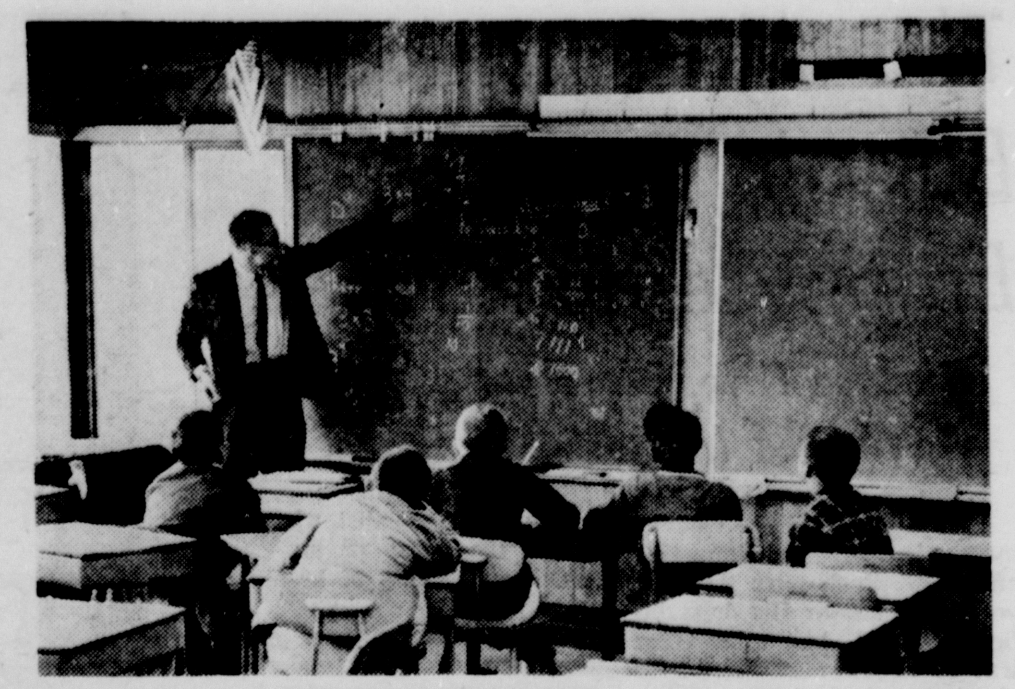
BUILDING AN electric motor is fun, but did you ever try to do it without first reading the instructions? Reed Union School District summer session teachers used projects like this to increase their pupils' interest in school-work, and to show them the importance of such basic skills as reading and arithmetic.

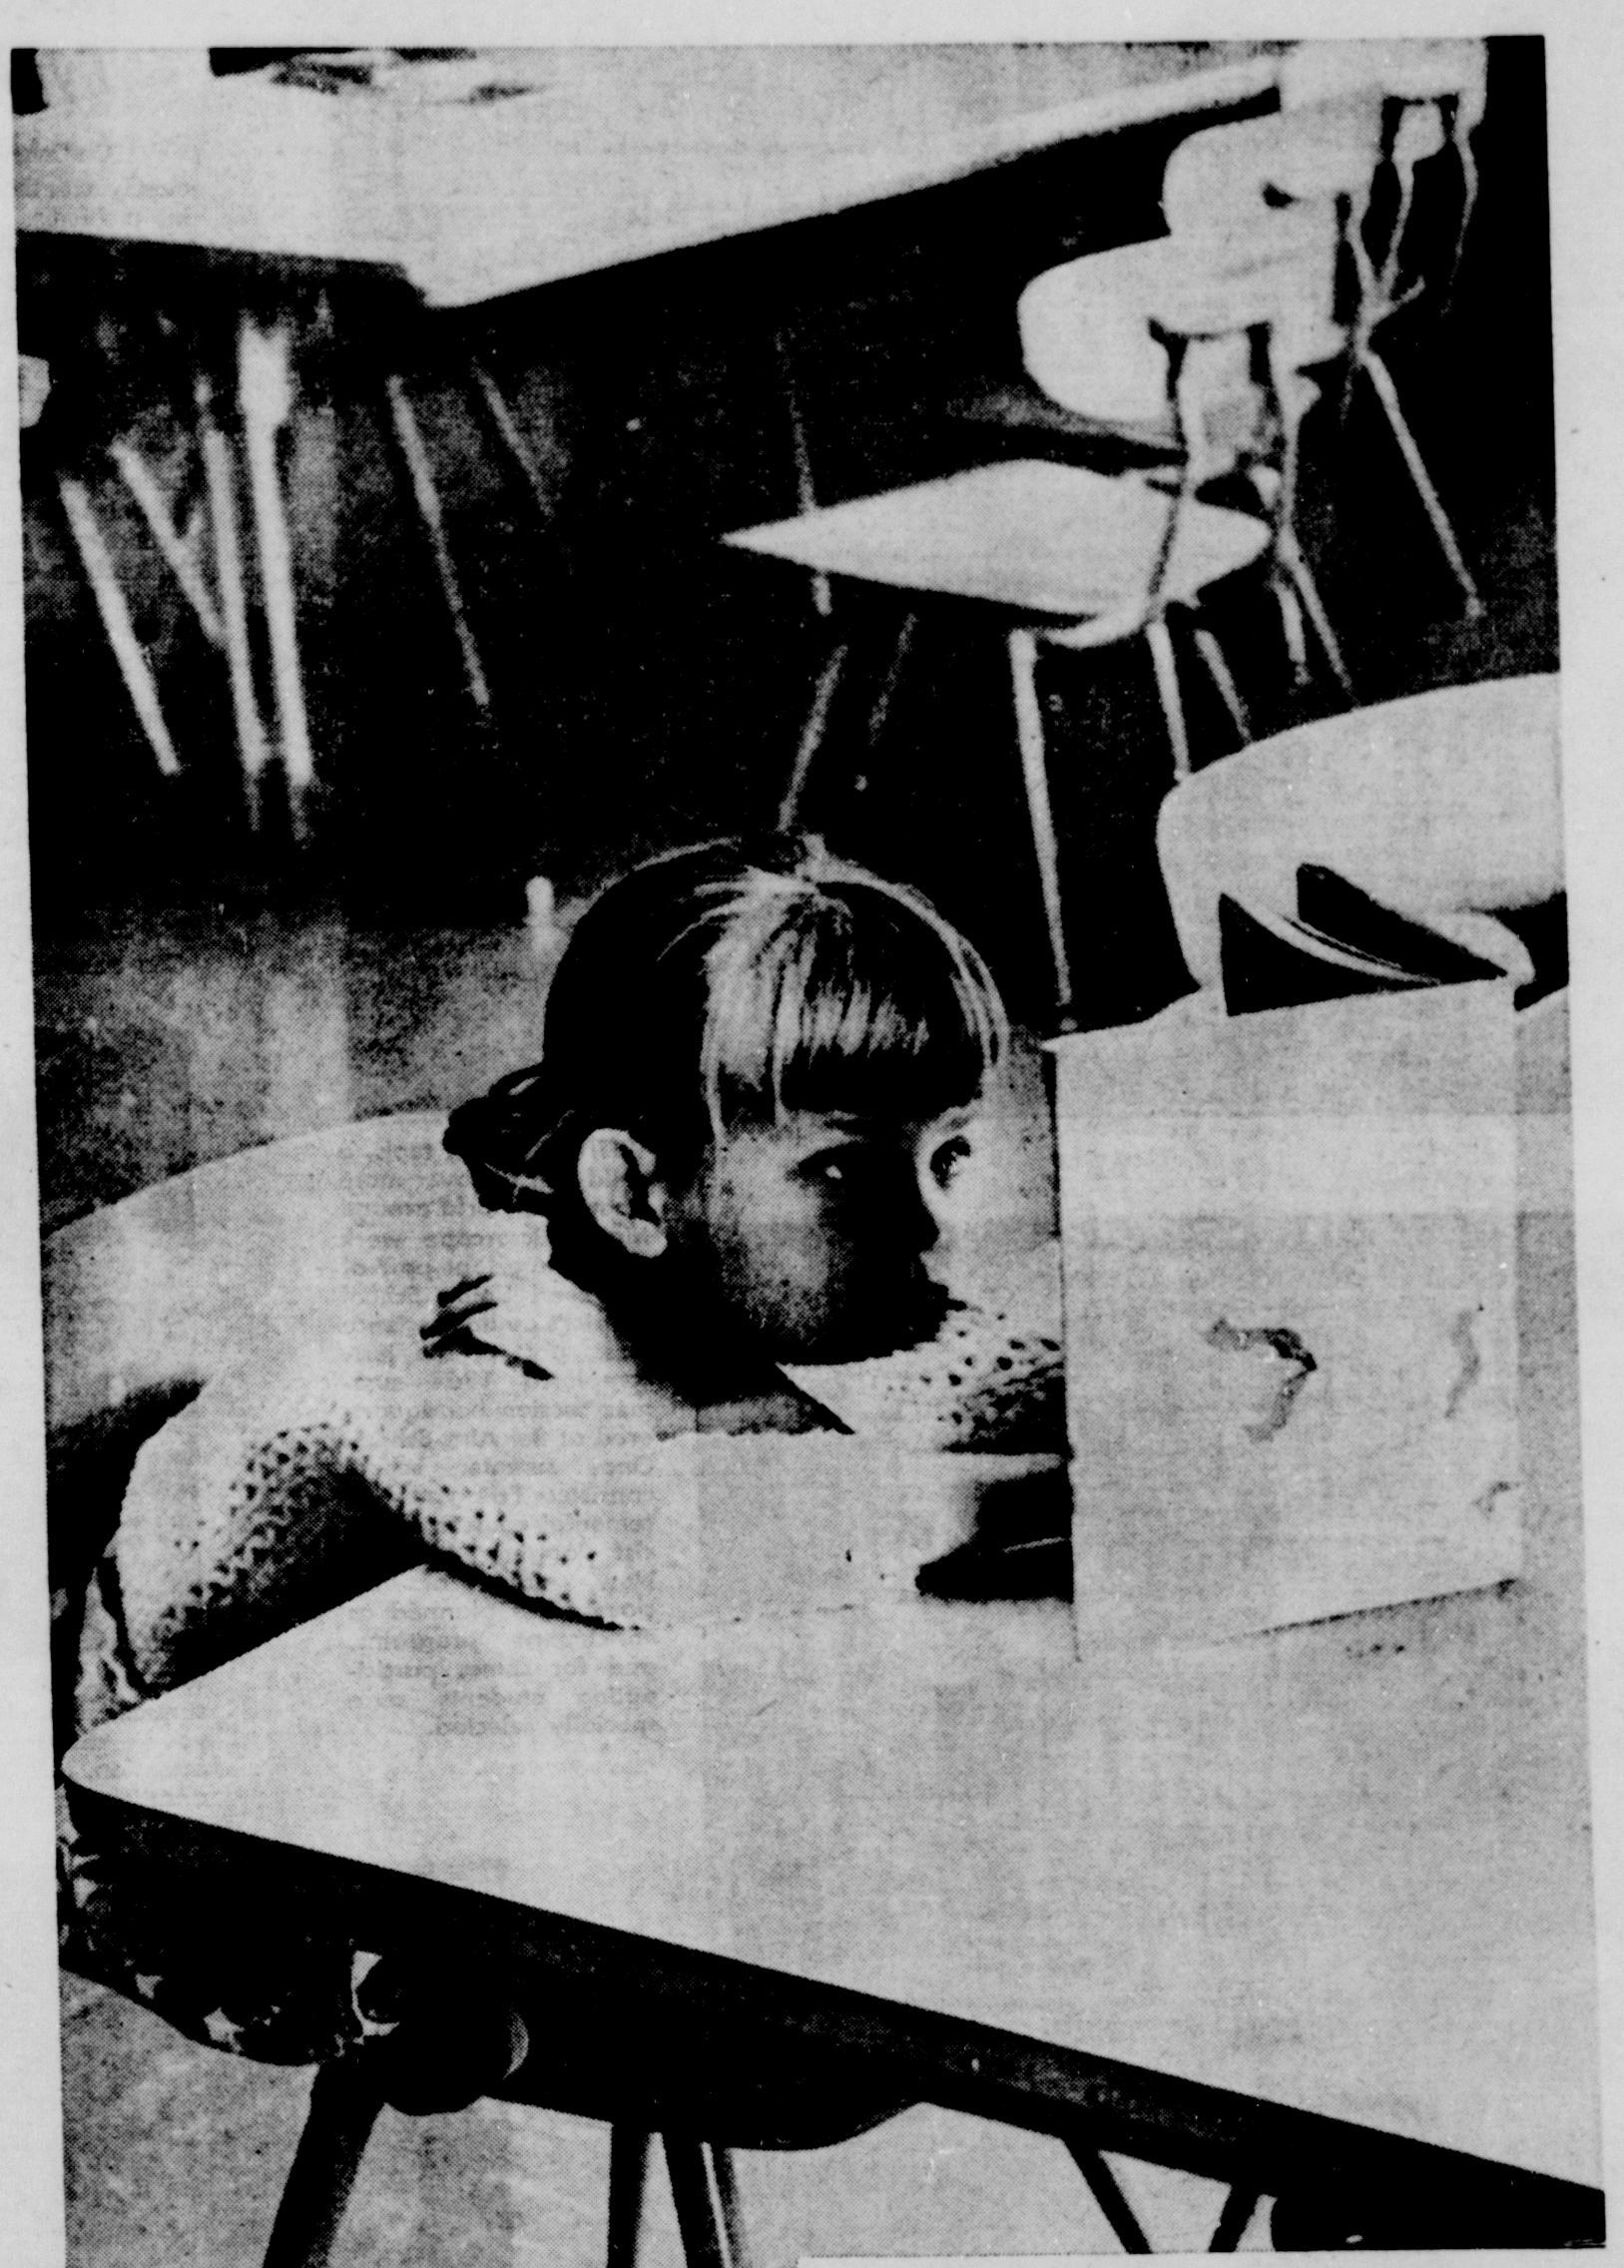


SMALL GROUP INSTRUCTION is the keynote of the Reed Union School District's summer session. Three teachers work as a team, instructing about 30 children and arranging the pupils to suit their needs and interests. Here teacher Jim Duvall works with an arithmetic group. At the same time another teacher may have a reading group, while a third instructor is preparing a science demonstration. Later, the whole group may meet in one room for a film or lecture.

COMBINING ARTS and crafts with their geography lesson, these summer school students at Bel Aire make paper mache globes under the supervision of teacher Betty Symmes. Mrs. Symmes has first, second and third graders in her class, and permits each child to approach the basic lesson material on his or her own level.

HOW DID THE egg get in the bottle? Teacher Mike Delegeane encourages his "Exploring the World of Science" students at Bel Aire School to figure things out for themselves. The demonstration shows the effect of differences in air pressures, and will be applied later to space travel conditions. (Photos by Bill Steele)

How Summer Schools Have Changed



DEVELOPMENT of a love of reading is one of the major objectives of Reed Union High School District summer session teachers. It matters not whether the pupil is advanced or remedial. Consequently, free time in the library is provided for all the summer classes. Totally engrossed in her book is Elizabeth Stong. (Photo by Bill Steele)

'Enrichment' Has Become A Key Word

"Summer school" used to be dirty words to most kids.

It was, quite frankly, the place where you went if you "flunked" a course.

But nowadays, something new has been added. Nearly 10,000 children and young people enrolled in 1964 summer sessions throughout Marin County, and by no means were all of them taking remedial courses.

MANY ENROLLED in "enrichment" programs, studying material in science, literature, math and creative arts that goes beyond the regular school curriculum. Some specially selected students are attending or attended highly advanced "accelerated" courses.

A large number chose recreation programs that offer everything from vigorous sports to chess and guided reading programs.

Even the remedial courses have been livened up to a pace that one teacher calls "slow enrichment."

A PRIME example of what a modern summer school can be is provided by the Reed Union School District summer session at Bel Aire School, located near the north end of the Tiburon Peninsula, that came to a successful close yesterday.

Although organized on a low budget — the entire program costs the district only $5,000 with another $7,000 coming from state and county sources — Reed's four-week summer session offered a full range of courses at all levels.

Enrichment courses included language arts, a survey of the world of science and two courses in outdoor science, one of which included a week-long camping trip.

A SPECIAL class for gifted students combined children from grades one through three—with some of them doing sixth grade level work.

Remedial classes were also set up on a "non-graded" basis. For instance, fourth and fifth grades were together, as were sixth and seventh. Within each class, children were frequently broken up into even smaller groups, so that a teacher could work more closely with those who had similar problems.

Teachers worked on a team basis, with teacher-pupil ratios as low as 10 to one.

TO MAKE remedial work more interesting, teachers set their charges on a study of outer space, with reading and arithmetic practice coming as a natural by-product. More important even than the practice, the teachers feel, was the building of the pupil's interest and enthusiasm for school work.

To an untrained observer the Bel Aire campus was more reminiscent this summer of a university than an elementary school. In one room you might have seen three students working with a teacher, in another a dozen grouped around a science experiment, while in still another 50 were watching a movie.

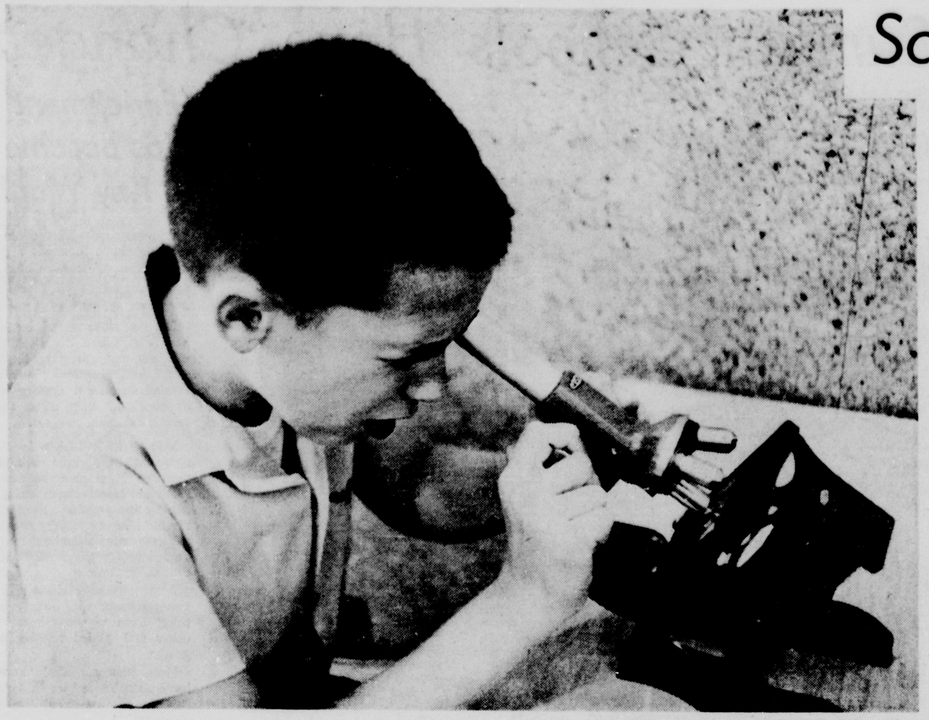
Ten minutes later the whole pattern would change.

FLEXIBILITY was the keynote of the schedule set up by summer session Principal Robert D. Gowan. There were no "periods" when classes had to change, so teachers were free to work as long as their students' interest lasted — or to move immediately when it lagged.

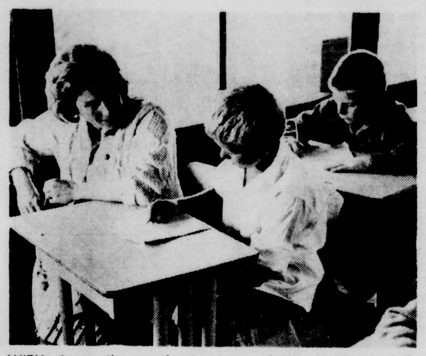
Teachers often traded classes, or took over two groups at recess time, leaving one teacher free to plan a lesson or set up a demonstration.

As the Reed summer session rolled into its closing days, teachers reported nothing but enthusiasm among themselves, and a noteworthy shortage of behavior problems among their students.

QUITE THE contrary, in fact. For some children, at least, the summer session was probably all too short.



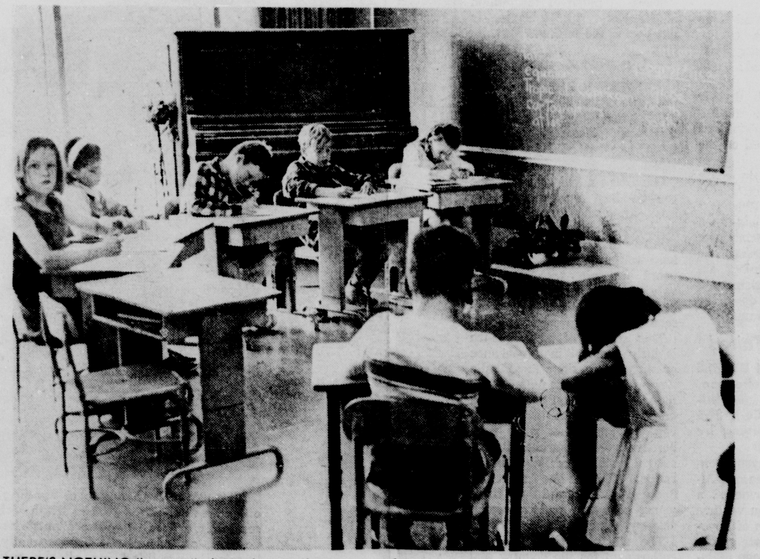
WITH THE right tools, a child can discover more about the world around him. Microscope work is an important part of the Reed Union School District's outdoor science class, part of the just-completed 1964 summer session headquartered at Bel Aire School. Once summer school consisted largely of remedial courses to assist lagging students. Now many of the classes are planned as enrichment programs, and for some, participating students are specially selected.



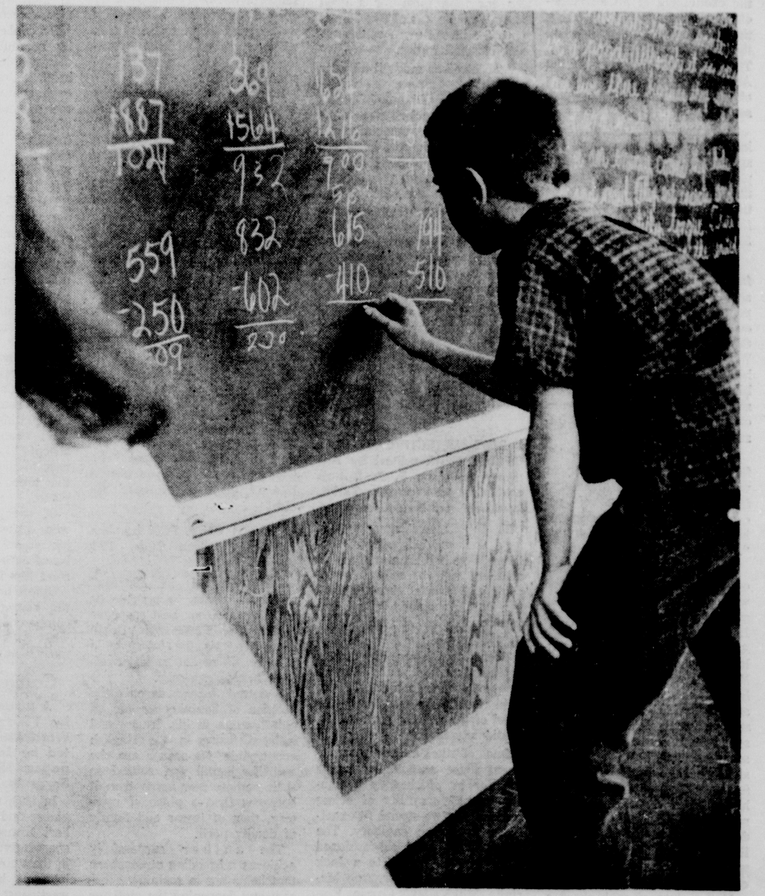
WITH A pupil-to-teacher ratio as low as 10 to one, summer school classes permit instructors to give their young charges the advantage of plenty of individual attention. Mrs. Ruth Reilly works with one student, while another teacher is supervising the remainder of the class.

A SIMPLE demonstration making use of corks and strings permits Reed District summer session teacher Mike Delegeane to illustrate how centrifugal force and gravity act on an orbiting satellite. The scene is the "Exploring the World of Science" class offering a survey for science-minded youngsters of both the established and new scientific principles. Reed also offered two outdoor science courses as part of its 1964 summer curriculum.

MAKING THEIR OWN soil is the project undertaken by these energetic young members of the "Natural Science of Marin County" summer session course at the Reed District's Bel Aire School. They are breaking up rocks to which they will add humus and other organic matter collected on field trips into the hills behind the school. The class is an enrichment course for fourth and fifth graders.



THERE'S NOTHING "square" about this Reed Union School District summer school class. The circular arrangement of the desks serves two very beneficial purposes. It encourages group discussion among the students. And it puts the teacher an equal distance from each child when he or she presides from the center. (Photos by Bill Steele)



AMONG THE NEW courses which have made their appearance upon the school curriculum, many of the old favorites can still be found. The old-fashioned arithmetic lesson, for instance, is still all-important, especially at the primary level. And problems are still solved at the blackboard even as they were in the time of these youngsters' parents and grandparents.

Some Special Treats For Men Who Enjoy Outdoor Life

By DON KEOWN

Three books this week for the men, two of them with special appeal for the outdoorsmen, the third aimed at followers of a spectator sport.

And any one or all of them would make excellent gifts, to be purchased now and put away for Christmas, if the interests of the head of your household are bent in the proper direction.

WAYNE SHORT'S "Cheechakaes" has been receiving considerable attention and promotion, and is worthy of the interest it has attracted.

It is the true tale of the Short family who shortly after World War II, plagued by ill fortune in the States, decided to leave civilization behind them and start life anew in the still frontier surroundings of a lonely Alaskan island. There they learn to live off the land and from the sea, and to cope with dangers that range from wild bears to savage blizzards. Isolation, they discover, can be both a friend and a foe.

Author Short is one of those natural-born storytellers, and he keeps his narration moving at a lively pace, retaining all the excitement of an adventurous existence while picturing the beauty and awesomeness of the remote, unspoiled setting. The unique character of the Alaskan who spurns comfort for challenge is also expertly presented.

There's a lot of fishing, hunting and trapping to enthrall the sportsman, and some philosophizing on Short's part to give the book added depth. As for the title, "cheechakaes" is Indian for "greenhorns." Which the Shorts are no longer.

JOE BROOKS has become a familiar face with American sportsmen as a result of his appearances as a fishing expert on the American Broadcasting Co. television series "Wide World of Sports." Before that, his name was well-known for his articles in outdoor magazines and because of his work on various sports fishing research projects.

A genuine authority in his field and a world traveler as well, Brooks has put together a fascinating collection of accounts of his fishing experiences in 14 different countries in his "A World of Fishing."

You begin with white marlin off the Bahamas, then match wits and skill with the prime game fish of British Honduras, Panama, Mexico, Argentina, Australia, Tasmania, New Zealand, Africa, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Ireland, England, Scotland, Iceland, Newfoundland and Bermuda. Sometimes you are battling the behemoths of the sea, sometimes wily lake fish, sometimes sleek denizens of the streams. And while providing full details of just how he made his catches, Brooks does not neglect the local color and anecdotes that give his professionally-illustrated book added interest well beyond the ranks of hard-core fishing fanatics.

At the close of each chapter, he offers up-to-date information on how to get to the country he has just covered, where to stay and where to fish when you get there, the proper tackle to use, probable costs, etc.

Thus the book becomes both a practical guide for the traveling fisherman plus enjoyable armchair reading for the sportsman who cannot so readily seek out the tarpon, the tiger fish, the tuna or the grayling in their home waters.

THE CHEECHAKAES by Wayne Short, Random House, 244 pages, $4.95.

A WORLD OF FISHING by Joe Brooks, Van Nostrand, 375 pages, $9.75.

EVERY DIAMOND DOESN'T SPARKLE by Fresco Thompson and Cy Rice, David McKay Co., 238 pages, $4.50.

"EVERY Diamond Doesn't Sparkle" is standard baseball fare—the recollections and opinions of a knowledgeable baseball veteran, in this instance Los Angeles Dodger executive Fresco Thompson, polished and put down on paper by a professional writer, in this case Cy Rice.

Thompson has been a player, manager and scout as well as a front office man. He has a better ear than most for a good story. And he has strong beliefs on some of the more controversial baseball topics.

And Rice has made it all very readable.

Thus "Every Diamond Doesn't Sparkle" is better than most baseball books, especially for the Dodger fans, and there are a few such non-conformists even here deep in Giant territory. A good many of the opinions are definitely colored by his own status as a member of baseball's "establishment," but fans will find this journey behind the scenes of major league ball an interesting itinerary.

RICHARD Cardinal Cushing of the Roman Catholic Church's Boston Diocese has written the foreword for Peter Howard's new book, "Design for Dedication," on Moral Re-Armament. Published by Henry Regnery Co., it is Howard's 13th book. Royalties from all Howard books and plays are turned over to Moral Re-Armament.

MARINITE Alan Watts has another book scheduled for publication this fall. His "Beyond Theology: The Art of Godsmanship" will be published in November by Pantheon Books of New York. The publisher describes it as "a lively and irreverent book" that attacks "official Christian theology." And author Watts is termed "one of the most original thinkers in the country. . . ."

LOS ANGELES DODGER "front office" executive Fresco Thompson, as sketched here by Willard Mullin, is the co-author, with writer Cy Rice, of the new baseball book, "Every Diamond Doesn't Sparkle," reviewed on this page.

Reports From Our Reviewers

For Music Lovers

AN AMATEUR AT THE KEYBOARD by Peter Yates, Pantheon Books, 287 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

Not for the amateur in the sense of novice is this book by one of America's outstanding writers and lecturers on music, who was graduated from Princeton before it had a music department.

It is for the amateur in the sense of "lover" of music, and a knowledgeable one at that, for this is an erudite book which may profitably be used by music teachers.

A plea for the reading of music as literature for pure enjoyment, not necessarily to be performed with any degree of skill, is perhaps Yates' most important message.

"Music will not survive in the concert hall if we do not keep it living in our homes," he says. This, he feels, is the responsibility of the amateur and the answer for the highly trained musician, who for one reason or another no longer performs publicly.

The author discusses organ, piano, harpsichord and clavichord and the essential elements in their construction and performance on them.

He deals with their literature by recommending what is indispensable and by giving a brief history of the music of each century from the 16th to the present, including analysis of its forms and style of performing. He also traces the evolution of scales, melody, rhythm, harmony, key and tuning.

His discussion of temperament, tuning, rhythm and embellishment, both in the body of the book and two appendixes, is an eye-opener on why we lose much in modern performance of early music. He maintains that study of tuning alone could clear up confusions in harmonic theory.

Yates insists that the amateur should return to the earlier emphasis on improvisation first; sight reading, second; and memorizing, third.

He challenges much that is accepted, such as that faithfulness to score is paramount and that touch can be varied on the piano.

Of special interest to those who suffer from stagefright is his chapter entitled "Release," based on a method he has taken from Zen Buddhism techniques.

Other topics of interest are the arts of programming, accompanying and criticism, and what an amateur can do in the musical life of his community.

Colony That Failed

A SOUTHWESTERN UTOPIA by Thomas A. Robertson, Ward Ritchie Press (distributed by Lane Book Co.), 265 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

In 1885, a visionary young engineer and promoter named Albert Kimsey Owen launched a cooperative colonization venture in the unlikely location of Topolobampo, in Sinaloa state on the west coast of the Mexican mainland.

Owen had tremendous ideas for Topolobampo.

There was a deep water channel which could take ocean-going vessels. He proposed to develop it as the principal port of Mexico, and to tie it by rail with the United States. He succeeded in interesting President Porfirio Diaz of Mexico and various highly placed figures in the United States. This helped sell the stock for the series of companies he organized to construct the railroad (that was never built).

To colonize the area, he set up the "Credit Foncier of Sinaloa," a Utopian but authoritarian cooperative colony. It attracted, along with others, a coterie of idealistic intellectuals reminiscent of Brook Farm. The colony was doomed from its inception. It lacked water, money, and know-how — among other things.

Thomas A. Robertson, who grew up there, has attempted to tell the story of Topolobampo in "A Southwestern Utopia," subtitled, "An American Colony in Mexico."

There is much of fascination in the story. But Robertson is unequal to the telling.

Countess' Story

THE EARTH RESTS LIGHTLY by Aline Griffith (the Countess of Quintanilla), Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 213 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Often named one of the world's best dressed women, this American-born Spanish countess who began life as Aline Griffith of Pearl River, N.Y., has written the story of her years in Spain, with emphasis on the restoration of her husband's ancestral estate in a remote area of the country.

This section of Estremadura is little changed in appearance or way of life since the Middle Ages and the old palacio she found in the family proved a great challenge to this American woman, who with total perseverance researched its ancestral history and began restoration. Today, she and her Spanish husband and their three young sons use it as a warm country home.

The story is vital with her enthusiasm for the country and peasants whom she has come to know well in this little-known region, and is written with taste and intelligence.

BEST DETECTIVE STORIES OF THE YEAR edited by Anthony Boucher, E. P. Dutton and Co., 284 pages, $3.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

That "old pro" among mystery writers and editors, Anthony Boucher, has assembled another superb collection of published crime short stories for Dutton's annual "Best Detective Stories of the Year" anthology.

There are fewer big names represented this year — more relatively new comers to the field and unknowns. But the level of the writing remains exceptionally high.

One of the amazing things about these anthologies is the manner in which they demonstrate the versatility of crime writers. No two stories fit exactly in the same category. The range is from an old-fashioned Ellery Queen puzzle to a Jack Ritchie horror chiller. One Marinite, Mill Valley's Charles Einstein, is represented.

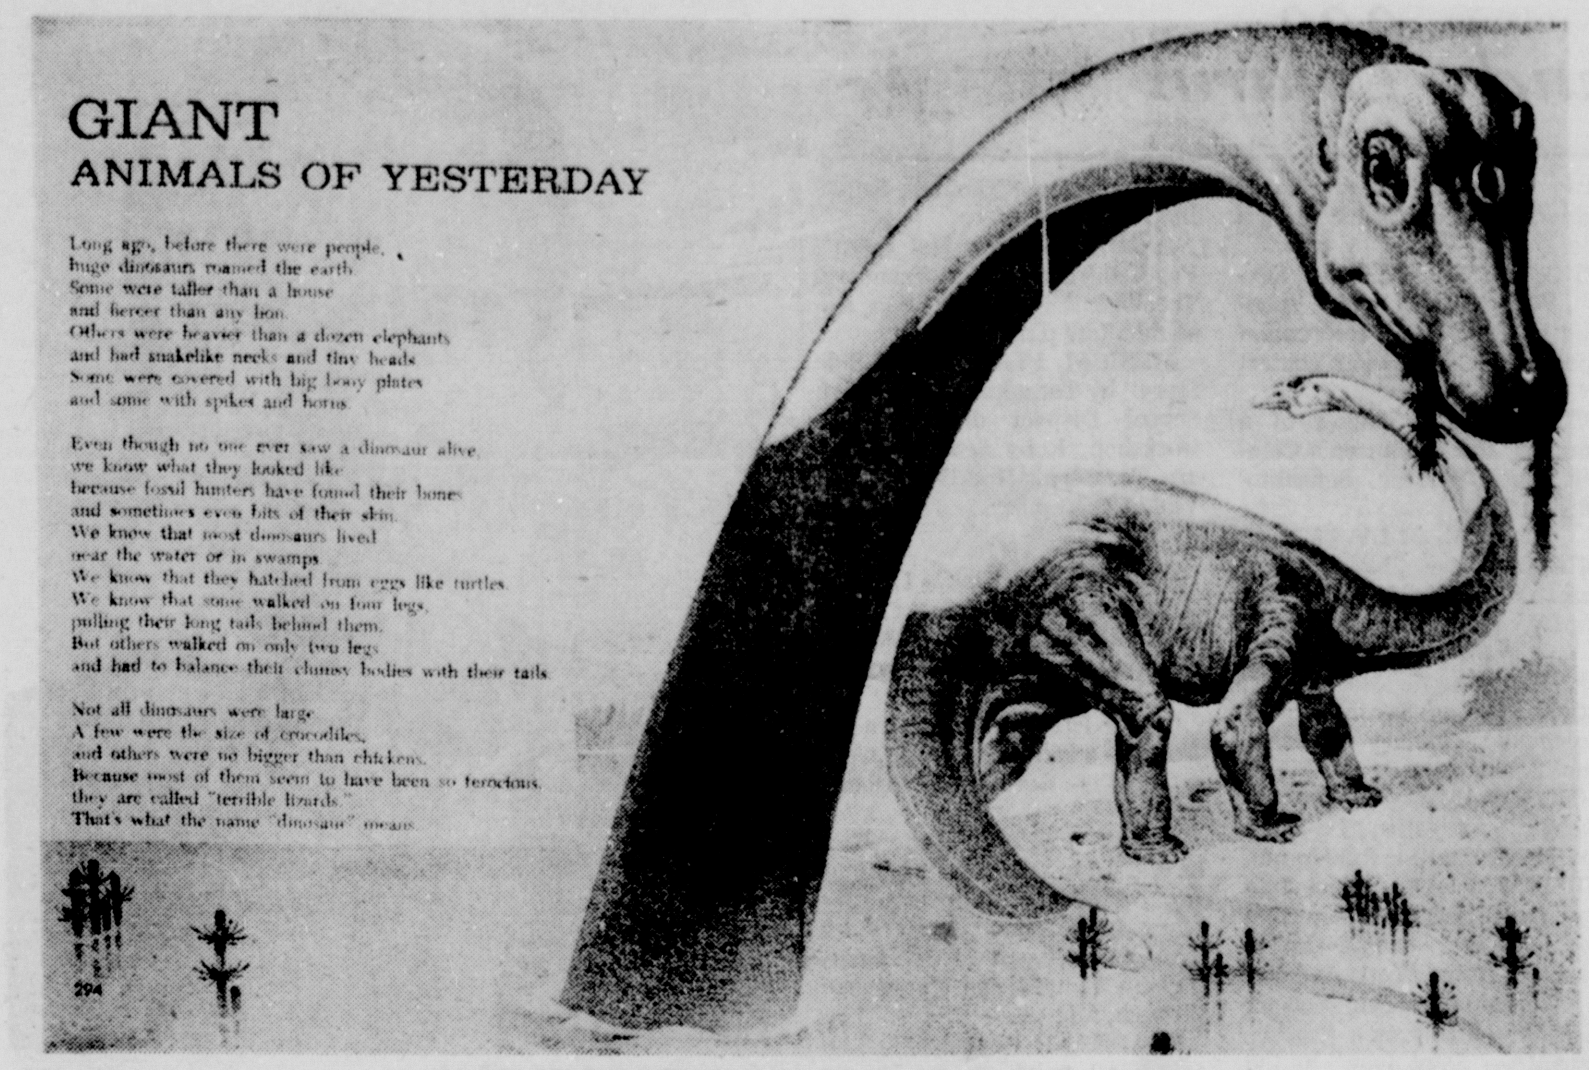
Our personal favorites were another Ritchie tale, a breezy and very clever story entitled "The Operator," and Ken Purdy's eerie, highly original "The Golden Frog." But you should like all, or most, of these. We did.

DEATH OF A FOX by Jan Roffman, Crime Club, 191 pages, $3.50.

The "damsel in distress" theme continues to provide us with some of our best suspense fiction. Jan Roffman's "Death of a Fox" is the latest of a number of recent superior efforts in this category.

Widowed Joanna accepts the position of housekeeper for an elderly man in his dreary and isolated house in the English countryside. No sooner are she and her small son settled in their remote new home than it becomes first a place of mystery, then of terror and finally of deadly peril.

The author successfully achieves a brooding atmosphere that helps her in sustaining tension and deepening the chill for her readers. The women, especially, will enjoy this one. But it makes quite satisfactory reading for the men as well.



ILLUSTRATIONS FOR Field Enterprises' new "Childcraft, The How and Why Library" set of 15 volumes are carefully selected and beautifully reproduced. The prehistoric creatures above are taken from the fourth volume entitled "Life Around Us," and the art work is by the renowned scientific illustrator, Rudolph Freund. The "Childcraft" books are reviewed below.

READING TO PLEASE THE CHILD

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest readers:

What trio could be more appealing to young adventure fans than "Two Dogs and a Horse"? The book of that title by Jim Kjelgaard (Dodd, Mead and Co., $3.50) is actually not just one but three separate stories, two with canine heroes, the third with an equine central character. There is no excess of violent action, but the stories do not drag. The spirit of the outdoors is to be found in all of them. And the ties that bind man and his animal friends are effectively demonstrated. Fine for boys 12 to 15 with a yen for the outdoors and a love for animals.

Girls 8 to 12 are the intended audience for Marilyn Sachs' "Amy Moves In" (Doubleday, $2.95), and they should be well entertained by this yarn about a little girl who undergoes the ordeal of moving onto a new block—and learns the changed surroundings aren't so bad after all. New friends, she finds, can be even nicer than old friends.

For boys 5 through 7, Norah Smaridge has written a rollicking story in rhyme about "Impatient Jonathan" (Abingdon, $1.75), who learns the hard way that enthusiasms sometimes have to be curbed. There's a moral, but it isn't preachy. And Margo Locke is responsible for illustrations certain to attract and hold the interest of small readers.

Young nature lovers will be fascinated by "Insects" by Su Zan Nobuchi Swain, entomologist and artist. The book is part of Doubleday's "First Guides" series of natural history identification books with colorful and authentic illustrations by Mrs. Swain along with informative textual descriptions. A great deal of general information on the huge insect family is also presented. More than 40 of the more familiar and interesting insects are accorded individual attention.

A Library For The Youngsters

An encylcopedic set for the tiny tots that grows with them as they mature has been assembled by Field Enterprises Educational Corp. under the title "Childcraft, The Why and How Library."

The set consists of 15 sturdily and handsomely-bound volumes totalling 5,040 pages. But it is the content, not the size, that makes the undertaking impressive.

Field Enterprises of Chicago, publisher of World Book Encyclopedia, claims to have invested two million dollars in collecting the resource material for preschool and primary grade children. An examination of the wealth of data and of its presentation makes that claim believable.

WHAT "Childcraft" attempts, and succeeds to a remarkable extent in doing, is to answer the questions that most often occur to the little ones—and to stimulate them into asking still more questions, which, in turn, are also answered farther along in the same book. Each volume has been arranged progressively, beginning with the needs of the baby and continuing with him into the early school years.

Volume I is entitled "Poems and Rhymes," and its contents range from Mother Goose through the verse of Emily Dickinson, Robert Louis Stevenson, Lewis Carroll, Eugene Field, Christopher Morley, et al, to Carl Sandburg and Phyllis McGinley. From "Pat-A-Cake" and "Pease Porridge Hot" to a collection of children's prayers. It is followed with a volume entitled "Stories and Fables" that is equally well-tailored for pointing the little ones toward a love of good reading.

There follow volumes for "A Foundation for Understanding Science"—"World and Space," "Life Around Us," "How We Get Things" and "How Things Work."

IN THE social sciences — "Holidays and Customs," "How Things Change," "People to Know," "Scientists and Inventors," "What People Do" and "Pioneers and Patriots."

To stimulate creativity and encourage health and safety — "Make and Do" with some 600 activities to develop artistic and manual skills.

Volumes 14 and 15 are for the parents—the former a collection of 150 articles by authorities in medicine, psychology, education, child guidance, etc.; the latter a closing index and guide for maximum use of the set.

The books are beautifully and effectively illustrated, expertly planned to appeal to the child's imaginative mind.

THE SET sells for $120.90, not an outlandish price considering the going price of children's books today—and the balance, comprehension and overall quality which has been attained in "Childcraft."

Young parents just beginning the rearing of their first child will be especially fortunate to have these books on hand to help them in their task ahead. The youngster would be even more fortunate. As would be a little brother and little sister yet to come.

"Good Grooming Tips For Summer Cottons"

Ladies, be careful. Many cotton fashions this summer have the popular leather trim. But the National Institute of Drycleaning warns that what appears to be leather is sometimes plastic. And this can make a difference to the drycleaner. But then the drycleaner has to be sure the fabric itself can also be wet cleaned. Institute members have received a technical bulletin advising how to handle this tricky summer fashion.

The Institute offers this tip for you to keep in mind when shopping. Get a guarantee that the suede or leather trim is drycleanable. And make sure you know whether th trim is real or imitation leather. This information will help the drycleaner.

Stereo Hi-Fi

GETTING THE BEST SOUND FROM YOUR TAPE RECORDER. Most tape recorders are capable of furnishing the listener with rich full range round; however, the recorder itself may reporduce thin limited range sound.

When a manufacturer designs a tape recorder, he has to make it small enough to be portable. Because of this, the loudspeaker, or speakers in a stereo recorder, together with the speaker inclosure is very small. These speakers within small tape recorder boxes cannot provide full range sound. The bass range suffers the most because it cannot be properly reproduced.

The electronics in most recorders is capable of furnishing the complete musical range with much better fidelity than the average commercial home radio console. In order to achieve this fine sound, the user has to by-pass the small internal speakers of the recorder and allow the recorder to reproduce its full range sound through larger external speaker systems.

The majority of home tape recorders have jacks that are marked "External Speaker" or something similar. By plugging into the jack, the internal speaker is disconnected, and the audio is passed out through the cable to the speaker connected to the end of this cable.

To obtain good results, the external speakers need not be expensive or excessively large. A good 8 inch loudspeaker in the 15 dollar range and a shelf model cabinet in the 15 dollar to 25 dollar range will provide amazingly good sound. For a stereo unit, you plug-in two external speaker systems.

If your recorder is a stereo model, you will enhance the stereo reproduction by using the external speakers. Since the speakers in the recorder itself are only a few inches apart, the stereo effect is practically non-existent. With the external speakers, the separation can be made 6 to 7 feet and the stereo prerecorded tapes will come alive.

Another suggestion is to hang patio speakers in your outdoor area and terminate the speaker with a cable and plug to fit your recorder. Just plug it into your recorder and float the taped music throughout your patio area.

Your tape recorder will surprise you with beautiful sound when you plug in the external speakers. Try it.

Some new modern jazz sides:

THE SHERIFF—Modern Jazz Quartet — Atlantic Stereo SD 1414:

The title tune of the MJQ's latest conjures up TV westerns as sure as shootin'.

There are noisy rim-shots, followed by dramatic silences, and then fast-swinging improvisation. A delight.

There are two selections from John Lewis' music to Inge play "Natural Affection." John's interest in concert music is shown graphically by the absolutely gorgeous treatment of Villa-Lobos' "Bachianas Brasileiras," a work performed originally with guitarist Laurindo Almeida at last year's Monterey Jazz Festival.

For all MJQ fans and anybody else looking for the epitome of modern "chamber jazz."

A QUARTET IS A QUARTET IS A QUARTET—Modern Jazz Quartet, Hungarian Gypsy Quartet, Quartet de Milano — Atlantic Stereo 1420:

Each of the three quartets heard on this disc are contemporary and yet respectful of the traditions behind their individual styles of music.

John Lewis, leader of the Modern Jazz Quartet, feels all three groups have a great deal in common and put them together to demonstrate. The MJQ opens the program with four selections of their finely-honed jazz sounds.

"Winter Tale" is extremely gypsy-flavored, coming originally from a movie sound track played by gypsy musicians with the MJQ. "Concorde" is an early Lewis piece which features tight interplay of several melodies at once, similar to the Webern music to follow.

Side two of the disc presents the Quartetto di Milano in Anton Webern's "Five Pieces," a severely atonal work by the late Viennese follower of Schoenberg's 12-tone methods. Like jazz musicians, Webern was known for his ability to say his piece with extreme brevity—one movement is only 36 seconds long. Another link to the other music are the unusual effects drawn from the instruments by use of various bowing and striking techniques — reminding us that both gypsy and jazz musicians are often accused of producing ungainly "noises."

The use of tremolo by Webern is also reflected in gypsy music.

The second track on Side two features the Hungarian Gypsy Quartet in a concert medley. The quartet is composed of violin, viola, cimbalom and contrabass.

The album notes draw comparison between the improvisation of gypsy music and jazz; also the bending of notes, dissonant harmonies similar in all three types of music.

Altogether a most imaginative and educational idea, adroitly handled.

And as I read of the Promised Land,

If thee abandon God,

THE QUIET BLUES of Mississippi John Hurt, guitarist and country singer, will be presented from the stage of Brown's Hall in Mill Valley tomorrow night at 8 o'clock under the auspices of Chris A. Strachwitz. A recording artist back in the 1920s, Hurt went back to working on the railroad and picking cotton for his living after the record market dried up in the depression years. A TOUCH OF ORIENTAL styling has been given to the exterior of the Oakview Club which faces on broad sunning and play areas, swimming pools and tennis courts. Apartments With Own Clubhouse

An apartment complex that boasts a private club for its residents is nearing completion at the Meadows near Terra Linda.

This 25-acre development, designed by Welton Becket and Associates (the same architects who designed the Emporium), is featuring one, two and three-bedroom apartments, and townhouses with two and three bedrooms and extra baths — all beautifully landscaped with oaks, olives, pines, shrubs, lawns and flowers.

APARTMENT buildings are laid out so as to have as their centerpiece the Oakview Club, an indoors and outdoors recreation area with large dining and social rooms, cocktail lounge, exercise room, showers and sauna baths, intended for Meadows residents and their guests.

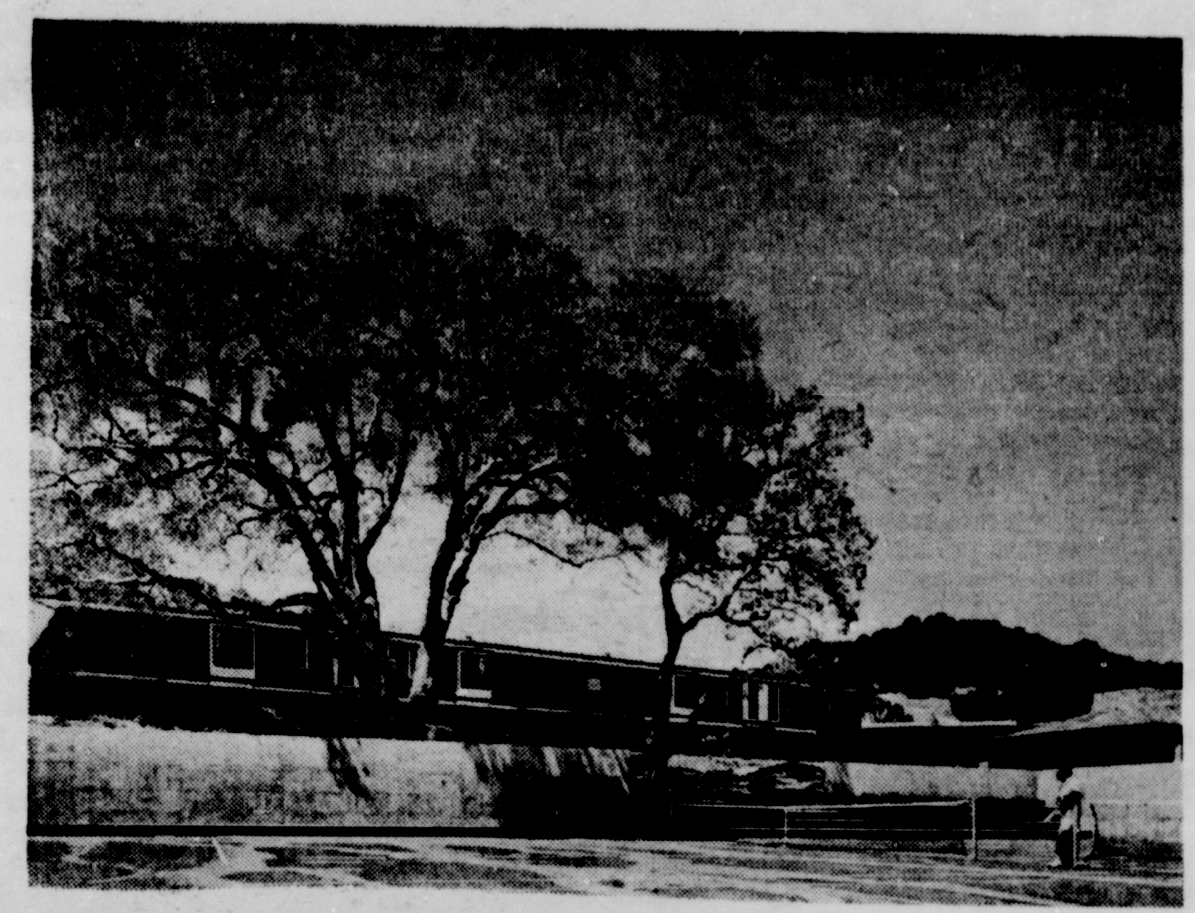
Rentals include club dues.

Outside facilities include two tennis courts with bleachers to seat 500 people, two heated swimming pools and a wading pool, shuffleboard court, table tennis, sunning areas and barbecues.

The development is headed by Calvin C. B. Wheeler and his associates, who were principals in Terra Linda Oaks. Club manager is Shaun Wiltshire, owner of Wiltshire Towers on Highway 101, San Rafael.

CONSTRUCTION work is being done by Stolte Inc., with landscape architecture under Douglas Baylis.

The Meadows is located at 910 Lea Drive, near the west end of the Manuel T. Freitas Parkway.



SUNKEN tennis courts at the Oakview Club will host exhibition and tournament games, with bleachers from where spectators can watch the matches. A tennis pro will be available for lessons. The Oakview Club is centered among apartment buildings of the Meadows and within a short walking distance for all residents of the apartment homes.

MANY residential developments today have their own community clubhouses, but few of them so luxuriously appointed as this, with a licensed bar and facilities for private receptions, bridge luncheons, fashion shows and other affairs. Lunches and, later on, dinners will be served to club members and their guests, depending upon the demand. A mirrored exercise room, completely equipped, can also be used for dances, indoor movies and keep fit programs.

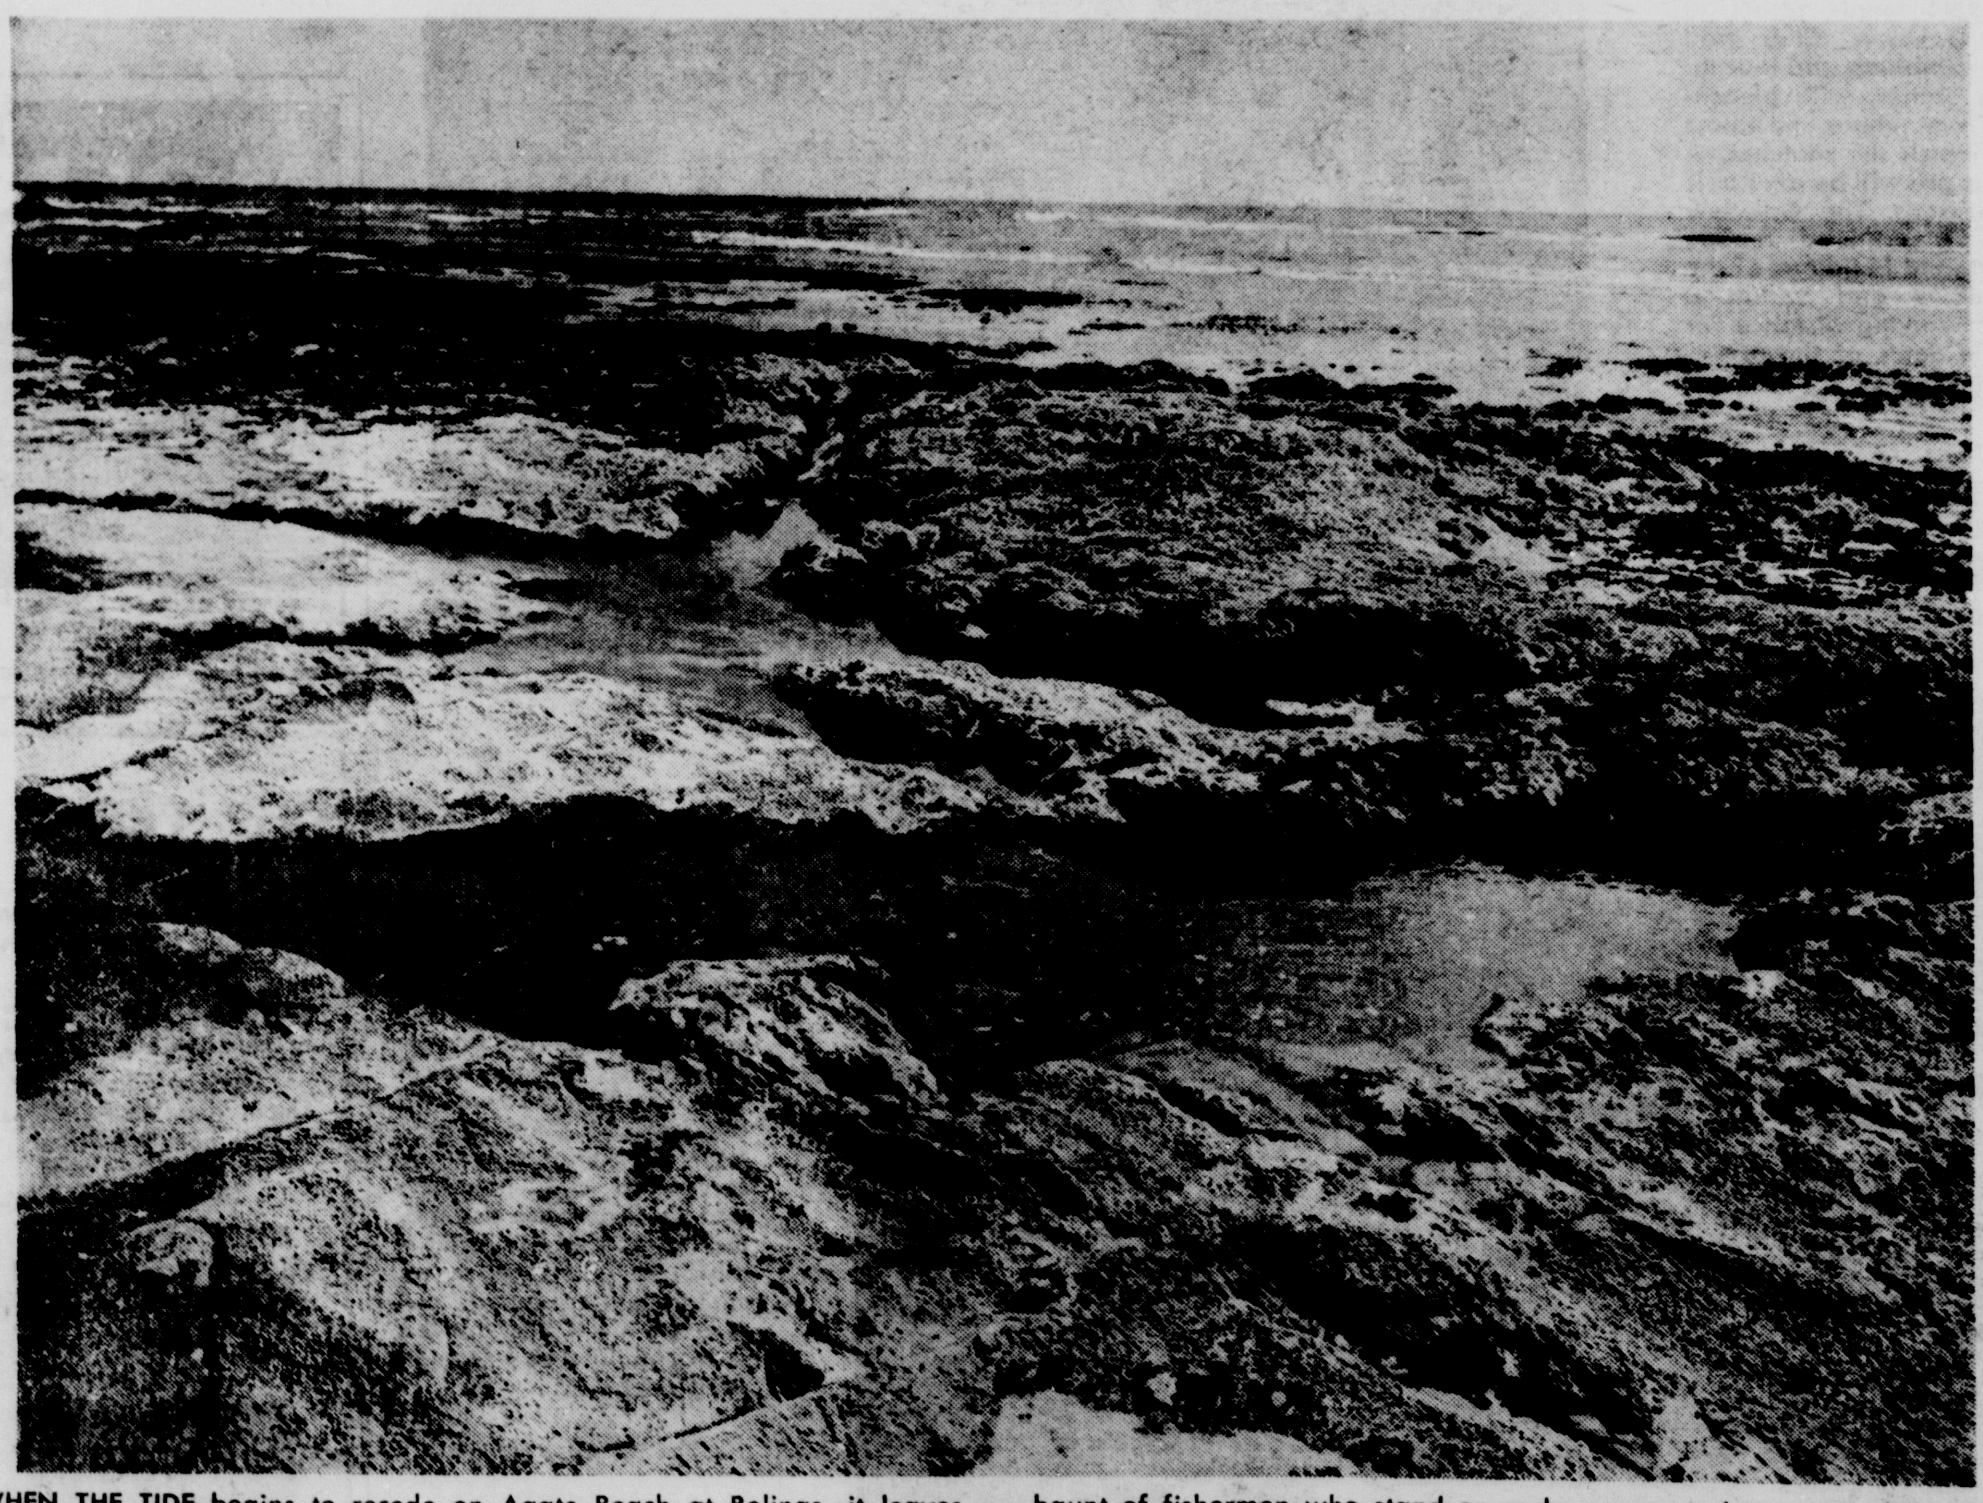
COUNTY-OWNED Agate Beach itself is a 6.6 acre parcel with some 1,200 feet of ocean frontage. But it provides access at low tide to some two miles of shoreline. Fishermen find the catches good. And botanists, biologists and geologists also use the tidal pool area as a happy hunting ground and research laboratory. (Independent-Journal photos)



WHEN THE TIDE begins to recede on Agate Beach at Bolinas, it leaves behind isolated tidal pools such as these, filled with marine life of all kinds. When the tide comes in, this same area can become the favored haunt of fishermen who stand on rocky promontories to cast their lines. State funds have been made available for development of the parking area and other improvements at the beach.

Agate Beach— A Shoreline 'Laboratory'

It's Also A Popular Spot With Marin's Fishermen

(Editor's Note: This is another in the "Your County Parks" series in which the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine is covering the various properties operated and maintained by the Marin County Parks and Recreation Department for public enjoyment. Today's subject: Agate Beach at Bolinas.)

For professional and budding geologists, botanists and biologists, Agate Beach is a happy hunting ground.

For fishermen, too, it's a most important member of Marin's county park "family."

It fronts the sea on the Bolinas Mesa at the end of Ocean Parkway. With some 1,200 feet of beachfront within the 6.6 acre county park parcel itself, more importantly it provides access at low tide to some two miles of publicly-owned shoreline from Duxbury Point to the RCA installation.

AGATE BEACH and the adjoining shoreline, however, are not the same kind of "beach" as those frequented by sunbathers at Stinson Beach and Drake's Beach. Far from it. Rocky and irregular, subject to drastic tidal changes, it offers nothing in the way of sandy stretches upon which to loll and relax.

But it does provide tidepools, at low ebb, that serve biology and botany students as "outdoor laboratories" where they can study close at hand a wealth of fascinating miniscule sea and shore life, both plant and animal. And it does provide anglers with rocky promontories from which they can cast their lines and try their luck.

It was back in 1959 that the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District first offered, by resolution, to dedicate to the county two acres of its waterfront holdings adjoining the beach road for development for parking and restroom purposes.

COUNTY supervisors referred the offer to the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission. Commissioners then joined representatives of the Bolinas Beach Public Utility District and the Bolinas Beach Improvement Club in a tour of the site and a discussion of the proposal.

The commission found, however, that funds for the proposed development were not immediately available. The Bolinas Beach Public Utility District was asked to keep its offer open.

The 1963-64 county budget included funds for a survey of the area.

THEN LAST July, taking notice of state interest in the development of such an access area, the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission recommended to county supervisors that they authorize action to acquire an insurable title in the property and then request the California State Wildlife Conservation Board to provide ". . . the necessary development of an access road, parking area and toilet facilities as part of its program providing access for fishing" with the county to furnish the necessary maintenance and free access to the beach after its development.

In August, supervisors carried out the commission's recommendation. By October, a photogrammetric and topographic map of the area was completed.

Title to the 6.6-acre parcel was conveyed by the Bolinas utility district to the county at no cost in February of this year. The State Wildlife Conservation Board proceeded to approve the project and allocate $20,600 from wildlife restoration funds for the State Department of Fish and Game to proceed with the work.

BIDS ON the project are to be opened later this month.

The state appropriation includes monies for excavation, rock and asphalt topping of a parking area to accommodate 60 cars, curb and gutter installations, ditch paving, plantings for erosion control, painting of parking stalls, posts, chains, signs and contingencies.

Once the state project is completed, the county has agreed to provide maintenance.

The county is also to furnish restroom facilities.

IT IS THE plan of the Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission and Parks and Recreation Director Kelvin Nelson to install rented chemical toilets on the site.

At present the beach has no drinking water, and no such facilities are planned for the immediate future. Nelson hopes, however, that eventually drinking water can be provided for Agate Beach users.

Fishermen find Agate Beach and the adjoining shoreline an excellent point from which to cast for rockfish, greenling, perch, ling cod and other fish. Catches are usually good. Abalone picking and clamming provide other sport that pays off in good eating.

SCIENCE classes, grade school, high school and college, are frequent visiting parties to the area to study the geology or to examine the teeming marine life in and around the tidal pools. Sometimes world recognized authorities visit to collect rocks or flora and fauna specimens.

Gordon Chan of San Anselmo, biology teacher at Sir Francis Drake High School, often conducts his charges on field trips to the beach. It is, he says, a superb laboratory in which budding young scientists can expand their knowledge of marine life.

They may study the hordes of black turban snails, or the multitude of sea anemonies, or the crabs, or the more minute organisms that inhabit the area.

Botany students may be interested in the rockweed or the tiny plankton floating in the pools.

EACH POOL provides a fascinating picture of the relationship of animal to animal, animal to plant, and plant to plant.

As for geology students, the name "Agate Beach" in itself indicates the attractions of the area.

And Wildlife Conservation Board staff members in one of their reports took note of still another form of life to be observed along the beach: "It is always an interesting place with its shore birds and awesome cliffs."

SO RICH is Agate Beach in marine life that, Chan says, the College of Marin Bolinas Marine Station, scheduled to begin functioning in an old converted Coast Guard station around the first of the year, will undoubtedly set up study stations along that beach to carry out projects. Chan will be on the Marine Station staff as an instructor along with botanist Al Molina.

Parks and Recreation Director Nelson has one admonition for those who explore the shoreline from the Agate Beach access point:

"Keep a wary eye on the tide. It can come in fast and trap forgetful waders."

AGATE BEACH, he feels, is worthy of the attention it is receiving from both the state and county.

Like other county parks, it has its recreational value for the fishermen and "beachcombers." But that, undoubtedly, is surpassed by the beach's unique contributions to science and the study of science.

The Juniper Family: Hardy and Beautiful

When Californians heartily adopted the low sweeping lines of ranch-style architecture, one group of plants was suddenly thrust into the spotlight.

These are the spreading Junipers, and they were immediately recognized as handsomely compatible.

The California Assn. of Nurserymen reports that of the 25 or more spreading junipers, the Tamarisk variety is the most popular.

Nursery growers can hardly grow enough of them to keep up with demand. It has everything popular conception believes a low - growing juniper should have: Feathery blue-green foliage, dense habit, spreading fairly quickly in a symmetrical pattern.

WHILE THE Tamarisk variety may be the most popular, it is wise to check with your nurseryman on the many varieties of juniper that will give you good results.

Blue-green Sargent Juniper is generally suited to all gardens. It is a groundhugging form that grows about a foot high and spreads approximately 10 feet. Slightly slower growing than the Sargent, the San Jose Juniper creates the same dramatic effect with dark green foliage.

Among the predominately blue types are the Bar Harbor, Waukegan and Wilton Junipers. All stay very close to the ground and are quite blue in the growing season.

ANDORRA, grey - green in summer, changes its color to plum purple during the winter months.

For "tight" locations, investigate the possibilities of the slow growing forms prized in Japanese gardens.

In large areas requiring quick cover, the more robust spreading junipers are at their best.

BEST KNOWN is the Pfitzer variety, with broadly sweeping branches. It is also available in a blue form and a variety with gold-tipped branches, well-known as Blue Pfitzer and Golden Pfitzer.

In recent years two or three compact forms of the Pfitzer have come into prominence. One of these is the Mordigan Golden Pfitzer and another is the Nick's Compact Pfitzer. They are useful where a little more height is required, but the area to be developed is restricted, such as foundation planting along the side of a house, a fence or a wall.

Your nurseryman can supply you with most varieties in both one-gallon and five-gallon sizes, occasionally an intermediate size in two-gallon containers. Plant the largest size your pocketbook will afford to achieve the earliest desirable effect.

SET YOUR plants at the distance apart recommended by your nurseryman in well-drained soil that is neither acid nor alkaline. Set the base of the plant exactly at ground level and provide a basin of mounded soil around the plant.

For the neatest and most dramatic appearance, control weeds between the plants while they are covering the area, particularly morning glory, rye-grass and bermuda.

Botanically speaking, the above are: Tamarisk Juniper (Juniperus sabina "Tamariscifolia,") San Jose Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "San Jose"), Bar Harbor (Juniperus horizontials "Bar Harbor"), Waukegan Juniper (Juniperus horizontalis "Douglasii"), Andorra Juniper (Juniperus horizontalis "Plumosa"), Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana"), Blue Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana Glauca"), Golden Pfitzer (Juniperus chinensis "Pfitzeriana Aurea"), Mordigan Golden Pfitzer (Juniperus Chinesis "Mordigan") and Nick's Compact Pfitzer Juniper (Juniperus pfitzeriana "nick's compacta").

PFITZER JUNIPER, one of the most hardy yet most beautiful varieties in the juniper family, can be seen in many Marin gardens. The low-growing, spreading form which the Pfitzer takes is most complimentary to any style home and landscaping. It fits in perfectly with rock and shell arrangements, with higher growing plants and shrubs and with patio or walkway arrangements. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- ✔Make use of all the blooms this time of year and lavishly decorate your home with cut flower arrangements. Now you can enjoy these garden prizes both indoor and out.
- ✔To determine if you are watering in sufficient amounts, insert a sharp stick or other implement into the ground. If it doesn't show moisture to a depth of three to four inches, additional watering is needed.
- ✔Just arrived! Cushion mums are now available in gallon cans at your nursery. For a quick lift of color, buy these delicate plants now.
- ✔Dampen the soil or walks with water around your begonias and fuchsias on hot days. This raises the humidity and helps cool the soil around them. A fine spray applied directly on the plants is, of course, the best arrangement.
- ✔Prepare the soil and dig a trench for sweet peas. You will be planting them soon.
- ✔Just about now you wish you had a good selection of shade trees in your garden. Fruitless mulberry, ash, elm and many others are available in cans at your local nursery. Planting now would give a good start for next year.
- ✔Tuberous Begonias have built-in indicators to signal their need of food. If the leaves have a dark green, almost bluish tinge, they are fine, so let them rest. Light green, or yellow-tinged leaves mean they need a feeding. Use liquid fish fertilizer in the standard dilution.
- ✔Note that plants and shrubs in containers require more frequent watering and feeding than those planted in the ground.

HANDYMAN'S CORNER

THE SPORTSMAN especially will be interested in this handsome revolving cabinet and the available Easi-Bild pattern, telling him how to construct it. It's the perfect storage for his guns, fishing tackle and other gear. Its ingenious, roomy design requires a minimum amount of floor space. Even when loaded, the cabinet turns easily on the inverted casters fastened to the base. Locked compartments provide safe storage for guns and fishing rods on one side, while drawers and cabinets on the reverse side hold ammunition, clothing, boots, shoes, etc. For the pattern, send $1 to Independent-Journal, P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. 10510, and ask for the pattern for the "Hold Everything" storage cabinet.

BASEBALL SUPERSTAR Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants is the central figure in the NBC-TV documentary, "A Man Named Mays," that will be repeated on KRON-TV Tuesday at 10 p.m. Marinite Charles Einstein is the narrator, while former Marin resident Lee Mendelson produced the one-hour special.

A Repeat Special On Mays

NBC To Again Air Show On Baseball Great

"A Man Named Mays," a one-hour special about Willie Mays, the San Francisco Giant considered to be one of the greatest all-around players in the history of major league baseball, will be repeated on the NBC-TV network and station KRON-TV Tuesday at 10 p.m.

"A Man Named Mays" is narrated by Charles Einstein of Mill Valley, a long-time friend and author of two books about Mays, and was produced by Lee Mendelson Film Productions of San Francisco, headed by Lee Mendelson, former Marin County resident.

THE SHOW was acclaimed by sportswriters and TV columnists throughout the nation after being telecast on NBC Oct. 6, 1963.

The filmed special reviews the big league career of the Giants' centerfielder from his first season in 1951, when he was named "rookie of the year," through the 1963 campaign. Seen are action shots of many of Mays' greatest feats, including his sensational catch of Vic Wertz's long drive in the first game of the 1954 World Series against the Cleveland Indians and his four home runs in a 1961 game against the Milwaukee Braves.

Giving their views of the amazing Mays are Alvin Dark, manager of the Giants; Leo Durocher, former Giants' pilot and now a Los Angeles Dodgers coach; Horace Stoneham, president of the Giants; Casey Stengel, manager of the New York Mets; Bobby Bragan, manager of the Milwaukee Braves; Stan Musial, the former St. Louis Cardinals superstar, and Ed Montague, the Giants' scout who discovered Mays in Birmingham, Ala.

DUROCHER, who was Willie's manager in his rookie season, sums up the general feeling of a great many baseball men when he says during the show.

"Willie is the greatest all-around player in the game today . . . because he can do the five essential things—hit, hit with power, run, field and throw—better than ayone else."

Other experts are equally lavish in their praise of the brilliant San Francisco star.
